NEW PROBLEMS DELAY PARLEY'S END TO JUNE 23

Concessions Won for Colonials

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 14—New complications in the drafting of the charter of the prospective new league of nations caused the leaders of the security conference today to postpone the visit of President Truman to San Francisco to launch the world peace ship.

The revised time table contemplates a final session of the conference on June 23 at which the charter will be signed by 50 nations and the President will deliver an address broadcast to the world.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington said President Truman would fly the world organization charter to Washington soon after it is signed in hope of obtaining senate ratification in time for his meeting with Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill next month. While anxious to have quick action by the senate, White House Press Secretary Ross emphasized that President Truman "had not made any demand for early ratification."

G. O. P. to Study Action

Preparing for senate debate on the pact, Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], a member of the United States delegation to the security conference, said he would ask the Republican senate conference to determine his party's attitude on speeding the charter thru the senate. Vandenberg, chairman of the conference, indicated he thought it would make little difference in the final result if the treaty is considered at once or is delayed until after a summer recess.

Outstanding developments today were:

1. The charter chapter on trusteeships was revised to accord in substance with the demands of Brig. Gen. Romulo of the Philippines for a pledge of eventual independence for colonial peoples.

2. The Big Five powers—the United States, Great Britain, Russia, France, and China—ordered incorporation of a provision for the expulsion of a recalcitrant member nation from the league.

Ban Withdrawal Provision

3. The Big Five also decided against any provision for withdrawal of a nation from the league. The American delegation is willing to incorporate an interpretative statement in the conference records that absence of such express provision does not mean a nation cannot withdraw if it so desires.

4. A conference committee decided that any one of the Big Five powers would have the privilege of vetoing a nomination for secretary general, chief administrative officer of the league.

5. The Big Five stood pat on the power to veto future amendments to the charter despite opposition of small nations who see in such revision of the charter the only hope of abolishing the privilege of a great power to veto peace enforcement measures.

6. A committee scheduled a vote tomorrow on the Canada-Brazil amendment to call a world conference five to 10 years hence to consider amendments to the charter. The amendment is supported by most of the little nations, but opposed by the Big Five.

7. A committee drafted a provision for an interim commission to safeguard the peace and start the peace league machinery moving before the ratification of the charter by a majority of the 50 nations.

8. The preamble committee began consideration of proposals to perfect the provisions prohibiting league intervention in matters "essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of the state concerned."

It transpires that it was the threat of Romulo, the little Filipino ball of fire who heads the Philippines delegation, to carry his fight

House Group to Act; Claim on Tax Denied

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 14—Disclosure that the treasury department is investigating the $200,000 loan to Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt by John Hartford, grocery chain magnate, was made today as Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee said that group would consider an investigation of the transaction.

Rep. Doughton

Doughton told the house the treasury has so far refused to allow Hartford income tax deductions claimed for 1942, which, the congressman said, presumably include a $196,000 "loss" resulting from the loan to Elliott in 1939.

For Radio Interest

The $200,000 loan was made in 1939 to finance Elliott's Texas radio interests and was settled in 1942 for $4,000 thru Jesse Jones, then secretary of commerce and head of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, according to a statement by Carruthers C. Ewing. Ewing is general counsel for the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, which Hartford heads.

Doughton read the house a letter received from Acting Treasury Secretary Joseph J. O'Connell, stating that the bureau of internal revenue has "questioned the propriety" of $228,500 in losses from "uncollectible notes" claimed by Hartford in his 1942 tax return.

O'Connell said none of the claim has been allowed "as a proper deduction" and that the internal revenue field office was requested on May 30 to "investigate this item."

Other Developments

Disclosure that the treasury has not yet closed its books on the more than two year old loan settlement coincided with these other developments in the case:

1. Records in the court of chancery at Wilmington, Del., showed today that Gen. Roosevelt in 1941 received $33,438 as his share in the liquidation of Transcontinental Broadcasting System, Inc., formed in October, 1939, and subsequently thrown into receivership. Roosevelt was the company's largest stockholder, with 4,000 of the 10,000 outstanding class A no par shares. The $33,438 payment was made in 1941, the year before his $200,000 debt was settled for $4,000.

2. Doughton, in response to questions from Republican congressmen, said he will call a meeting of the ways and means committee within a week to consider investigating the entire loan transaction.

Resolution in Senate

3. Sen. Bridges [R., N. H.] introduced a senate resolution calling for an inquiry by the finance com-

Magic Is Built Into Post-War Refrigerators

POST-WAR PREVIEW

This is the first of a series of articles on post-war appliances and accessories for the home, telling what housewives can expect in the way of improvements, including new mechanisms and special gadgets. Other articles in the series will appear from time to time on the women's pages of the Tribune.

BY EDITH WEIGLE

What will the post-war refrigerators be like? What new features will make them an improvement on the ones manufactured before Pearl Harbor?

First, virtually all makes will provide two temperatures and each will have a deep freeze unit. In this special compartment, fully insulated so that the rest of the refrigerator is never affected by its zero or minu zero cold, frozen foods can be kept indefinitely, ice cream can be stored, and ice cubes can be frozen in a minimum of time.

The main section of a number of post-war refrigerators will be better arranged, affording more room for tall bottles and for bulky items such as watermelons. Shelves will slide out and be easier to clean. Many will be stainless steel. A new principle of chilling by placing the refrigerating coils in the walls of the unit will make for a constant, even temperature within.

Provide for Larger Storage

Several manufacturers say that high humidity will eliminate the drying out of foods and will permit their storing for much longer periods than is possible now. One company is providing its post-war refrigerators with an ultra violet ray lamp which will kill bacteria that might result from this humidity and which also will eliminate food odors.

Because of new methods of chilling the units, many of the new models will never need to be defrosted, a feature which will sell thousands of post-war refrigerators to women who have been discommoded for years by the necessity of defrosting each week.

Even before production ceased some manufacturers were equipping their products with mechanisms that were a far cry from the cumbersome "compressors" still to be found in so many thousands of homes. Elimination of belts, pulleys, etc., assured a much more dependable mechanism. Moving parts were reduced to a minimum and the cost of operating shrank to less than a third of the amount considered normal only a few years before.

It's Only the Beginning

It's reasonable to expect that further progress will be made in post-war days and that even more dependable mechanisms will provide plenty of power yet will use increasingly small amounts of current. All the improvements will not come at once, and we're told not to expect any new refrigerators at all, for at least six months, maybe more.

But when you consider that you'll be able to store the ordinary foods longer and better, that you also will be able to have your own deep freeze unit right in your refrigerator, and that the labor involved in defrosting will be a thing of the past, you'll agree that the post-war models are well worth waiting for.

HOUSE PASSES BILL TO PUT QUIETUS ON PROWLING BY CATS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 14—The bill to keep prowling cats under control was passed by the house, 79 to 29, and sent to the senate today as a birthday present to Miss Gertrude Charny of 6972 Greenview av., Chicago, president of Friends of the Birds, Inc.

"Let's vote for this bill because it's the birthday of that little old lady up in the gallery," said Rep. Preihs [D., Pana], pointing to Miss Charny. "She's been down here four months explaining to us why cats shouldn't be permitted to run at large."

A wave of chivalry swept the house and four representatives stopped imitating 'om cats. Miss Charny beamed her thanks but refused to divulge her age.

SENATORS FEAR RED ADVANCES ACROSS EUROPE

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—Senators returning today from a tour of Europe said they were disturbed over prospects on the continent—some forecasting that the Germans will try again and others saying they were perturbed by the spread of communist influence.

The group, members of the military and naval affairs committees, included Senators Revercomb [R., W. Va.], Gurney [R., S. D.], Stewart [D., Tenn.], McClellan [D., Ark.], Byrd [D., Va.], and Eastland [D., Miss.].

All Europe "is sweeping toward communism or state socialism," Revercomb told newsmen.

Eastland said the soviet union is getting the larger share of the occupied reich and said the Russians "may start to communize everything behind that line."

Gurney, in a separate interview, said: "We found out that the German people definitely know they are whipped, but we also know that if they had the troops, ammunition, and food they would be at our throats again tomorrow."

Spanish Skirts Inches Shorter Since Revolt

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MADRID, Spain, June 14—The principal visible effect of the Spanish revolution noticeable in Madrid is that women's skirts are three inches shorter than during the monarchy, but they still average three inches longer than the abbreviated dresses worn by Parisiennes which cease abruptly just above the knee.

There is evidence everywhere that Spanish womanhood enjoys certain emancipation from its traditional servitude and repression, and the only mantillas and veils seen are worn by venerable Victorian ladies with high button shoes and rusty black silk dresses.

But the bicycles which cause Yanks to gape at the mademoiselles on Paris boulevards are still taboo for even the most daring senoritas.

War Damage Vanishes

Civil war damage has entirely disappeared, and altho veterans of the siege of Madrid insist that the International Telephone and Telegraph building, the highest skyscraper in the city, received 156 bomb hits, the facade bears no trace. They point out where shells and bombs unroofed houses, explaining that everything has been repaired since.

Now, during a period when the French treasury is exchanging old money for new currency, France and Spain are cut off as completely as tho at war. Frontier authorities will not even let porters carry baggage across the international bridge over the Bidassoa river, marking the boundary between Hendaye, France, and Irun, Spain, for fear that they will smuggle francs or pesetas across.

Lug Own Baggage

Passengers get their luggage examined by customs officers and their passports stamped and then drag their valises, bags, and boxes across to the opposite side. It is impossible to buy thru sleeping car tickets between Paris and Madrid, and a person is permitted to take only 1,000 francs out of France, which is insufficient to buy a ticket.

An American embassy courier with diplomatic privileges saved me from being marooned.

Modern, high speed highways parallel the railway, but I counted only 15 automobiles during five hours of traveling.

Madrid shop windows display a lavish amount of consumer goods—shoes for $6, silk stockings for $1.50 a pair, print dresses for $15, cakes, candies, and ice cream—and there are blind lottery ticket vendors on every corner.

Junkers Toil for Reds—if They're Lucky

[This is the third in a series of articles by a veteran newspaper man, who was interned nearly five years by the Germans and liberated by Russian troops.]

BY B. J. KOSPOTH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 14—The feudal military caste of great land owners in eastern Germany, which has been the brains and backbone of the German army since Frederick the Great's time, has ceased to exist under Russian rule.

For two years I was a prisoner of war at the beck and call of one of these Junker aristocrats, Count Ewald von Kleist, whose estates before the Reds came, covered about 7,000 acres of cultivated fields and forests at Tychow, Pomerania. The village of Tychow itself was his personal property and its 600 inhabitants were virtually his serfs. Von Kleist's word was law in the nearby town of Schlawe where policemen and shopkeepers saluted when he drove thru the streets in his smart carriage, drawn by a pair of fine bays, with a top hatted groom in the back seat.

Today the count is chopping firewood and milking cows for the Russians. He is dressed like the poorest of his tenants and his boots are sadly in need of repair.

Reputation Helps Him

He is lodging with six other workers in one room of a straw thatched peasant's cottage within sight of the grand manor house in which his family lived for generations and which is now headquarters for the Russian district commandant.

And, the count can call himself lucky. He has received light work because he had the reputation of being anti-Nazi and of having treated prisoners employed on his estate with humanity.

Other Junkers have been less fortunate. On the adjoining estate, Count von Zitzewitz was shot dead by Red soldiers when, obeying Hitler's orders for guerrilla warfare, he tried to defend himself in his chateau.

Baron von Bonin was denounced as a notorious slave driver by Russian prisoners who had been working for him. He was "deported." He tried to save himself by throwing open his wine cellar to the Reds when they arrived but altho they toasted him in his best champagne he was suddenly whisked away when the party was at its gayest. He hasn't been heard from since.

At Silesen, the estate of Baron von Putkammer, the baron attempted to intervene when Red troopers, maddened by fighting and drink, insulted his 18 year old sister. Brother and sister were killed.

Russians on Guard

Despite the anti-Hitlerism of some of the Prussian Junkers [many of them were arrested and some hanged in connection with the attempt to assassinate the Fuehrer a year ago] the Russians intend to see to it that they do not come to life again as they did after 1918.

At present it seems probable that the great estates of the Junkers in East Prussia, Pomerania, and Silesia, will be divided up among small farmers and peasants.

When I left Pomerania a few weeks ago die hard Prussians were declaring that Germany's defeat was due entirely to the interference of "that mad man, Hitler" in the conduct of the war. If Hitler had let the general staff alone, they argued, it would have led the German soldiers to victory.

The aim of this underground propaganda is clear: It is to preserve the reputation of the sacrosanct German army and its Junker leaders at all costs.

OKINAWA PEAK SEIZED; LAST JAP LINE CRACKED

Planes Will Destroy 5 Major Cities, Arnold Says

GUAM, June 15 [Friday]—(AP)—American planes will begin hitting Japan with bombs at the rate of 2,000,000 tons a year by July 1, Gen. H. H. Arnold announced today in a press conference. At the moment he spoke, 520 Super Fortresses were dumping a 3,000 ton load on the great Japanese industrial city of Osaka.

Arnold, chief of United States army air forces, announced the Osaka raid in disclosing his program for "complete and utter destruction" of the enemy homeland by air. He is here on a visit to the 21st bomber command, headquarters of the B-29 Super Fortresses.

To Double Tonnage

"We plan to more than double the tonnage dropped on Japan," Arnold said. "Starting July 1 we [the 20th air force] are going to drop 1,700,000 tons, and forces of Gen. Kenney [commander of the far eastern air forces], 300,000 tons.

"If that is what Japan wants, by God that is what she is going to get. You know what will be left of the area from Tokyo to Nagasaka, which is all of Japan that counts industrially."

"Japan has a thousand small targets in back yard workshops and homes," he continued. "Suicide planes are cheap and can be made in a back yard. That is why we went into the destruction program to defeat Japan. It is necessary to destroy five key cities [Tokyo, Nagoya, Yokohama, Kobe and Osaka]. It is going to be a terrible place in which to live."

8th Air Force to Pacific

Turning to the problem of transfer of planes from the European theater, Arnold said:

"We are wondering how we are going to put 12,000 planes from the European theater over here and get the maximum striking power against Japan. But we will use every land mass we can get our hands on."

He said he was not at liberty to disclose where the 8th air force was going to be based, but "you can say Gen. [James H.] Doolittle [commander of the 8th air force] is going to bring the 8th air force out here [from England] and we will use it against Japan."

Second City Hit

Today's incendiary raid, marking the first aniversary of B-29 operations against Japan proper, struck Osaka and the neighboring city of Amagasaki. Mustang P-51s from Iwo Island escorted the bombers.

The principal targets of fire bombs were in eastern Osaka south of Osaka castle and in the extreme northern sector of the city between the Yodo and Kanzaki rivers. Many war industries are concentrated in this area.

The raid was the fourth incendiary attack on Osaka itself, but was the first on Amagasaki, industrial city of 200,000 northwest of Osaka.

The bombings, carried out at medium altitude, were thru cloud cover, so that results were not observed.

Yanks 3 Miles from Southern Tip of Island

Costs Navy 8 Billions

Valley Stream, N. Y., June 14 (AP)—Lt. Comdr. William J. Warburton told Columbia Aircraft corporation workers today that up to until about two weeks ago the battle of Okinawa had cost the navy more than $8,800,000,000, "not counting cost in lives." The amount, he said, was "more than twice what the navy spent in World War I."

GUAM, June 15 [Friday]—(AP)—Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley's 96th infantry division cracked the center of the previously outflanked Japanese defense line on southern Okinawa yesterday by capturing 500 foot high Yaeju hill and pushing on south.

The summit of southern Okinawa's highest peak was gained early yesterday after a brisk fight while other divisions cut in behind both ends of the rugged escarpment line where an estimated 10,000 Nipponese are making a last stand in an area of less than 13 square miles.

Assault Second Hill

Adm. Nimitz announced in today's war bulletin the fall of Yaeju hill to the 381st regiment. Other 96th division elements assaulted a second high point to the west and moved up to the southeast of Ozato town.

On both ends of the escarpment line, the 1st marine and 7th infantry divisions pushed inward in a maneuver similar to the pincers envelopment of Shuri fortress.

On southwestern Okinawa's Oroku peninsula, the 6th marine division mopped up remnants of a pocketed Japanese naval landing force which had been used as regular troops. The unusually high number of 102 surrendered Wednesday.

Land on Another Island

Elements of the 3d marine amphibious corps, meantime, made unopposed landings on Senaga Island, off the southwest coast of Oroku peninsula. They captured five Japanese naval guns.

Off the southeastern coast, the 7th infantry division gained 300 to 700 yards to reach the center of Mazaka town. Resistance there was moderate to heavy.

Widen Hold in West

On the southwestern coast, the 1st marine division attacked before dawn and gained 600 to 800 yards to widen its front on Kunishi ridge, western anchor of the escarpment fortifications. Heavy resistance developed around the ridge after daylight.

Ground action thruout the front was supported strongly by aircraft from marine air groups Nos. 31, 33, and 22.

The Senaga Island landings were made to wipe out a naval battery which had harassed marine operations on Oroku and along the southwestern coast just below the peninsula. The island is only about 600 yards long and 400 yards wide.

There was lessening of air activity thruout the Ryukyus. For the second successive day, not a Japanese plane ventured into the area Wednesday.

American aircraft attacked air fields and installations in the Sakishima Islands, southernmost of the Ryukyus, for the fifth straight day. They probably destroyed one Japanese plane on the ground.

Japs Quit or Blow Up Selves

OKINAWA, June 14 (AP)—The Japanese ended their nine day battle on Oroku peninsula in complete confusion—with surrenders, hara-kiri and by blowing each other up—as they were driven from their last organized position in the mud flats along the Kokuba estauary.

Lt. John Stone of Montville, O., commanding I company, 3d battalion, 29th marine regiment, told how he and his men were coming thru a draw to the mud flats when they ran into a number of Japanese who tossed grenades wildly about.

Account for 296 Japs

His outfit accounted for 296 enemy soldiers and sailors, including 46 captured.

"Pvt. Harry M. Tuttle of Atlanta, Ill., who speaks Japanese, talked some into surrendering," said Stone. "Others committed suicide. One group of 10 blew themselves up with explosives."

Lt. Ben Price of Birmingham, Ala., with a group of other marines rigged up a public address system on a jeep and drove thru the disorganized enemy soliciting surrenders.

Jap Brings in 12 Comrades

They took 56 prisoners in small groups, got into several fights and shot about 100 Japs.

Once enemy machine gun fire raked a jeep carrying out wounded Japanese. One of the Japanese volunteered to go back to his lines to appeal to his friends to give up and brought in 12 more.

On another occasion 21 frustrated Nipponese ran out of their position and raced around in circles shouting and gesticulating before finally blowing themselves up.

AUSSIES SEIZE BRUNEI; NEAR THIRD AIR FIELD

Flyers Set Fires Along Borneo Coast

MANILA, June 15 [Friday]—(AP)—Brunei, important little river port and capital of the north Borneo sultanate of Brunei, fell by default to Australian 9th division infantrymen who walked unopposed into the bomb-flattened town Wednesday, it was disclosed today.

The town, 16 miles from the nearest landing points when the invasion of British Borneo began last Sunday, was occupied after a hot march thru the lush jungle. Australian infantry men pushed ahead of their tanks, encountering only small arms and machine gun fire. The troops were aided by native Dyaks shooting poisoned darts from reed blowguns.

Step Up Mortar Fire

A bulletin from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced also that other Australian units on Labuan Island, in the mouth of Brunei bay, had moved within a half mile of the Timbalai air strip along the Hamilton road and found not more than 500 Japanese opposing them.

The defense was stiffening, however, with mortar fire and snipers on the increase both in the Timbalai area and in pockets north and west of Labuan air strip, which already is being used to some extent by the allies.

Planes Raid Coast

Timbalai is the last Japanese held air field of three in the invasion area.

United States 13th air force Mitchell medium and Lightning fighter-bombers and royal Australian air force Beaufighters and Kittyhawks continued strong support of the invasion forces, raiding coastal supply areas and striking heavily at Jesselton, British North Borneo, northeast of the Brunei bay area. Large fires were set in buildings and fuel dumps that sent smoke towering 4,000 feet into the air.

CHINESE REACH EDGE OF TWO JAP BASTIONS

CHUNGKING, China, June 14 (AP)—Chinese troops attacking on a broad front in south China have reached the suburbs of Liuchow and Ishan, key strongholds in the shrinking Japanese transcontinental corridor to southeast Asia, the high command announced today. Enemy garrisons were being pounded in the northern suburbs of Liuchow, site of a former American air base in Kwangsi province and also at Ishan, 43 miles to the west on the Kweiyang [Kweichow]-Kwangsi railway.

The Chinese were forced out of Ishan last Monday following a Japanese counter-attack to protect their withdrawal from the corridor which once connected Japanese forces in China with 200,000 enemy troops in Indo-China, Thailand, Malaya, and Burma.

American airmen aided the Chinese by strafing enemy lines from Liuchow northeastward to Hengyang. They destroyed or damaged 21 Japanese aircraft in the area. No opposition was encountered.

EIRE VOTES FOR NEW PRESIDENT; COUNT DELAYED

DUBLIN, June 15 [Friday]—(AP)—Eire voters elected a new president yesterday, but the result of the election will not be known until tonight.

The incumbent, Dr. Douglas Hyde, 85, elected seven years ago without opposition, declined because of his age to seek another term. He retires next month.

It was estimated that only 60 per cent of the voters participated after a listless campaign.

M'ARTHUR VISITS SULTAN; UNFOLD PAGEANT OF EAST

General Requests Prayers for GIs

BY DONALD STARR

[Chicago Tribune War Correspondent]
[For Combined American Press]

WITH GEN. MacARTHUR ON JOLO ISLAND, P. I. [Date Censored]—Under a rain drenched army tent in a coconut grove on the most beautiful island of the archipelago, the bespangled sultan of Sulu today exchanged gifts with Gen. MacArthur.

The general stopped here for a few hours on a tour of the Philippines. From the moment the cruiser anchored, the island and its inhabitants provided a pageant. The natives, in twos and threes and by whole families, put out from shore in 100 paddle-powered outrigger dugouts bearing bolo knives, fish and eggs to trade with sailors who hung over the rails of the ship. A launch carrying the general threaded its way thru the armada of dugouts to shore.

100 Boats Wait at Shore

Along the shore 100 boats, some supporting canvas covered platforms, were moored in rows, providing living quarters for the subjects of the sultan. Smoke from fires for cooking rose from a few, almost miraculous in view of their two foot wide hulls. A row of jeeps waited on the pier for the visitors. American troops now garrison the island, which was invaded last March.

Thru fields of corn surrounded by bamboo fences, an improved highway led us by a circuitous route to military headquarters. There the sultan waited amidst his court, which included the acting governor wearing an army .45 pistol, photos under its plastic grips indicating former American ownership. The acting governor, who served as interpreter, was brilliantly dressed in pink silk, and the sultan wore peach colored trappings. The sultan's son, a former guerrilla leader dressed in a pajama-like costume, two minor officials, and two carbine bearing guards completed the welcoming party.

MacArthur Stresses the Spiritual

The 76 year old sultan's weathered face cracked into a gold toothed smile as he shook hands with MacArthur, Lt. Gen. Robert Eichelberger of the 8th army, and Gen. George Kenney, commanding officer of the far east air force. MacArthur expressed a hope that the sultan was looking after the spiritual welfare of his people.

The potentate recalled having met Gen. John J. Pershing several years ago, and the captain of our ship was then presented. The captain reminded the sultan that he had called on him years ago and had taken him on a dive in a submarine.

As the Americans prepared to reenter their jeep the sultan presented MacArthur with three silver bolos encased in mahogany scabbords decorated with mother of pearl. A colonel hastily unslung his binoculars and the sultan accepted them, then turned to his godson, perhaps 5, and draped them around his neck. A jeep bore the sultan, his governor and his bodyguard back to the pier with the military party.

Before saying farewell, MacArthur urged the sultan to say prayers for the American soldiers, for Eichelberger and for Kenney.

AMERICANS GAIN 3 MILES IN PUSH ON LUZON'S JAPS

MANILA, June 15 [Friday]—United States troops scored a three mile advance Wednesday thru northern Luzon's mountains, Gen. MacArthur announced today, placing them two miles from the entrance to Cagayan valley, where the biggest enemy force still at large in the islands is believed to be deployed.

Forty miles to the southwest the 33d infantry division was only six miles from the isolated enemy supply base of Bokod after overrunning the towns of Tabio and Ambuklao. Bokod is 16 miles northeast of the summer capital of Baguio.

Supplementing widespread air strikes at enemy supply lines thruout the area, shore raiders landed at night on Sangihe Island, south of Mindanao, blew up six large warehouses, destroyed a number of water craft, and withdrew without loss, MacArthur's bulletin said.

Mopping up operations proceeded on Mindanao itself. Minor gains were scored northwest of Davao port.

United States 5th air force Liberators based in the Philippines continued their heavy strikes across the China sea on the Hong Kong, Canton, and Saigon areas on Tuesday, MacArthur's bulletin said.

JAPS REARMED DURING TRUCE ON OKINAWA

BY VERN HAUGLAND

WITH THE 7TH MARINE REGIMENT, ITOMAN, Okinawa, June 12 [Delayed]—(AP)—Nipponese treachery possibly figured in the failure of last night's arrangements for Japanese surrender negotiations, officers of this regiment of the 1st marine division said today.

Lt. Col. Spencer Berger, of Flint, Mich., and Beverly Hills, Calif., commander of the 2d battalion, said his men saw the Japanese taking advantage of the temporary truce to strengthen their positions on Kunishi ridge.

I witnessed the surrender arrangements being made last night, accompanying Lt. Col. George J. Clark of Toledo, Ohio—the marine officer who represented Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., 10th army commander, as head of the reception group for any negotiating party sent out by the Japanese—to a pinnacled forward observation post southeast of Itoman and overlooking Kunishi ridge, 1,000 yards to the south.

Town Is Shattered

Regimental Commander Col. Edward W. Snedeker, Benkelman, Neb., led the way thru the shattered town along streets cluttered with the bodies of Japanese soldiers to Lt. Col. Berger's observation post.

Clark's negotiating party included Marine Capt. W. Robert Gleason, Osseo, Wis., and two interpreters, Marine Capt. Donald Shively of Upper Montclair, N. J., and Lt. [j. g.] Kenneth C. Lamott, Philadelphia. Shively formerly lived at Kobe, and Lamott is the son of a former Presbyterian missionary at Tokyo.

Airplanes had dropped messages over the Japanese general's headquarters the night before, inviting him to send a party to negotiate a surrender the next evening at 6 p. m. The Japanese were to mark the negotiation point on the west coast below Itoman with panels.

Some Japs Surrender.

Berger ordered artillery fire halted except for return fire to any enemy guns and instructed the companies to watch for the Japanese panels. Clark placed white cross panels on our observation point to mark it for the little observation planes watching overhead.

Within a few minutes Company C on the left telephoned "Six Japanese soldiers just walked into our lines with surrender pamphlets and gave themselves up."

It was soon evident, however, that the small surrender party was not connected with or aware of the negotiation plans.

About 5:45 p. m. there were signs of activity in the Japanese held area. Several figures walked hesitantly out on the road a few yards and then turned and crossed back and forth in the fields.

Extend Truce

The time specified passed without results and Clark and Snedeker decided to give the enemy another half hour.

Company C reported: "We have definitely identified Japanese moving ammunition cases from beneath that cliff to gun positions."

The truce continued until 6:30 p. m. Then Snedeker ordered "Give them hell," and our shore artillery and ships' guns opened on Kunishi ridge, pounding its slopes to dust.

That was last night. Today, Berger said his men pushing off at 3:30 a. m. gained the ridge top but had to make their way thru fire from the guns which the Japanese armed while American artillery remained silent to give them a chance to surrender.

CIRCUMSTANCES LIMIT FORCES OF CANADA, PREMIER EXPLAINS

OTTAWA, Ont., June 14 (AP)—The troops Canada will send to fight Japan comprise "the most substantial force which, having regard to all circumstances, our United States allies felt could be effectively integrated with their forces in the time at our disposal," Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King said today.

He said Canadian participation in the Far East was being organized "in the closest coöperation" with Britain and the United States, and that altho the army force might not be large, it would be "surpassed by none" in quality.

The prime minister earlier had announced that Canada's armed forces in the Pacific, all of whom are to be volunteers, would be composed of 30,000 army troops, 13,500 naval personnel and a "proportionate" number of air force personnel.

The army will serve with United States troops and begin training in the United States soon. The naval and air forces will serve with the British.

TWO JAP SHIPS SUNK BY BRITISH OFF SUMATRA

CALCUTTA, India, June 14 (AP)—A Japanese supply ship and a submarine chaser have been sunk by British destroyers of the East Indies fleet off the northwestern tip of Sumatra, the Southeast Asia command announced today.

Slowly enlarging the ring of allied held Burma above Rangoon, British 14th army troops pushed the Japanese a little nearer the Thailand border by capturing an enemy position almost 21 miles east of Toungoo on the Toungoo-Mawchi road.

BOETTIGERS QUIT SEATTLE POSTS ON NEWSPAPER

Seattle, Wash., June 14 (AP)—John Boettiger and his wife, the former Anna Roosevelt, today resigned as publisher and associated editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and in a formal statement said:

"Upon the completion of my military service Mrs. Boettiger and I entered into discussions with William Randolph Hearst and his representatives in the east concerning the future policies of the Post-Intelligencer. Mrs. Boettiger and I have been on leaves of absence as associate editor and publisher of the paper.

"Under our original understanding with Mr. Hearst, which prevailed thruout our management of the Post-Intelligencer, I was given authority to direct its editorial and business policies.

"It has been agreed during the present discussions that irreconcilable differences now exist between us concerning the policies to be pursued in publishing the Post-Intelligencer.

"So we have today tendered our resignations.

"We are grateful to Mr. Hearst for having been given the opportunity to operate his newspaper and we greatly enjoyed the experience.

"Our future plans are aimed at working in and for the Pacific northwest either thru acquiring a daily newspaper at the proper time or thru developing some other business.

HIDDEN VALLEY OF NEW GUINEA FOUND IN 1938

U.S. Expedition Explored Area 11 Months

(Drawing on back page)

New York, June 14 [Special]—The so-called hidden valley of New Guinea, where a WAC and two American soldiers who survived a plane crash have been stranded for a month, is in reality the Grand valley or the valley of the Balim river, officials of the American Museum of Natural History said today. The valley, they said, was discovered by the Archbold expedition to New Guinea in the summer of 1938.

The Americans plan to begin a 10 mile trek to a rescue camp tomorrow.

In the absence of Richard Archbold, leader of the expedition, attaches at his office said the identity of the valley had been established. They said Maj. Gen. Donald Wilson, deputy chief of the United States air force, had corroborated the identification.

Museum officials said that Gen. Wilson, former chief of allied air forces in the Southwest Pacific, and museum officials had compared pictures taken from the air by the Archbold expedition and those taken by the army air forces and found they tallied so closely there could be no doubt the valleys were the same. Both sets of pictures revealed the same topography and well developed fields.

Spend 11 Months in Area

Archbold and other members of the expedition have written extensively on their 11 month expedition to New Guinea, the discovery of the valley, the agricultural advancement of the natives and their behaviorism. Their accounts in many ways parallel those coming from Hollandia, but not in all respects.

In November of last year, L. J. Brass, a research member of the American museum and botanist with the expedition, wrote a letter to Gen. Marshall, chief of staff, outlining conditions in the Grand valley. The object of the letter was give the army the benefit of the expedition's findings and forearm it in the event of an incident such as has now occurred.

Land on Mountain Lake

Archbold's expedition had used a twin engined flying boat, the Guba, on the expedition. Extensive experience had been gained in landing on Lake Habbema at an 11,000 foot altitude and landings also had been made on the Balim river, in the valley.

These findings were passed along to Gen. Marshall along with suggestions on the treatment of the natives whom Archbold described as friendly, but emotionally unstable. Brass, in his letter, described the natives as "primitive, stone age people remarkably highly developed in agricultural methods."

Archbold has described the Grand valley as between the Idenburg river and Lake Habbema. He estimated its area as 10 miles wide by 40 miles long.

Estimate Population at 60,000

Their visit in the valley convinced members of the Archbold party that white men had never before penetrated this hidden realm. From the number of gardens and stockaded villages composed of groups of round houses roofed with domes of grass thatch, they estimated the valley's population to be not less than 60,000.

From the air the gardens and ditches and native-built walls in the valley appeared like the farming country of Central Europe. Later approach by ground route revealed that the fencing and ditching and neat cultivation had been accomplished by a people working with stone tools and sharpened sticks. In their fields, devoted primarily to sweet potatoes, with some taro, cucumbers, spinach, beans, bananas, and tobacco, the farmers of Grand valley showed an understanding of the basic principles of erosion control and drainage. Pigs were their chief item of live stock.

The height of the natives, Archbold reported, ranged from 4 feet 8 inches to 5 feet 8½ inches.

TRIBUNE SENDING KIN'S NOTES TO 'HIDDEN VALLEY'

The anxious parents of a WAC and two Yank airmen who have been marooned for a month in a hidden valley on New Guinea where their plane crashed in one of the war's most fantastic tragedies yesterday sent their young folks messages from home which THE TRIBUNE has undertaken to transmit to the trapped trio.

The three, survivors of an accident in which 21 others died, are WAC Corp. Margaret Hastings, 30, Owego, N. Y.; Lt. John B. McCollom, Trenton, Mo., and Sgt. Kenneth W. Decker, Kelso, Wash.

Supplies Dropped from Air

Ever since they fell into the distant "Shangri-la," an isolated area inhabited previously only by spear throwing natives, the survivors have been awaiting rescue. Food, supplies, and Filipino paratroopers have been dropped from the air to aid them and the army hopes to rescue them thru a delicate "glider snatch" operation as soon as an improvised runway can be built.

Messages from the parents of the marooned trio were cabled by THE TRIBUNE to its correspondent in New Guinea, Walter Simmons, who has flown over the mountain circled valley trap previously, with directions that he transmit the dispatches to the WAC and airmen by means of a walkie-talkie that had been parachuted to them.

All of the parents expressed appreciation of THE TRIBUNE's offer and were eager to avail themselves of the opportunity to communicate with their daughter and sons.

"Real Thrill" to Send Message

WAC Corp. Hastings' father, Patrick J. Hastings of Owego, N. Y., sent her the following message:

"We are all fine at home and will be looking for you just as soon as you can get here. Hope and pray you are well and unhurt. Your sisters want to say hello. It really is something to have a famous daughter. Wait till you see the papers. Thank THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for getting this message thru to you. It is a real thrill to send it. We will be seeing you soon, we hope. Love. Dad."

Bert Decker of Kelso, Wash., told his son, Sgt. Kenneth Decker:

"We hope you are recovering satisfactorily and will soon be back at your post. Mother and I are fine, but anxious. Dad."

Message to Surviving Twin

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. McCollom of Trenton, Mo., were grieved by the loss of one son, Lt. Robert E. McCollom, who was among the 21 killed, but relieved that his twin, Lt. John B. McCollom, who was on the same plane, had survived. To the latter they sent the following message:

"We are happy that you survived. Anxiously awaiting direct word from you. So sorry about Robert. Our love to you. Dad and Mom."

116 MORE MEN OF AIR FORCES RETURN HOME

33 from Chicago and Vicinity Included

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Camp Grant, Ill., June 14—Another trickle of 8th and 15th air forces men were whisked thru Camp Grant's smooth running redeployment machinery tonight. A total of 116 soldiers, including 33 from the Chicago area, will be ready to leave here soon after breakfast tomorrow.

Get Bumpy Bus Ride

The army changed its routine on the last leg of the trip. Men who flew back over the Atlantic in the planes they serviced for missions over Germany made the last 15 mile lap to camp in jolting buses from Davis Junction. Soldier-like, they expressed their opinion of buses in no weak terms.

Among those who returned tonight was Capt. James B. Linskey, 26, of 3109 N. Lockwood av., Chicago, who had the distinction of having his pants shot off without injury to himself. Linskey, who said he plans to get married on June 30 to his old sweetheart, Miss Bernice Lutke, 3727 Bernard st., Chicago, was in charge of maintenance for his squadron. He was checking engine performance during a raid over Europe when flak caught him in the rear.

The audience—which grew from 31 in the afternoon to 100 in the evening—included the two policemen assigned, it was explained, "from [Police Commissioner] Allman's office to all of our meetings."

Mrs. Stella MacKissen of Ferndale, Mich., warned the meeting against international bankers. Miss Lillian Drees of Milwaukee criticized the St. Lawrence waterway which, she said, would sacrifice our sovereignty. Dr. Bhagwan S. Gyanee discussed the exploitation of Asiatic peoples.

JAPS MAY QUIT WITHIN 90 DAYS, HOUSE IS TOLD

War of Attrition Is Called Alternative

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—Rep. Cannon [D., Mo.] said today that American military authorities believe Japan may possibly surrender within 90 days. If it doesn't, Cannon added, the United States may choose to wage a long war of attrition and starvation rather than launch an immediate frontal assault.

Rep. Cannon

Cannon is chairman of the house appropriations committee. He made his remarks in the house as he called up for consideration a bill cutting 92 million dollars from current appropriations of war agencies being switched from a two front to one front war basis. The house approved the bill and sent it to the senate.

Face an Alternative

"It is the belief of the military authorities," Cannon said, "that one of two courses will be followed by Japan:

"Either Japan will surrender within the next 90 days or the war will be of long duration—a matter of attrition."

In that event, he said, the allies face the alternative "of a frontal assault or isolating their positions, starving them out, bombing them out, until, slowly but surely—without the loss of considerable life upon the part of the American forces—we will win the war thru attrition."

The latter course, he continued, "seems in contemplation of adoption by military authorities."

Cannon, whose committee passes on appropriations for fighting the war, is in frequent secret consultation with top military men.

Two Year War

A war of attrition such as Cannon pictured probably would be waged largely by sea and air forces and, thus, might mean that vast armies of foot soldiers would not be hurled against the Japanese in costly landing operations until that nation is well softened up.

Cannon cautioned the house that administration leaders are basing their planning on the possibility of a two year war against Japan.

He declared that as soon as the Japanes war ends, steps will be taken to return unused war funds to the treasury.

Returning Soldiers' Kin Told Not to Go to Ports

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—The office of defense transportation today advised families and friends of service men not to attempt to meet returning soldiers at eastern ports of debarkation. The soldiers move on to scattered personnel centers about 24 hours after their arrival, ODT said, and added: "During their brief stay at the ports the men will not be granted any leave nor will relatives be permitted to visit with them. The returning soldiers will be kept so busy that they will not even be able to receive telephone calls or mail."

BETTER ACCORD WITH REDS TOLD BY CHURCHILL

Invites Labor Party Chief to 'Big 3' Parley

LONDON, June 14 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, hailing a "marked improvement" in relations with Russia and continued "complete accord" with the United States, took steps today to place Britain's foreign policy on a solid nonpartisan basis for the "Big Three" meeting expected in July.

In perhaps his valedictory address on the eve of disolution of the longest lived parliament in 300 years, he informed commons he had invited Labor party leader Clement R. Attlee to accompany him to the conference, which he said would be held "before the results of the impending election . . . are announced." The date for the election announcement has been set for July 26.

Hopes for French Accord

Churchill also offered hope for a break in the British-French stalemate on the Levant crisis, telling a cheering commons: "I am Glad to hear that [former Premier Edouard] Herriot is said to be coming over here on behalf of Gen. de Gaulle."

[In Paris Gen. de Gaulle's headquarters said no emissary would go to London "at this time," and said nothing was known of a mission by Herriot. Herriot, interviewed in Lyon last night, said he knew nothing about a trip to see Churchill in London and added, "I am still waiting to hear details of the mission which Gen. de Gaulle is entrusting to me."]

In plain words the prime minister explained his reason for the Attlee invitation—"in case any one says 'are you committing yourself to something for which you have no authority, or in case [that] in the ballot box there lies something which strips you or your authority?'"

This would appear to place the date for the "Big Three" meeting sometime between July 5, when Britain will hold its first general election in 10 years, and the July 26 announcement of the result, when the service ballot will have been counted.

Outlines Foreign Relations

The prime minister said, as did President Truman yesterday, that he could not say where or exactly when the conference would occur. The British press thought it likely the locale would be Germany. The Finnish radio, quoting roundabout reports, said preparations for the session already were underway in Copenhagen.

Churchill touched briefly on British relations with France, Poland, and Yugoslavia.

"Our relations with France . . . have been greatly distressed and disturbed by the events in Syria," he said. "I should like to take the opportunity of saying once again that the British have no hopes or desires for aggrandisement in Syria.

"We have no wish to steal our friends' property in any portion of the globe . . . we are very glad if France can manage herself in the discussions with the Syrians and the Lebanese and arrive at satisfactory terms, and we have said that the moment a treaty has been reached we will withdraw our troops from the country."

The dispute with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia over occupation of the Trieste area, he said, had been "settled diplomatically in such a way as has given full satisfaction to the views of the British and American governments and has at the same time left the whole question of the disposition of these territories open to the peace conference, whenever that occurs."

4 CHICAGOLAND FLYERS HELP TO ROUT JAP FLEET

Torpedoes Launched in Night Attack

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—A night torpedo attack is the most difficult of all carrier operations, and the five pilots, four of them from Chicagoland, hadn't been trained specifically for this dangerous work.

But they volunteered—and protected the newly won beachhead on Okinawa. The navy said today the pilots were members of carrier air group 23.

Based aboard a light, fast carrier of the Independence [converted cruiser] class, the group has just returned to the United States after a four months tour of combat.

Task Force Sighted

On the evening of April 1, Okinawa D-day, word was received that a Japanese task force, made up of a light cruiser, two destroyer escorts, and five crowded landing ships, had been sighted moving from Kyushu, southernmost of the enemy home islands, toward Okinawa.

Volunteers were requested for a night torpedo attack. Protected by fighters from another carrier and piloting Avenger torpedo bombers, the five took off shortly before midnight and flew 136 miles to meet the enemy force.

Bore Thru Flak

As they started a coördinated attack, anti-aircraft fire from the enemy ships was intense. Altho specific targets were hard to find in the darkness, the Avengers bore down thru the intense flak to drop their torpedoes.

In the explosions which followed, a destroyer or a large destroyer escort was seen to go down. Another torpedo struck the cruiser, and the Japanese force turned and headed for Amami O Shima, where other carrier planes polished off the remnants of the force the following day.

POLES LOST 24 WARSHIPS

LONDON, June 14 [Reuters]—Total losses of the Polish navy during the war against Germany were 24 ships, Polish headquarters announced tonight. They included one cruiser, four destroyers, two submarines, one minelayer, eight minesweepers, and eight auxiliary vessels.

Lesson Given

A solemn and colorful flag burning ceremony, in which two tattered Stars and Stripes which had flown over the graves of service men were respectfully destroyed, highlighted the annual Flag day observance of the Cook County council of the American Legion and the Sidney D. Anderson post No. 830 last evening at the Congrees st. plaza. It was pointed out that this is the only proper way to destroy flags that have become tattered and worn.

Taking part in the program were the national championship drum and bugle corps of the Commonwealth Edison post, No. 118, and the Cook County Color guard. Elliodor Libonati, department Americanism chairman, was master of ceremonies, and James P. Ringley, past commander of the Department of Illinois, American Legion, was the principal speaker.

In another Flag day observance two large American flags were presented to the army and navy by the State Street council yesterday afternoon at State and Madison sts. Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, wife of the mayor, presented the flags to Maj. Gen. David McCoach Jr., commanding general of the 6th service command, and Rear Adm. Osborne B. Hardison, chief of naval air primary training.

FINE YANK WHO FLEW 2 WOMEN IN ARMY PLANE

LONDON, June 14 (AP)—Lt. Col. Glen Myer of the American troop carrier forces was fined $1,200 last night by an army court martial on charges of transporting two titled English women to Brussels last November in an army plane. Myer pleaded guilty to violating regulations.

His passengers, Cecilia Johnstone and her sister, Diana Dixon, were fined $240 each by an English court last January on charges of breaking defense regulations. They did not appear at the court martial.

Wife Tower Not in Doghouse

PARIS, June 14 (AP)—Lt. Jean Goppert of Edna, Tex., 9th air force troop carrier command pilot, is not in the army's doghouse for towing his British bride to France in a glider. At troop carrier command headquarters it was stated that Goppert has participated in all of his outfit's operations since the incident in mid-May and is soon to return to the United States with enough points for a discharge.

NEW PROBLEMS PUT OFF PARLEY END TO JUNE 23

for independence for colonies into the final plenary session of the conference, if necessary, that brought about the revision of the trusteeship chapter.

While not mentioning the word independence, which was vetoed by the colonial powers—Great Britain, France, and the Netherlands, the revised statement of general policy guarantees the opportunity of dependent peoples to realize eventual freedom from rule by another nation.

Stassen Seeks Compromise

Comdr. Stassen of the American delegation, who is in charge of the framing of the provisions for placing conquered and colonial territories under trusteeships on the new league nations, has been walking a tight rope on this issue between British Dominions Secretary Cranborne and Gen. Romulo. He has been trying to hit upon phraseology that would mean "independence" to Romulo and would not mean "independence" necessarily to Cranborne. He thinks he has succeeded at last. He was hopefully submitting the revised declaration to both sides tonight.

This is the only important part of the trusteeship chapter upon which final agreement has not been reached. It is known as section A and is confined to a statement of general policy. Section B, which sets up the trusteeship machinery has been completed and approved by the trusteeship committee.

Vexing from Start

It is Section B which contains the provisions under which the United States will be able to retain sovereign possession of the Pacific islands wrested from the Japanese unless and until congress shall decide to commit any of them or any parts of them to a league trusteeship, in which event the United States would become the trustee. Some of the islands might be placed in trusteeship and some annexed to the United States for use as military bases in the American defense system.

The independence issue has vexed the conference from the start. The Russians demanded the inclusion of independence among the political objectives of the peace league for dependent peoples. The Russians have no colonies but agitation for independence goes hand in hand with Soviet proselyting of world revolution in the colonies of other powers. The Chinese, who have no colonies but have a large communist element in their country and who have manifested sympathy for the Indian nationalists, offered the independence amendment to the trusteeship chapter.

This proved very painful to the British.

Finally, however, the British yielded to the extent of agreeing to the inclusion of independence among the objectives for peoples placed under trusteeships. The guarantee still would not apply to the British, French, and Dutch colonies unless they should be committed to trusteeships by the colonial powers. The Chinese were satisfied and withdrew their amendment from Section A relating to colonies.

But Gen. Romulo was not satisfied. He made a fiery speech in committee, demanding an independence pledge for colonies as well as trust territories and he served notice that he would carry his fight, if necessary, to the floor.

CLAYTON DENIES U. S. IS PLAYING 'SANTA CLAUS'

New York, June 14 [Special]—The foreign economic policy of the state department revolves around the conception of an expanded world economy and free and equal access for all nations to the trade and raw materials of the world, Will Clayton, assistant secretary of state, told the United States Associates of the International Chamber of Commerce.

Earlier in the day the United States Associates was formed to represent American industry, finance, and commerce in the international chamber, which is to be revived with a meeting in London Aug. 13. Philip D. Reed, chairman of the General Electric company, is chairman of the United States Associates.

Clayton declared there is no "Santa Claus" philosophy in the state department. "The United States will be one of its principal beneficiaries," he said. "We can not stand still. The world is moving too fast for that now."

REDS TO PLACE 16 ARRESTED POLES ON TRIAL

Announcement Made on Eve of Parley

LONDON, June 14 (AP)—Russia announced tonight that 16 Polish leaders would be tried within the next few days for "terroristic acts of diversion" behind Red army lines.

Jan Jankowski

The announcement came on the eve of a conference scheduled to open in the Russian capital tomorrow among representatives of the "Big Three" and various Polish factions for the purpose of organizing a broader based Polish provisional government.

At least one of the Poles invited to the meeting, former Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, a leader of the Peasant party, had been reported by the British press to be prepared to demand the release of the 16 accused Poles as a condition to participating in the parley.

Russia announced on May 6 that she had arrested the Polish leaders, creating a storm in international relations and leading to a breakdown in "Big Three" negotiations on broadening the Polish government.

Four Are Identified.

Moscow for the first time identified four of the arrested group in tonight's broadcast announcement:

They were Jan Jankowski, vice premier of the London Polish government in exile; Gen. Bronislaw Okulicki, former Polish underground army leader; Stanislaw Jasiukowicz, former parliament National party representative, and Adam Bien, Peasant party member and former Warsaw judge.

Soon after announcement of the arrests early last month Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain characterized the group as "nearly all the leading figures of the Polish underground movement." Many of the 16 seized, he said, were persons the British thought should be included in a new, democratic Polish government.

Tonight's Russian announcement said:

"As is already known from a Tass [news agency] announcement of May 6, the military authorities of the soviet front arrested a group of Poles, headed by Gen. Okulicki, accused in organizing terrorist and diversional activities and of being in possession of illegal radio transmitters in the rear of soviet troops on Polish territory.

Trial in Few Days

"At present the investigation of this case by the chief of the military prosecuting magistracy has been completed.

"The persons to be tried are Okulicki, Jankowski, Bien, Jasiukowicz, and others, in all 16 persons. The case has been directed for examination to the military collegium of the Supreme court of justice of the U. S. S. R. The trial is expected to take place in a few days."

Only a few hours before the Moscow broadcast, Prime Minister Churchill had brought cheers in the house of commons with the assertion that "our relations with Russia have undergone marked improvement in the last week or so, because one difficult matter connected with Poland has already been settled." Churchill was referring to the invitation to Polish leaders to visit Moscow.

Unofficial quarters here saw indications, however, that the British had been tipped off that the trial of the 16 was imminent. A foreign office spokesman had for several days urged caution in connection with Moscow dispatches that settlement of the Polish issue was imminent.

An effort tonight to reach former Premier Mikolajzyk for comment was unsuccessful. His London office said he was not there. A dispatch from Moscow said he was expected to reach the Russian capital today for the conference, but had been delayed.

The delegation from the soviet-backed Warsaw provisional government reached Moscow yesterday and was given an official welcome at Moscow airport.

GRANT POLAND FREE ELECTION, AUTHOR URGES

The best chance for the solution of the Polish problem lies in a free election in Poland under the supervision of an inter-allied commission, not in a "Big Three" conference from which every member of Poland's only legal government is excluded, Dr. Oscar Halecki, Polish educator and author now living in New York City, said in an interview here yesterday.

"Some honest and decent people have been invited to the Moscow conference," he said, "but if a few good men were added to the Lublin group the problem of Poland would by no means be completely solved. I'm afraid that these new men would either have to sit quietly and see other elements rule or they would run the risk of being liquidated in some way or other."

Dr. Halecki was alluding to the conference scheduled to open in Moscow today in which representatives of the United States, Great Britain, and Russia will meet with representatives of the soviet sponsored Polish provisional government [originally the Lublin group] and with democratic Polish leaders to try to broaden the base of the provisional government in accordance with the terms of the Yalta agreement.

OFFER OF MORE SELF-RULE WINS BACKING IN INDIA

BY E. R. NODERER
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 14—The British government plan to break the political deadlock in India by releasing eight members of the Congress party's working committee from jail and offering to "Indianize" the viceroy's executive council was approved both by Conservative and Labor party spokesmen in the house of commons today as an important step toward Indian self-government.

At the same time it was reported here that Indian industrialists backing the Congress party are urging acceptance of the plan and that Mohandas Gandhi has agreed to meet Viceroy Wavell and other Indian leaders probably June 25 at Simla to discuss reconstitution of the executive council and submit a list of names of proposed new members.

Viceroy's Power Untouched

Secretary for India L. S. Amery, outlining the plan in commons, however, indicated that responsibility for selecting members of the council would continue to rest with the viceroy, whose freedom of choice would remain unrestricted. Amery also declared that there could be no question of doing away with the existing power of the viceroy to overrule the majority view of his council but pointed out that he is responsible to parliament if he exercised the power.

If the new plan is accepted, Amery said, all members of the executive will be Indians with the exception of the viceroy and the commander in chief, who would retain his position as war member. This would mean that not only the home and finance departments but also external affairs, hitherto reserved to the viceroy personally, would be transferred to the Indians.

Plan Representation Abroad

Fully accredited representatives of India would be posted abroad, thus enhancing the country's international status. The government also proposed to appoint a British high commissioner to India to represent British interests. Under present conditions, Amery explained, there is a possibility of the viceroy being placed in the dual position of being concerned as the head of India's government, with the defense of Indian interests, and at the same time representing sepcific British economic interests.

The proposed reconstitution of the viceroy's council, Amery said, would give a balanced representation of the main communities, including equal proportions of Moslems and Hindus.

The members of the council, he added, must wholeheartedly cooperate in support of the war against Japan.

Dominion Offer Holds

Amery made it clear that the plan did not interfere with the main constitutional position of India and that the March, 1942, offer of dominion status sometime after the war still holds. He said that the government still hoped that Indian political leaders might agree on a procedure whereby India's permanent future form of government can be determined.

Besides Gandhi and Mohamed A. Jinnah, leader of the Moslem league, Indian leaders invited to the similar conference include premiers of the provincial governments, representatives o fthe Congress party, the Moslem league, scheduled castes, and the Sikhs.

Amery stressed that as far as the British government is concerned the present offer "is the utmost we can do pending Indian agreement upon a final constitutional settlement."

None of the speakers in commons criticized the government's plan, which Clement Attlee, the Labor leader, said represented the only practical line of advance at present.

Laborite Stafford Cripps, who in 1942 went to India in behalf of the British government in an attempt to end the constitutional deadlock, wholeheartedly welcomed the proposals in a speech at Edinburgh, Scotland.

BLACK MARKET YANKS TO FIGHT IN PACIFIC AREA

PARIS, June 14 (AP)—No matter what their adjusted service rating scores may be, 158 American soldiers convicted in the army's blackmarket scandal in Paris last winter are ticketed for combat duty in the Pacific, it was learned from Seine base section authorities. They were permitted to volunteer for combat duty last March in order to redeem themselves.

Early in March 115 enlisted men who were given long prison terms for blackmarket activities were formed into a special infantry rifle company under Gen. Eisenhower's order modifying sentences for those who volunteered for combat and directing that they make full restitution.

They were sent to the ground forces reinforcement command and after completing training April 19 they were assigned to the 12th army group. Forty-three others who volunteered were absorbed into the infantry as replacements.

3 ARMIES WILL STAY IN EUROPE; 9TH DUE BACK

15th Joins 3d and 7th in Occupation Role

SUPREME HDQRS., Allied Expeditionary Forces, June 14 (AP)—Three American armies—one more than originally planned—will be kept in Germany at least until December, it was learned authoritatively today.

These armies are the 3d, 7th, and 15th. The 9th army will be returned to the United States in July, or shortly thereafter.

[Gen. Patton, commander of the 3d army, will return to Europe from the United States to resume his command, it was announced in Washington. Gen. Clark, commander of allied ground forces in the Mediterranean, will return to his post soon.]

A highly placed source said that if the situation changed by the end of 1945 to a point where it was not necessary to keep three armies in the occupied zone, the 15th army would be sent back to the United States for possible transfer to the Pacific.

3d and 7th to Remain

The 3d and 7th armies, which are to stay as long as the American zone of Germany is occupied, will include the 400,000 men originally selected for occupation duties.

Working to get as many trained soldiers as possible to the Pacific as quickly as possible, while leaving enough in Germany, the high command is now transferring divisions around in all American armies in Europe.

In the next few months, some 2,500,000 troops will pass thru 17 redeployment centers of the assembly area command, en route to the Pacific, the United States, or the army of occupation.

Supreme headquarters announced that thousands of American troops, comprising more than 60 service force units, have arrived at assembly area command camps in northeastern France for direct routing to the Pacific as the vanguard of one of history's largest military movements.

These service forces will be followed shortly by the 2d, 5th, and 87th infantry, and 13th armored divisions—all under the 3d army when victory came—and by the 44th infantry division, all of which will be routed to the Pacific by way of the United States.

Nine Divisions for Pacific

The announcement of these five divisions today brought to nine the total of divisions definitely earmarked for Pacific duty after stopovers in the United States. The 97th and the 86th already are en route, and the 95th and the 104th will leave soon.

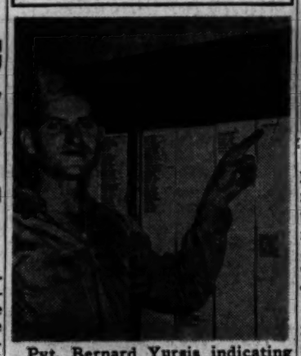
The 5th division, first American infantry outfit to arrive overseas in this war, will move into Camp St. Louis, near Mourmelon, on June 19. The other four divisions will arrive in the redeployment staging area between June 18 and 20.

Maj. Gen. Royal B. Lord, commander of the assembly area, said every man would be moved out as quickly as transportation permitted.

Monty Relaxes British Bans on Fraternization

IN GERMANY, June 14 (AP)—Field Marshal Montgomery gave troops of his command permission today to "speak to and play with little children," but affirmed the general policy of nonfraternization with the Germans. Gen. Eisenhower, supreme commander, issued a similar order last week.

Back from Dead



Pvt. Bernard Yursis indicating gold star listing on school's honor roll yesterday.

On the bulletin board at Morgan Park High school listing names of former students in service appears the name of Pvt. Bernard Yursis, 25, 10657 St. Louis av. A gold star stands beside the name.

Students and teachers at the school got a start yesterday when they saw Pvt. Yursis, or his exact twin, studying the bulletin board. It turned out that Pvt. Yursis, reported dead, had been a German prisoner for 27 months. The gold star will be removed.

"I was captured during the fight for Kasserine Pass in Africa," Pvt. Yursis said, "but apparently the Germans neglected to notify my friends."

The army private was a prisoner at the camp near Danzig. Treatment there, he said, was fair.

PUBLISHER ASKS STANDING ARMY AND HUGE FLEET

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—Eugene C. Pulliam, publisher of the Indianapolis Star and other Indiana newspapers, proposed today that the United States, instead of resorting to compulsory military training in peace time, maintain a standing army of at least one million men and that it retain its fleet and air forces at full strength. Pulliam testified before the house committee on post-war military policy, which has been hearing testimony on the subject for nearly two weeks.

Pulliam called conscription "something like a military WPA." He added:

"Germany, Italy, and Japan had it. We know what happened to them. The United States, Great Britain, Russia and China did not have it—and we are winning."

Douglas Southall Freeman, historian and editor of the Richmond, Va., News Leader, testified that "compulsory military service, properly administered, has proved to be the surest, most democratic and most economic system of essential national defense."

Dunlap C. Clark, spokesman for the United States Chamber of Commerce, advocated a continuous 12 months' training period. He said the annual cost "of maintaining say, 1,000,000 young men training, would be far less than that of the alternative necessary standing army and navy of several million men."

STORK DELIVERS 4 WILDEBEESTS TO BROOKFIELD

Four wildebeests—African antelopes which used to be billed in the circus as horned horses—were born at the Brookfield zoo yesterday.

The wildebeest herd at the zoo now numbers 12 animals, Edward Bean, director, said. The original pair of animals acquired in 1935 have had 25 offspring, some of which have been sold to other zoos.

The price of the wildebeest used to be about $600 each, Bean said, but overproduction at Brookfield has reduced the price to $150 apiece. Three of the new arrivals are males. The female is to be called Bessie.

REPORT 8 KILLED IN PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD WRECK

Williamsport, Pa., June 15 [Friday]—(AP)—Two crewmen and at least six passengers were killed early today when an engine and five cars of a Pennsylvania railroad westbound Washington-Buffalo passenger train were derailed at nearby Milton, Pa., a spokesman for the Williamsport division of the railroad said.

An undetermined number of persons were injured.

DID YANKS LACK BLUEPRINT, WIN BY IMPROVISING?

The military campaign thru France and Germany after the Normandy invasion appeared at times to operate on the basis of opportunity rather than under the guidance of an over-all master plan, John Thompson, a war correspondent of THE TRIBUNE, declared last night.

Thompson spoke before consistory members in the Scottish Rite consistory cathedral, 935 N. Dearborn st. He recently returned from an assignment with the famous 1st army in Europe. In his address, he discussed high military personalities and campaigns.

"It always has been a question, in my mind at least, whether after the invasion of Normandy, there was an over-all master allied plan," the correspondent said. "Obviously the plan was to invade Europe and destroy the German military machine, thereby winning the war.

Air Force's Goal Definite

"But was there a definite concept of strategy on the ground? I say on the ground because the air force set out deliberately to smash German oil production, railroad communication centers, and other industrial targets, thereby throttling the nazi war machine.

"But as far as the strategy of our ground forces goes, it often has seemed as if we operated, very flexibly, on the basis of opportunity. After all, this, if it is true, well may have been the best way to conduct the war."

Thompson told of an incident in which American army commanders were overruled by the British general, Montgomery, on a plan of attack, but while losing their argument, won the attack anyhow.

Ground Troops Take Towns

"Montgomery wanted British and American air borne divisions to come down on certain key road junctions in France," Thompson said.

"The American ground divisions just shot ahead, swept out into the open, and the 1st army proceeded to capture the towns which had been selected for the air borne boys."

Thompson told of his impressions of the big generals. Eisenhower, he said, had the most difficult job of all, and "left the imprint of his character on the continental campaign as few commanders could do."

He described Gen. Patton as a controversial figure, aggressive, and seldom, if ever, afraid of a gamble. He pictured Gen. Hodges, commander of the 1st army, as unspectacular, but always Gen. Eisenhower's "steady ace in the hole." In Thompson's opinion, Gen. Bradley ranks as the greatest of our field commanders.

Praises Chicago General

Thompson said that Maj. Gen. Manton S. Eddy of Chicago "had the battle know-how which saved lives and won objectives," and was beloved by his men. Another great corps commander, he said, was Maj. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, known as "Fighting Joe."

Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner was another fine corps commander, Thompson said, as were Maj. Generals Terence De La Messa Allen, Maurice Rose, and Ernest J. Harmon. Rose was killed in action.

REVEAL THE 'QUEENS' CARRIED 1,243,538 ACROSS DURING WAR

LONDON, June 14 [Reuters]—The two British crack liners, Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, carried 1,243,538 passengers across the Atlantic during the war, a British white paper on "the war time financial arrangements with British shipowners" revealed today.

Of this number, 869,694 — mainly United States and Canadian soldiers—made the east-west crossing to the European theater while 374,844 were carried from Britain to the United States and Canada.

HEAVY RAINS BREAK DROUGHT IN MADRID AREA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MADRID, Spain, June 14—Heavy rain in the Madrid area last night broke a prolonged drouth that threatened to leave the Spanish capital prey to an epidemic. The shortage is so acute that the water service is shut off at night. Owing to the lack of water power, electricity is cut off entirely for two days each week, leaving inside rooms, shops, and offices in darkness, and elevators are stoped even in 15 story skyscrapers. The only current permitted is that necessary to operate street cars and telephones. Radios are silenced.

PATTON PEPS UP WOUNDED WITH PATS ON BACK

Spreads Cheer in 2 Hour Tour of Hospital

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—Gen. Patton marched into Walter Reed hospital today and took charge for about two hours as if it were another command post.

With a cavalryman's crop under his arm but minus his six guns, Gen. Patton, who once slapped a soldier in a Sicilian hospital, patted injured veterans on the back, shook their hands, and made pep talks.

As long as any of the wounded were around, the commander of the United States 3d army carried his air of cheer and encouragement thru various wards and speaking over the army medical center's radio system. Later without the audience he remarked, "This tears the hell out of me."

Rubs Officers' Hair

The first veteran with whom the 59 year old general shook hands, Lt. Lloyd Golby, South Orange, N. J., a third army man injured at Brancheid, Germany, appeared to get the biggest kick out of seeing the general.

As Golby sat in a wheelchair Patton rubbed the officer's short cropped hair. When the general walked away Golby grinned and said, "I was going to wash this stuff but now I think I'll just dress it down."

Earlier, at a press conference Patton said the army had "900 immortal heroes" in Sicily who rode jackasses, bulls, and anything else that resembled a horse. The bizarre outfit was formed, he explained, because the army had no regular calvalry there — and cavalry comes in handy.

"Immortal" on a Jackass

The general, an old line cavalryman, told of meeting one of the "immortal heroes"—an officer—astride a jackass which had been saddled on the withers. The officer wanted to salute and thought regulations required that he halt the jackass.

When the jackass stopped, the animal lowered its head and the officer toppled over on its neck.

"Does that happen often?" Patton said he asked.

"Every time I stop," was the reply.

Patton said he asked the officer where he had learned to saddle a horse and the officer replied that he never had saddled one—in fact, the only animal he had ever ridden was an elephant.

"And you ride on the elephant's head," Patton quoted the officer as saying.

Patton termed the Sherman tank "one of the greatest killing machines ever made" and praised the new Pershing tank.

The Pershing tank, he said, is capable of swapping punches "with anything ever built."

Visits Son-in-Law

GEN. J. T. PIERCE TAKES HELM AT FORT SHERIDAN

Brig. Gen. John T. Pierce, assistant commander of the 103d infantry division from August, 1942, until he left it in Innsbruck, Austria, June 5, yesterday assumed command at Fort Sheridan.

He has passed most of his 29 years of service in the cavalry. He landed with the 103d division at Marseille, France, in September, 1944. His division served in the Vosges mountains of France, protected the right flank of the 3d army in the battle of the Belgian bulge, moved thru the Siegfried line, crossed the Rhine and Danube rivers, and sped thru Brenner pass to affect a junction with the 5th army.

The general and his wife, their daughter, and their grandson will live at Fort Sheridan.

MILLION CHEER IKE AS FRANCE PAYS TRIBUTE

BY DAVID DARRAH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, June 14—Gen. Eisenhower today received official honors from the government of France and the spontaneous acclaim of a million Parisians.

The supreme commander of the allied armies was presented by Gen. de Gaulle with the sword which Napoleon Bonaparte wore as first consul. Earlier, De Gaulle had pinned the cross of liberation, highest French decoration, on Eisenhower's uniform at the Arc de Triomphe before massed troops and enormous crowds which filled the entire upper end of the Champs Elysee.

Eisenhower was hailed as a liberator as he rode thru jammed streets from the Arc de Triomphe to the Paris city hall.

"Berlin Is Destroyed"

In a broad middle western accent he told those who managed to crowd into the elaboratedly decorated building:

"Paris has suffered. We understand that. I have something to tell you if you, like Americans, have a touch of vengeance in your hearts: Berlin is destroyed."

"One of Hitler's miscalculations which led to the destruction of Germany," he said, "was that he did not defeat France when he thought he had."

Tribute to Underground

In tribute to the resistance forces, he added, "you fought with guile, with the pen, with laughter and ridicule—and with the dagger."

Responding to De Gaulle's toast at an official dinner tonight, Eisenhower said:

"One way or another America owes a debt of sentiment or some other kind of debt to every nation in Europe. There is the blood of every nation in Europe in America.

"I hope America will be friendly with every nation in Europe. If I ever have to be hanged I hope I will be executed for being too friendly."

In decorating Eisenhower at the Arc de Triomphe, De Gaulle told him: "We recognize you as our companion in the liberation of France and in its honor and in the victory."

The group then walked to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier where Eisenhower placed a wreath with a large red V below the eternal flame.

Eisenhower's triumphal reception today followed two days after he had become a freeman of the city of London. Tomorrow he will fly home for honors from his own people.

GERMAN FARMER PULLING THRU, YANK REPORTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 14—Harold D. Cooley [D., N. C.] and Harold H. Earthman [D., Tenn.], United States representatives who are touring Europe to study the food situation, arrived in Copenhagen today. Members of a house subcommittee, they have visited the American zone in Germany.

"My impression," said Cooley, "was that the German farmers realized that Germany must depend upon herself. The harvest apparently will be sufficient to support the German population. The transport situation is serious unless help can be obtained from the allies.

"Affairs in France are different. The French farmers are bewildered and without confidence in their government. They do not seem to realize that liberation means more work. The transport problem is not less serious than Germany's. Six hundred thousand horses requisitioned by the Germans have not been traced."

Schwellenbach Doubts That He Has Much Sense

Yakima, Wash., June 14 (AP)—Federal Judge Lewis B. Schwellenbach, who will become secretary of labor July 1, was a model of modesty at a banquet in his honor. "I cannot understand," he said, "why any one would want to hear a person speak who has no more sense than to go to Washington, D. C., in these times."

SENATE GROUP VOTES MODIFIED RADIO LIBEL BILL

'Malice' Made Essential in Late Change

BY GEORGE TAGGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 14—Employing the unusual device of an executive session, the senate judiciary committee today voted to recommend for passage a modified radio libel bill. The bill in its original form is on second reading in the house.

After hearing brief talks by radio attorneys on disputed details, the committee went into closed session. It was the first time during the 64th general assembly any committee has so acted.

"Malice" Made Essential

Sen. Downing said he will offer an amendment on the senate floor to remove a last-minute change requiring a person taking part in the broadcast of a libel to do so "maliviously and knowingly," to be found guilty. Originally, the bill which is supported by W-G-N of Chicago, sought to place radio under the same libel responsibility as governs the press. Amendments were agreed upon Tuesday with Leslie Johnson of Rock Island, spokesman for 16 downstate stations, to eliminate liability in cases where operators had "no advance knowledge or opportunity or right to prevent" a libel. Another agreed change exempts speeches by political candidates from the radio libel responsibility.

Chicago stations, except W-G-N, attempted to go much farther in protecting radio utterances from libel penalties.

Rips Malice Provision

Andrew C. Hamilton, lawyer for W-G-N, said that requiring proof of "malice" would lessen the protection given to the public.

"This bill would create a crime in a new field, and treat radio like newspapers," said William Friedman for the opponents of the bill. "Don't forget that a newspaper doesn't need a government license which it may lose. It makes stations absolutely liable and imputes malice of any defamatory utterance."

Atty. Walter Emerson of the American Broadcasting company, speaking particularly for the networks other than Mutual, wanted changes to exempt the parent company for defamatory utterances broadcast over Illinois stations owned by the company, unless the broadcast originated in Illinois. The committee refused to make this amendment.

By amending the press libel law, the bill would make radio libel punishable by the same penalties—a maximum of one year in jail or $500 fine.

Held by FBI on Warrant Charging $30,000 Robbery

The federal bureau of investigation yesterday was holding Anthony De Marco, 60, of New York, on a federal warrant charging participation in the $30,000 robbery of two bank messengers in Middletown, O., on Nov. 26, 1944. De Marco was arrested by Chicago police after he was accused of stealing a bag in the Dearborn station. De Marco will appear before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker for removal proceedings on June 19. Bond was set in a preliminary hearing at $25,000.

PACK RAT SMITH SLAPS GADGET SO PLANE BEHAVES

BY THOMAS MORROW
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

GUAM, June 14—I have heard countless stories in the Pacific about the puttering prowess of Harold P. [Pack Rat] Smith, Chicago Tribune correspondent. Smith has more tools than Okinawa has fleas. Previously, I have expressed mild interest in the stories. But at 3:30 p. m. today, 1,750 feet over Saipan, the mild interest vanished and I seized the job of No. 1 boy in the Smith Tool fan club.

We had been invited to share a plane ride to Saipan. Smith, Lowell Thomas, and I were among the passengers. We were approaching Saipan in the cabin plane when the man in the radio tower answered the pilot's request to land with the laconic announcement: "Your landing gear isn't down." The pilot investigated, discovered the electric gadget that controls the landing gear had failed.

I looked at Smith. He was regarding the wheel lowering thing with the same happy gleam of tenderness I have seen him use on a steak. He approached the gadget, gave it an admonitory slap or two and it wilted like a fresh shirt on Guam. The wheels clicked into place—and we landed. I have borrowed an old tool or two and am going to start practice on something small—perhaps a mosquito.

STUDENT FLYER, INSTRUCTOR DIE IN PLANE CRASH

Two men were killed yesterday when their three seater Piper Cub plane crashed beside the old Illinois-Michigan canal near 127th st. and Route 83, in Palos township.

The victims were Ted Kent, 32, of 1830 N. Kedzie av., a student flyer, and L. N. Thornton, 31, Negro, of 4514 Calumet av., flying instructor.

They took off from the Harlem airport, 87th st. and Harlem av., near Evergreen Park, where Kent had leased the plane, and flew around in that general vicinity. Cause of the accident was not determined. Police were told, however, that the ship went into a spin before crashing.

Baker Accused by Girl, 9, Hangs Himself in Lockup

Ernest A. Meister Jr., 32, of 1008 N. 5th av., Maywood, was found hanged in his cell in the Maywood police station yesterday 10 minutes after his arrest on a charge of taking liberties with a 9 year old girl. Police said Meister admitted his guilt. Meister owned a bakery shop at 1421 S. 5th av., Maywood.

CHARGES UNFIT GIs ASSIGNED TO ATTEND ILL VETS

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—The head of the veterans' hospital told a congressional committee today the army assigned physically unfit soldiers there to attend mental patients.

Col. Louis Verdel

Col. Louis Verdel, the hospital's manager, also testified that two of five army doctors attached to the institution have been on prolonged sick leave—one of them diagnosed as neurotic by army examiners.

The committee went into closed session this afternoon to examine Verdel in private after Chairman Rankin [D., Miss.] of the veterans' committee declared:

"Maybe we'd better investigate the war department. I bitterly resent the war department's attitude toward these veterans' hospitals."

Under Army Regulations

Verdel, in army uniform, asked to be excused from answering questions about the competence of the army doctors sent to his hospital, where 15 soldiers were court martialed recently for abusing patients.

He said he is employed by the veterans' administration but is subject to army regulations and remarked:

"I'm in an embarrassing position here. I'm under two masters and this committee, too."

"If a man is unable to give the facts because he's in uniform maybe we ought to go into executive session and get it," Rankin snapped.

Patients Choked

Verdel said the 15 soldiers were court martialed and several civilian employes fired last winter after incidents were uncovered where patients at the hospital were slapped, choked, and struck by knotted towels. He said there were "some cases of fractures" as a result.

Declaring the institution is in desperate need of trained personnel, he asserted half of the more than 300 soldiers assigned there as attendants are not suited to their jobs.

Many of them resent the assignment, he said, and some are "very definitely neurotic and not suited to be working in a hospital of this type." Sixty of the soldiers are sightless in one eye, he testified.

Verdel said the hospital now has 447 civilian attendants to care for 2,800 patients and declared: "To carry on treatment that we'd like would take at least 600 attendants alone.

"We're not denying that there has been abuse of patients," he said. "There has been. But Northport is not like it has been pictured, as the worst hospital in the service. It is not."

WOMAN REPORTS HOME BURGLARY

Customers Ask...
Why ....DO FANNIE MAY SHOPS STAY OPEN SUCH SHORT HOURS?

When Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch had more guests than her pantry would take care of—she merely added water to the soup!
Our problem is not so easily solved!

Fannie May Candies are made to the same high quality as before Pearl Harbor—and the ingredients are strictly rationed! We won't "add water"—we won't use inferior substitutes—and won't buy ingredients on the Black Market!

Then, too, in our kitchens war conditions have reduced the number of trained chocolate coaters to less than one-half—in fact, reduced all of the trained help so necessary to fine candy making!

You folks who enjoy Fannie May Candy make possible our business—and certainly nothing worries us more than not being able to give you all the candy you want—all day long! But until victory makes that possible, won't you please be patient with our short store hours?

RELIGION CLASS BANNED IN N. Y. COUNTY SCHOOLS

Protest Made by Father of Illinois Objector

Sodus, N. Y., June 14 (AP)—State Education Commissioner George D. Stoddard, president-elect of the University of Illinois, has ordered termination of religious classes "upon school property" in Wayne county towns, Sodus school officials revealed.

The order resulted from a petition filed by Arthur G. Cromwell, president of the Rochester Society of Free Thinkers. Stoddard said his decision was made on a strictly legal basis.

"I have no discretion in the matter," the commissioner commented from Albany.

Law Violation Claimed

Alleging the classes were a "flagrant violation of the state constitution," Cromwell's petition described religion as a "chronic disease" of the imagination contracted in childhood."

An identical phrasing was incorporated in a court action filed Tuesday in Champaign, Ill., by Cromwell's daughter, Mrs. Vashti McCollum, seeking to halt religious education classes in public schools there. Until May 25, she was in instructor at the university.

Classes Defended

Dr. Linwood Myers, Sodus board of education president, maintained here that the schools had been "absolutely in the right." The classes, held by Protestant pastors, were non-denominational, and parents had to give permission for their children to attend. Catholic children were allowed to attend classes in their own church.

In Champaign, Josef Wright, University of Illinois public information director, said Mrs. McCollum last October was given an emergency, temporary four months appointment as a physical education instructor. In the second semester, ended May 25, she taught one class, two hours a week, on an hourly basis but is not now employed by the university, he said.

CAROL BRUCE

Minneapolis, Minn., June 14 (AP)—Actress Carol Bruce, who gave her true name as Shirley Levy, 25, of New York City, and Milton Nathanson, 36, Minneapolis wholesale tobacco company executive, obtained a marriage license today. The two met a week ago when Nathanson saw the act in which Miss Bruce is appearing. They said they planned to be married next Sunday.

FIRST EVANSTON MUSIC FETE TO BEGIN TONIGHT

More than 200 singers, instrumentalists, and pageant performers will take part in the first Evanston Music festival tonight and tomorrow night. It will be held in Cahn auditorium of Scott hall on Northwestern university's campus in Evanston. The performance, a preliminary of THE TRIBUNE'S 16th annual Chicago Music Festival, will open each night at 7:45 o'clock with an organ prelude by Porter Heaps.

Mark Love

The festival is sponsored by the Evanston Girl Scout council and the Evanston Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A feature of tonight's program will be a voice contest between Mrs. Miriam Mills Cousins, 25, of 1315 Monroe st., Evanston, a lyric soprano, and Miss Marilyn Jean Palmer, 20, of Hampton pkwy., Evanston, a mezzo soprano.

Two Competitions for Titles

They won in their voice classification contests Monday night in Lutkin hall and tonight one will be named the "best woman singer" of the festival. Tomorrow night, she will compete against David L. Glissmann, 21, of 562 Lincoln st., Evanston, a bass-baritone, and the victor will be "best singer" of the festival.

One hundred twenty-five Girl Scouts will participate each night in a pageant entitled "Liberty Lane," directed by Mrs. Philip Maxwell and Miss Emily Pribble. The second largest group to be heard will be the Motorola Glee club of more than 60 members, led by Carl Behnke. Mark Love, basso, will be vocal soloist, and Clair Omar Musser will be starred on the marimba.

Comedy Act on Program

A comedy act, "Two Rival Opera Singers and Pianist," will be given by Marie Sidenius Zendt and Lola Fletcher, sopranos, with Rose Du Moulin as accompanist. Community singing will be directed by Frank Bennett, with Cathryn Bennett at the piano. Philip Maxwell, director of The Tribune festival, a resident of Evanston, will be master of ceremonies. The vocal soloist tomorrow night will be Virginia Haskins, coloratura soprano.

Leslie H. York, director of the Evanston festival, will welcome the more than 1,000 guests each night. Net proceeds will be used by the Girl Scouts to purchase a summer camp and by the commerce group for its rehabilitation program for returning veterans.

ACTOR GRANTED DIVORCE

LONDON, June 14 [AP]—A decree nisi was awarded in divorce court today to Derek Capel Farr, film actor. Farr charged adultery to his wife, Carol Lynne, actress. Barnet Vinogradsky, theatrical producer under the name of Bernard Delfont, was listed as co-respondent.

CHUNGKING ORDERS NEW REGULATIONS CURBING JOURNALISTS

CHUNGKING, China, June 14 (AP)—Chinese journalists are forbidden to write anything against the interest of the nation and state under strict rules announced today by the ministries of the interior and social affairs.

The regulations, effective July 1, require the newsmen to join associations directed by organizations of the ministry of social affairs. The associations must adopt resolutions to help propagate the national policies and the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen's three "People's principles of nationalism, democracy, livelihood." The government may overrule any decision of the associations.

The registration of any newsman dismissed from his association will be canceled.

'OUCH!' DOESN'T PAIN EARS, BUT 'SQUEAK' DOES

When you say "Ouch, grandmother, the strawberry!" and your amazed companion asks "What?" it does not mean that he has misunderstood your words but that he is questioning your mental balance.

Dr. Harold Westlake

For "ouch," "grandmother," and "strawberry" rated high in tests of the relative intelligibility of words which were made recently by Dr. Harold Westlake of Northwestern university's speech and hearing clinic, and announced yesterday by the university. Other easy to hear words are "chicken," "oatmeal," "soldier," "triangle," "twenty-five," "lion," "tablecloth," and "dog."

The hardest word to grasp, of all those used in the tests, was "squeak." Others in the difficult to distinguish category were "pans," "spill," "sleeve," "zoo," "stitch," "vase," "cone," and "hook."

The purposes of the experiments were to determine what words would be most useful in training persons with impaired hearing and to select a vocabulary which would furnish a fair test of hearing devices.

In the tests, a word was spoken into a microphone over and over again with a constantly rising volume until the student participating in the experiment, who was seated in a soundproof room, could understand it. It was found, for example, that "squeak" generally required nearly three times the volume of "strawberry" before it was understood. More than 25 students took part in the tests.

PHONE OFFICIAL HUNTED; COAT FOUND ON BEACH

Police and coastguardsmen yesterday were searching for Everett E. Friganza, 52, news service manager of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, whose suit coat and wallet were found on the Foster av. beach.

E. E. Friganza

Friganza has been on sick leave for three weeks. He was last seen at his residence at the Lake Shore club, 850 Lake Shore dr., Wednesday morning.

Police were summonded to the beach about 5 a. m. yesterday by Seaman James Anthony of Great Lakes and Darlene Rogers, 5104 Sheridan rd. They reported seeing a man climbing the breakwater rocks and later finding the coat. In the coat police found newspaper clippings relating to a separate maintenance suit filed recently by Mrs. Evelyn Friganza, who charged her husband had deserted her in March, 1942, after 25 years of marriage.

Her attorney, M. T. Gruener, said Friganza had been evading service of a court order which ordered him to pay $200 a month temporary support.

GOVERNOR ASKS PASSAGE OF HIS TAX MEASURES

Acts After Clark Lowers Valuation Basis

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

Gov. Green at Springfield yesterday urged that the state legislature adopt the Butler bills designed to create uniformity of tax assessment valuations thruout the state.

His statement followed the announcement Wednesday of Cook county's assessor, John S. Clark, that county assessment valuations would be reduced from 100 per cent to 20 per cent. The new Clark formula, if carried thru with an actual certification of the 20 per cent ratio, would create bonding and taxing problems that some local taxing bodies might find impossible of solution.

The governor said such a policy would greatly aggravate tax discrimination, and that Clark's promised action showed even one assessor could throw the state's machinery "into chaos" under present law.

Green Praises Butler Bills

He added that the assessment bills represented long study by a legislative committee headed by Sen. Butler [R., Chicago] and offered the best solution of the need for uniform property valuations. They empower the state department of revenue to equalize assessment valuations within each county and over the entire state.

Clark, advocate of such a system, acted because the revenue committee of the house had not reported the bills out for a vote. Their defeat is not yet certain. Rep. Cutler [R., Lewistown] will try to bring them up for passage in the house next Monday.

Sen. Butler asserted that the "men who are fighting the bills will be begging for a special session" unless they pass. Cutler also took this view. State Revenue Director Collins said that a 20 per cent ratio in Cook county, instead of full value, would result in railroads paying about 8 million dollars more in this county, with a corresponding loss to downstate counties.

Two important organizations, the Illinois Agricultural association and the Illinois Manufacturers association, reiterated their determination to fight against the Butler bills, which the senate already has passed, holding that the state revenue department would have too great power.

Chicago Schools in Peril

In Chicago, the effect of the slash in valuations might make it necessary to close the schools in 1946, said Alfred P. Bolt, auditor of the board of education. The board's educational fund has a 53 million dollar pegged levy that runs out this year. Bolt said that with a 20 per cent valuation the maximum possible levy of the fund would be only 15 millions.

Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, said the reduction would compel the county to "shut up shop." Instead of a corporate levy of more than 14 millions, as last year, the maximum would not be much over 3 millions, he explained.

Bonding Power Cut

The city of Chicago and the sanitary and park districts will have revenues to operate, because they have pegged levies in definite amounts. Their bonding power would, however, be sharply cut.

Aldermen were unwilling to discuss the matter in the absence of Mayor Kelly, who is out of town. The mayor has been in favor of the bills, but Clark accused him and the governor of being "in the arms of Morpheus" in regard to the Butler bills.

Real estate and other interests were in general unwilling to comment on Clark's announcement until the situation is cleared.

Midwest A. C. Ordered to Repay Tenants $3,862

DAY by DAY on the FARM by GAIL COMPTON

June 14, 1945

ABOUT two months ago, the herdsman of the Wheaton farm noted that one of the cows in the Aberdeen-Angus breeding herd was getting thin, while the others were waxing fat on their pasture. He watched the cow closely. As time passed, the animal grew gaunter and seemed content to stand in one spot. It grazed little. Finally, the condition of the animal became such that death appeared only a matter of time.

The herdsman sent the cow to the Omaha Packing company with instructions to inspect the animal carefully when it was slaughtered. Government inspectors took one look at the lungs of the animal in the packing house and condemned the entire carcass. The animal had pneumonia.

Cow Goes Into Soap

The cow, which weighed only 550 pounds when slaughtered, will be made into soap. Thus, one of these days it will show up in a cake in somebody's bathtub.

With the end of corn planting, the men at the Fox river farm devoted a moment of silent thanks to the four row corn planter. This machine had just finished its 16th year of service; it had planted approximately 5,000 acres of corn. The planter was the main character in the record set a few weeks ago when the manager planted 60 acres to corn in one day.

A Long Farm Day

The day was a bit long in that he started at 5:20 a. m. and rolled steadily until 9 p. m. Lunch was eaten on the tractor. Part of the success of this outstanding job is due to the fact the rows were around 240 rods long, so little time was wasted turning around at the ends.

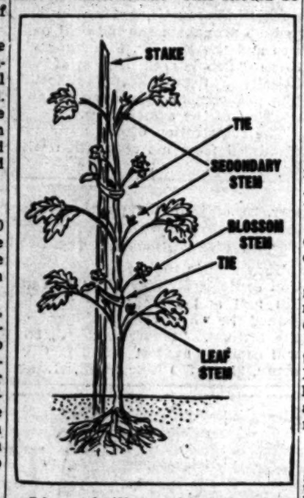
In January, 1944, the manager at the Fox river farm ordered a car load of phosphate for his fields. The car arrived this week. This is typical of the delays the farmer has had to cope with during the war; such things add to the difficulties of his job.

The phosphate, which is in sacks, will be stored in the barn until there is time to spread it. The manager is debating whether to put it on his alfalfa fields after the first cutting is off, or to save it for the new hay fields that will be coming along after the oats have been harvested. He plans to spread about 500 pounds to the acre.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS who stake tomato plants must prune and tie the plants to control the growth and assure an early harvest. The following pruning and tying practices are followed in the sample gardens on the Wheaton farm:

1. All secondary leaf growth [that which emerges at joints between the main stem and leaf stems] is removed when small. This should be done weekly. These small "suckers" are easily pinched off with the fingers.



Sketch illustrating secondary growth of tomatoes for pruning.

2. The main central stem should be tied to the stake as soon as the plants are established. No wires or fine cords should be used for the tying because of the danger of cutting the stems. Rags torn to one inch widths make ideal ties. These should be placed loosely around the stem, tightly around the stake, and should be attached just beneath each blossom cluster.

FIND DICKENSON FURNITURE; CALL THREE TO COURT

Three attaches of the Denzer Art galleries, 1302 N. Clark st., were cited by Probate Judge Martin C. Decker of Lake county to appear in court at Waukegan, June 25, after $1,000 worth of furniture in the estate of the late Augustus E. Dickenson was found in the galleries.

Atty. James G. Culbertson, for the Northern Trust company, and Dickenson's adopted daughter, Mrs. Edwina Hyland of Flossmoor, asked the citation of Ruth and Helen Denzer and H. A. Sturdevant of the galleries. The furniture was found with a Municipal court writ of replevin.

Culbertson originally told the court that some $6,000 worth of furniture and art objects disappeared from the Dickenson home on Green Acres farm, near Barrington, while the wealthy retired president of the Indiana Limestone company lay dying in Presbyterian hospital, Chicago. Dickenson died May 30.

Those connected with the art galleries were cited, it was said, merely to explain how the furniture came into their possession.

Next Monday at 2 p. m., explanations will be heard from Maude Forbes Dickenson, divorced wife, her daughter, Betty, and Anthony and Bertha Moran, chauffeur and maid, now living on the farm.

HERE'S MAN WHO MADE THAT BIG LOAN TO ELLIOTT

He Shunned Prominence Until Chain Tax Fight

New York, June 14 [Special]—John A. Hartford, whose loan of $200,000 to Elliott Roosevelt in March, 1939, and subsequent settlement of the debt in 1942 for $4,000 has brought him to public attention, is a man who assiduously shunned the spotlight thru a long business career until he emerged from self-imposed obscurity in 1938 to fight anti-chain store legislation.

John A. Hartford

Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, and driving force behind its expansion from a small grocery chain in 1912 to a two hundred million dollar concern with 15,000 red front stores, made this abrupt change in policy because his business was being threatened with extinction by tax legislation in congress.

Good Will Sought

The reserve in which Hartford had hitherto cloaked himself and to a large extent the operations of his company was abandoned for a new policy of aggressively seeking public good will.

With his brother, George, A. and P. chairman, Hartford issued a public statement Sept. 14, 1938, announcing that the company intended to oppose threatened legislation and candidly warning congressional foes of chain stores that they would spend much money to present their case to the public.

This announcement was inspired by a statement issued by Rep. Patman [D. Tex.], bitter foe of chain stores, that he planned to introduce in the 76th congress, scheduled to convene Jan. 3, 1939, a bill designed to put chain stores out of business.

Asked Graduated Tax

Provisions of the proposed bill were well known. They called for a graduated tax on chain stores running from $50 to $1,000 for each store above 500 in a single chain.

Patman had impressive backing in his fight against the chain stores, and many observers believed his bill stood a good chance of passage. In the 75th congress a similar bill, which had failed of passage, had the pledged support of 73 members of the house as co-sponsors.

When Hartford issued his declaration of war on Patman, he changed almost overnight from a person whom few business men knew and the public knew not at all to a multimillionaire champion of chain store rights professedly eager to spend large sums to win public esteem.

Take Case to the People

The Hartfords said they would not go into politics or establish a Washington lobby in an attempt to influence votes, but would take their case directly to the American people. "We realize that our views are seldom news," they said. "We know, therefore, that we must be prepared to spend a substantial sum of money in telling our story to all of the American people."

When Elliott Roosevelt asked Hartford for $200,000 the announced A. & P. publicity campaign was under way. The 76th congress was in session. Patman was busy drumming up support for his bill. It was more than a year after Elliott got the money from the A. & P. president that the showdown came in congress. The much touted Patman bill died an ignominious death in a house ways and means subcommittee June 18, 1940.

Before its death, however, some important figures in the New Deal administration took a hand in heading it toward a committee pigeonhole. On April 3, 1940, records show, Henry Wallace, then secretary of agriculture, wrote to Chairman McCormack [D., Mass.], chairman of the subcommittee, putting the agriculture department on record as opposed to the bill.

Another Friend

The chain stores found another friend in Edward J. Noble, then assistant secretary of commerce, and more recently involved in a congressional investigation of charges that he bought a radio station with the aid of federal pressure exerted on its former owner. Noble wrote to the ways and means committee May 17, 1940, listing seven specific objections to the bill and stating the commerce department was opposed to it. Harry Hopkins was then secretary of commerce.

With the chain store bill dead in June, 1940, records indicate that the A. & P. enjoyed a respite from attack by the government until the spring of 1941, when the justice department began an investigation of the organization with a view to anti-trust prosecution.

This investigation got under way in earnest in September, 1941, according to the anti-trust division of the justice department, and culminated in indictment of the company and several of its officers and subsidiaries by a federal grand jury in Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 25, 1942.

In February, 1943, a Dallas federal judge quashed the indictment. His decision was overruled by an Appellate court in July, 1943, and the government in February, 1944, dropped the Dallas action and began a new and similar case in Danville, Ill. Trial began last April 16 and now is in progress.

Actress Honored

Film Actress Irene Dunne receiving honorary degree from Dr. Rudolph Ganz of Chicago Musical college last night.

NAVY ROCKETS, MOVIE STAR TO AID BOND DRIVE

Rocket projectiles will be fired by the navy into the lake off the Foster av. beach at 8 o'clock tonight as a feature of the 7th war loan drive. Similar demonstrations, all at 8 p. m., will be held there tomorrow and Sunday nights; at Jackson park beach from Monday to Wednesday inclusive, and at the 12th st. beach from Thursday to the following Sunday. Lt. L. O. Heideman will be in charge.

Infantry ceremonies and equipment will feature the Infantry day show today at the State and Madison sts. bond center. Miss Irene Dunne, movie actress, will make a personal appearance shortly after noon, and autograph receipts for bond purchases. She received an honorary doctor of music degree from the Chicago Musical college last night.

War finance committees working on the current war loan are being asked to speed up their work during the remaining 16 days of the campaign. Sales of E bonds are about 10 per cent under schedule. Thirty-five employes of Goldblatt Brothers stores were added yesterday to the Dad to GI Joe honor roll.

MRS. COLEMAN FACES QUIZ IN LANGFORD CASE

New York, June 14 (AP)—Mrs. Beatrice Coleman, a friend of slain Albert E. Langford, will be questioned by New York police at her Hollywood home, police said today.

Two detectives who are on their way to Fresno, Cal., on another case were understood to have received orders to call on her.

Langford, 63, a textile executive, was shot to death 10 days ago in his apartment after he had denied admittance to two men who asked to speak to his art patroness wife, 70 year old Marion Langford.

Mrs. Coleman and the slain man were friends before Langford's marriage three years ago. Reed Lawton, singer, on whom police say Mrs. Langford spent an estimated $100,000, told police Mrs. Coleman sponsored the Langford's marriage.

TREASURY PROBE OF HUGE LOAN TO ELLIOTT TOLD

mittee into the loan and the $196,000 tax write-off claim by Hartford.

4. Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.], ranking minority member of Doughton's committee, suggested the federal government might compel Gen. Roosevelt to include the $196,000 he reportedly gained on the transaction as taxable income.

Knutson, in the house floor discussion of the case, declared congress should also determine whether Jesse Jones' RFC "financed" the $4,000 payment to Hartford.

"All I am interested in," Knutson said off the floor, "is to see that the treasury, which, of course, means United States taxpayers, gets all the tax revenues it has coming to it. I think our committee should send a staff member to the treasury to examine Mr. Hartford's tax return to determine the exact nature of the losses claimed. The lid cannot be kept on this thing. We want the facts."

Full Itemization

Doughton said he understood Hartford's 1942 return did not specify the exact items included in the $228,500 deduction claim, but he explained it was "assumed" the item included the loss on the loan to Elliott. Knutson said he understood it was the usual treasury practice to require full itemization of losses claimed.

Doughton told the house he was satisfied "there is nothing wrong as far as Secretary Morgenthau of the internal revenue bureau here is concerned," but that he was looking into the case "because I do not want to see anybody sheltered or any one done wrong."

The congressman said, however, that the question of whether there was "dereliction" in the New York office of the internal revenue bureau has not been determined. This office would presumably be responsible for checking the tax return of Hartford, who lives in New York.

Ask Cause of Delay

Representatives Mott [R., Ore.] and Woodruff [R., Mich.] asked Doughton why the treasury waited until May 30 of this year to start its investigation of Hartford's 1942 tax return.

"This information [about the loan] was known among quite a large circle of people before May 30," Woodruff said. "The thing does not seem to be quite on the up and up."

Doughton said the treasury had made no explanation of the delay in launching its inquiry. He added, however, that 1942 returns are not filed until 1943, and that congressional tax advisers have informed him a two year delay in checking tax returns is not unusual, in view of the heavy work of the revenue bureau.

Just a Starter

Sen. O'Daniel [D., Tex.], meanwhile predicted in an interview that Elliott's loan is "just a starter" in "dragging skeletons out of the closet" of the New Deal.

"I think," he said, "that when the skeletons are dragged out and the pens of unbiased historians record the facts, we will find that the New Deal administration will go down in history as the most corrupt that ever existed in any nation at any time."

Temporary Writ Issued to Lower Cafe's Prices

A temporary injunction was issued yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan restraining the owners of Martin's restaurant, 120 S. La Salle st., from charging over ceiling prices. The office of price administration charged the defendants with "flagrant violations" even after the injunction suit was filed last month. Hearing for a permanent injunction has been set for June 26.

SENATE GROUP BACKS WICKARD CONFIRMATION

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—The senate agriculture committee today voted for approval of Agriculture Secretary Wickard's nomination as rural electrification administrator.

Committee aids said the vote was 11 for and 6 against, with three Republicans joining the Democratic members in favoring approval.

Those voting in favor were Senators Bankhead [D., Ala.], Bilbo [D., Miss.], Ellender [D., La.], Lucas [D., Ill.], Connally [D., Tex.], Downey [D., Cal.], Hoey [D., N. C.], Aiken [R., Vt.], Young [R., N. D.], Thomas [D., Okla.], and Willis [R., Ind.]. Those against the nomination were Senators Capper [R., Kas.], Shipstead [R., Minn.], Bushfield [R., S. D.], Wilson [R., Ia.], Butler [R., Neb.], and Cordon [R., Ore.].

Chairman Thomas [D., Okla.] predicted senate confirmation of Wickard by about a two-to-one vote despite a flood of testimony against him.

JUDGE EVANS WARNS ALLIES ON OLD ERRORS

Allied nations should be warned by the mistakes made after World War I., if we wish to carry out plans for the punishment of German war criminals and punishment of the nation for war guilt, Judge Evan A. Evans of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals said last night before the Waubansia Masonic lodge at 32 W. Randolph st.

After the last war, Judge Evans said, plans for punishment of Germany failed because of discord among the allied nations. Judge Evans blamed this discord on American politicians.

Former President Hoover was to blame, Judge Evans said, for permitting Germany to default on reparations. This, he said, gave Germany an opportunity to rearm for World War II.

Senate Confirms Clark to Be Attorney General

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—The senate by voice vote today confirmed Tom C. Clark of Texas to be attorney general, succeeding Francis Biddle, effective June 30. Clark has been serving as an assistant attorney general under Biddle.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passings with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 60 years. They give happy relief and help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

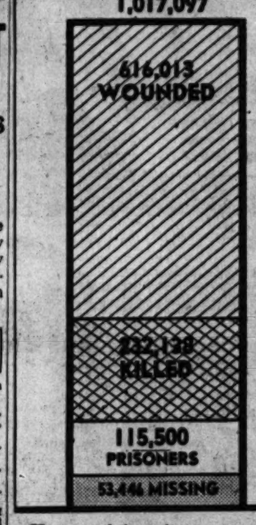
Casualties Up 5,048



How total American war casualties to date are divided.

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—The end of the war in Europe was reflected today in army and navy casualty reports showing an increase of only 5,048 in the last week.

The rise, one of the smallest for any week in months, boosted total losses to 1,017,097, including 232,138 killed, 616,013 wounded, 53,446 missing, and 115,500 prisoners. The prisoner total is actually much smaller than this figure, because of liberation of American soldiers in German hands.

The army total of 899,952 was an increase of 4,118 over last week and the navy toll of 117,145 was a rise of 930.

A breakdown on army casualties as reported today and corresponding figures for the preceding week follows:

Killed, 187,369 and 185,670; wounded, 558,611 and 556,844; missing, 42,710 and 46,747; prisoners, 111,262 and 106,573.

Similar figures for the navy:

Some words fool you:

BAND means...

BAND means...

but BALLANTINE Ale & Beer always means...

Purity, Body, Flavor!

Some bands are hard on the ears, some hard on the eyes. There's the brass band that makes music. There's the silk band on your hat. Band is certainly a confusing word!

Ballantine is certainly not! Ballantine always means PURITY, BODY, FLAVOR... the three qualities symbolized by Peter Ballantine's famous 3-ring trade mark. Meet and enjoy them tonight.

Why Phillips is Today One of the Country's Greatest Producers of Butadiene for Synthetic Rubber

But that truck also represents one of the biggest headaches tire men—and oil men—have had to face in this war!

You see, our synthetic rubber program has had to overcome more than the lack of raw rubber from the Jap-held East Indies. It has had to cope with a fantastic demand for tires for Army trucks and other vehicles.

Why is that demand fantastic? Well, just imagine speeding along roads pitted by shell-fire and sprinkled with shrapnel . . . hub-deep in mud, or rutted in frozen ridges. Under those terrible conditions, tires have become frayed and useless at an appalling rate.

That American industry has been able to meet this terrific demand for all-important truck tires is due, to a great extent, to companies like Phillips.

For long before Pearl Harbor, Phillips scientists foresaw the possibilities of butadiene in producing synthetic rubber. As a result, when the blow fell at Pearl Harbor, Phillips great research and production facilities were ready to step into the breach.

Today, the Phillips 66 Shield stands for one of America's leading producers of butadiene for synthetic rubber . . . as well as a great producer of 100-Octane Aviation Fuel, and an almost endless list of newer and better products from petroleum gases and petroleum.

PAUL H. DOUGLAS IS WOUNDED BY JAPANESE SHELL

Ex-Alderman in Hospital on West Coast

MAJ. PAUL H. DOUGLAS, former alderman and University of Chicago professor, was wounded May 9 during fighting on Okinawa, his wife, Rep. Emily Taft Douglas [D., Ill.], said yesterday in Washington, D. C. Maj. Douglas, a marine infantry officer, is now in this country, the congresswoman said, and temporarily will be held at the receiving hospital in San Francisco, Cal., for treatment. He was wounded in the left arm by a shell fragment, Mrs. Douglas said. Maj. Douglas enlisted as a private in the marine corps early in 1942, and had been in the Pacific fighting since May, 1943. He has the Purple Heart medal for a wound received on Peleliu last fall.

JUDGES TO BREAK TRADITION TODAY IN ASSIGNMENTS

Precedent as old as the Circuit and Superior courts is expected to be broken under the tentative schedule of assignments reported in advance of the meeting today of judges of both courts.

Under practices which never yet have been broken the chief justice of the Criminal court is alternated between Circuit and Superior judges. Superior Judge Harold G. Ward has been chief justice for the past year and, according to tradition, the new chief justice would be a Circuit judge. However, Judge Ward is reported to have expressed a desire to continue in office another year and the tentative schedule sends him back to the Criminal court, paving the way for his reelection next September.

Others Tentatively Assigned

William J. Lindsay and Charles E. Byrne, newly elected, are Superior judges who with Ward are tentatively assigned to Criminal benches. Circuit judges scheduled for Criminal court are Cornelius J. Harrington and Leonard C. Reid.

Formal inductions will be held this morning for all newly elected judges with the exception of Thomas J. Courtney, former state's attorney, who is dispensing with all formal ceremonies. The induction of Elmer J. Schnackenberg will be at 10:30 a. m. in the courtroom of Julius H. Miner, chief justice of the Circuit court; that of John M. Tuohy at 11 a. m. in the courtroom of Judge Robert E. Crowe; that of Charles E. Byrne at 11 a. m. in the courtroom of Judge John F. Bolton; that of Edwin A. Robson at 11:30 a. m. in the courtroom of Judge John F. Haas.

Gov. Green will be present for the induction ceremonies for Schnackenberg and Robson. Mayor Kelly planned to be present for the induction of Tuohy and Byrne.

The tentative assignment schedule places Schnackenberg in the law division of Circuit court and Tuohy in the law division of Superior court. Robson is expected to be one of three Superior court divorce jurists. Courtney is slated for assignment to the Circuit court law calendar.

Judge Robert J. Dunne was reported the likely candidate to succeed Judge Miner as chief justice of the Circuit court at the meeting of Circuit judges today. The term of Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley does not end until December when his successor must, by provision of the constitution, be one of the six Superior court judges up for reëlection in 1946.

Somebody has just kept his bargain with you

Maybe you never knew him.

He was a kid with a gun in his hand and a position to take on some far off front. He took it. That was that.

They'll bury him soon. They'll say the proper words over him, mark the place where he lies in the proper way.

Folks in a town you'll never know will miss him, and remember him, and mourn for him.

But the bargain he kept was with you. It was a very simple bargain: he would fight, die if necessary. You would back him up.

And that's a bargain you have, not with him alone, but with every man in an American uniform.

Now—this minute—those men are facing the most ruthless, the most fanatical enemy of all. Fighting, taking positions, dying. That's their part of the bargain. They're keeping it.

Are you keeping yours? Are you backing them up? Really backing them up—with everything you have?

Buying that extra War Bond seems such a simple, such an easy thing to do, doesn't it—when you think of their job?

Will you keep your share of the bargain?

GIVE RESERVE OFFICERS A FAIR DEAL

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, in a commencement address at Annapolis, disclosed that to a remarkable degree the successes of the navy have been won under the command of reserve officers. Of 400,000 officers now in the navy, only 11,350 are Annapolis graduates. Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, had previously stated that the navy had appointed 131,000 officers from civilian life, had promoted 58,000 from enlisted rank, and had obtained 97,000 from officer candidate programs in the period from Dec. 7, 1941, to March 1 of this year.

The ratio of reserve officers to regulars, both ashore and afloat, thus stands at about 39 to 1. Mr. Forrestal said that to command the fleet which it is proposed to retain after the war about 30,000 officers will be required. There will be between two and three times as many officers who are now classified as reserves as there will be Annapolis graduates in the peace time navy.

"To get these men," said the secretary, "the navy will have to face the competition of the opportunities of civilian life. To get them [and we shall not get them unless we do this] the officers of the regular navy in all commands must realize and accept the responsibility of convincing young men of promise that they have the same opportunities and the same chances for advancement that are available to Annapolis graduates; in other words, that the criteria of promotion in the navy are character, competence, and capacity for leadership."

These are fair words, but the regular navy has for so long been a chummy club, in which those privileged to wear an Annapolis ring have thought that the distinction marked a clear division in caste, that it may prove difficult to introduce a new spirit. Reserves in all of the services are stamped with the assumed inferiority of their station. A regular navy officer is given the initials "U. S. N." after his name and rank; for the reserve it is "U. S. N. R." The regular army officer is designated "U. S. A."; the reserve, "A. U. S." Marine reserve officers are never able to escape the brand of "U. S. M. C. R." None of these officers likes the distinction.

The reserve designation, of course, will be dropped when an officer is taken into the regular navy, but those who are in large degree fighting the war at sea must bear this incubus thruout the war. The Annapolis school justifies the reserve designation on the ground that appropriations are made up on the basis of the regular naval establishment and that the reserve does not enter into the calculation. This may be true in time of peace, but during a war such as that in progress there can be no real distinction between regulars and reserves. One category is just as much on active duty and in the fighting as the other and the appropriations cover the combined establishment, yet the obloquy of the reserve designation is permitted to persist.

The army has shown a much more liberal attitude. General of the Armies Marshall is a graduate of Virginia Military institute, not of West Point, but that has not been allowed to prevent his rise to chief of staff. Maj. Gen. Huebner of the 1st division entered the army as an enlisted man, but has become commander of a famous division thru merit. Lieutenant Generals Courtney Hodges and Walter Krueger both came up thru the ranks after enlisting as privates.

It would be impossible to discover any similar examples in the navy. The top command inevitably goes to an Annapolis man. In the preparation of lists of reserve officers suitable for the responsibilities of a general officer the army also has shown a far greater disposition to recognize ability. It is almost unthinkable that a navy selection board composed of Annapolis men would ever certify a reserve as equal to an admiral's station.

Indeed, the navy's policy of taking in civilians or reserves with a top rank of lieutenant commander in conferring reserve commissions manifests the extreme care with which the regular establishment has guarded its prerogatives. The army has not been averse to granting the rank of general to civilians of outstanding ability in order to benefit from their special abilities. Lt. Gen. William Knudsen, production expert, and Maj. Gen. C. R. Smith, air transport specialist, are but two examples easily recalled.

The navy should recognize the necessity of reform by liberalizing its treatment of reserves at once. It should not brand them with the "U. S. N. R." that is meaningless in time of war, except as a mark of caste. It should make it plain that any officer capable of accepting responsibility, exercising the functions of command, and meeting hazard with skill, coolness, and courage is entitled to the same respect and honor as other men who happen to possess the Annapolis pedigree. It should establish merit alone as the criterion for retention and advancement in the post-war navy.

THE DOCTORS DISAGREE

Government officials have declared repeatedly that business in the post-war period has to be planned and controled to prevent a recurrence of what happened after the last war. The Washington economists say that they know where the difficulties will arise and they know how to prevent them. For this they say they will need increased unemployment insurance benefits, price and wage controls, the adoption of Bretton Woods, slum clearance, and more public works schemes, and so on.

These men say, also, that there is a grave danger of an inflationary rise in prices unless OPA is continued. The 118 billions of accumulated savings in the hands of the people will cause an explosion in prices unless the government prevents it by holding down the price at which things can be sold.

If you believe this then you see a great boom coming. But another government planner of high rank says that once the war demand is over "we face sharply declining prices." While one day our burocracy calls for the continuation of OPA to keep prices up, the next day the burocracy says that the government must have the power to prevent prices from falling by "a gradual upward adjustment in wages and salaries."

The post-war period will find such a shortage of goods that rationing must be continued, we are told. But at the same time efforts are being made to limit supplies by withholding war surpluses from the market and by increasing the ability of foreigners to acquire some of our production.

The Washington economists have no clear picture of what is going to happen in the future. One day they are afraid prices will go up and the next they are sure that prices will go down. Today they tell us that an inflationary rise in wages is coming, and tomorrow that the government must increase wages to keep up the national income. We must subsidize exports because supplies will be burdensome, but ration supplies because supplies will be short.

In such a state of confusion we may be sure that any action that is taken is likely to be either ineffective or harmful. The manipulations of the controled economy under which we lived for a half dozen years before the war never had the expected results. What reason is there to think that post-war manipulations will be any more successful?

THE WORLD POLICE

The San Francisco conference has created a world police force which, according to the proposal, is to be sent into action anywhere and at any time upon the decree of the security council of the new league of nations. The acceptance of this arrangement was unanimous, with the American delegation, which numbers among its members two senators who ought to know something about the Constitution, voting to create the international army, navy, and air force.

Altho the punitive force was established by vote at open session, all the discussions leading up to its creation were secret. Nobody has said how big the international army and navy are to be, how the levies for ships and crews, planes, and soldiers are to be allocated among the 50 member nations, how these forces are to be called up in the event of trouble, and to whom they will owe primary allegiance.

The only word we have been given concerning our proposed commitments came, curiously enough, from Adm. Arthur J. Hepburn during a broadcast from the international conference last Saturday night. He said that one-third of the post-war American navy would probably be "earmarked" for the use of the world security league. Turning to Lt. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, army adviser to the American delegation, he said, "It might be a somewhat larger portion of the army, wouldn't you think, Gen. Embick?" The general agreed that "a considerable part" of the peace time standing army might be at the disposal of the world council.

There are three considerations about all this which are bound to strike the observer. In the order of their importance these questions are: Is the arrangement constitutional? Is the American contribution to the total proposed force not disproportionate to any possible needs? Did not a secret understanding between our state department and the heads of other interested states precede the decision to create the force and compel America to provide so much of its strength?

As to constitutionality, it is clearly provided that congress alone has the power to declare war, to raise and support armies, to provide and maintain a navy, and to make rules for the government and regulation of the land and naval forces. These functions cannot be ceded to any super-state, nor may any of them be delegated to a deputy providing the minority representation which this country will have on the security council. We do not know what could have been in the minds of Senators Connally and Vandenberg and Representatives Eaton and Bloom in thinking, as they apparently do, that the Constitution may be casually superseded by the enactments at San Francisco.

Inasmuch as the veto provisions of the new league make it impossible to employ the international police force against any of the so-called major powers, it is to be wondered what possible employment there would be for at least a third of the army and navy if it were placed at the council's disposal. The only recalcitrants who would be subjected to punitive action in any conceivable circumstances are small third or fourth class states. A platoon, rather than a third of the American army, would be more suitable for the job.

As to how America came to be pledged to this scheme and how its assessment of ships, planes, guns, and men happened to be fixed in the proportions described by Adm. Hepburn, the essential clew is that the broadcast appearance of the admiral and Gen. Embick was sponsored by Archibald Jo-Jo MacLeish, assistant secretary of state. It is sufficiently apparent that Mr. MacLeish, Secretary of State Stettinius, and our other delegated representatives on cosmic relations cooked up the whole deal. Providentially, the American people and other senators better acquainted with the Constitution than Messrs. Connally and Vandenberg seem to be will have their innings now.

We have grave doubts as to whether this country is willing to let our army and navy write off its responsibility of defending America in order to go and hunt up extraneous brawls. We doubt if this nation would support the idea that our commanders should take their orders from foreign heads of state. We think that if the new league of nations wants a police force it will be advised to go out and hire some Hessians. The idea of Americans in an international mercenary army under foreign command is repugnant to every traditional concept of this country.

THEY LEARNED TOO FAST

The Japanese learned to play with firearms later than their Chinese neighbors, and their first instruction in this amusement seems to have come from a Portuguese trader and traveler named Pinto. He has testified that they rapidly made up for lost time in adopting the European method of settling arguments by explosions. See "Adventures of Mendez Pinto," translated into English in 1891.

* * *

About 100 years after one-man guns had come into military use in Europe, Pinto and a few companions, traveling as passengers on a Chinese merchant vessel, went ashore on one of the smaller Japanese islands. Pinto does not fix the date, but it could not have been earlier than 1545. They were well received by the local potentate, perhaps a shogun, and in return for his hospitality Pinto demonstrated the use of the harquebus and presented him with one of these weapons. Furthermore, he gave a few lessons in making gunpowder.

* * *

The shogun promptly put his armorers to work on imitations of this man-killing mechanism. When Pinto sailed away, half a year later, the shogun's army could parade with 600 shooting irons of the 16th century matchlock type. A few years later Pinto was informed that there were 30,000 harquebuses in the city, and 300,000 in the province.

* * *

During Pinto's visit the shogun's 16 year old son sneaked the weapon and tried to imitate the foreign devil's skill. He overloaded, and was seriously injured. The shogun wanted to cut off Pinto's head, but the prince said, "No. Let him cure me." The versatile Portuguese then used his medicine kit with such success that he earned a doctor's fee of 1,500 ducats.

* * *

In 1549 Pinto provided passage from India to Japan for Francis Xavier, co-worker of Ignatius Loyola, whose story is one of the greatest epics of Christian missionary work.

A MARINE COMES HOME

He's back again, and yet his eyes are steeled
Against the sun. Uneasy 'neath her charms
He seems reluctant to entirely yield
Himself to laughter and our waiting arms.
He's home again, and yet he's not content
To tread our little sunlit paths of peace.
He's anxious to forget the years he spent
On foreign soil—but till all cannon cease
He will not rest. The fight still stirs his blood;
His feet feel guilty touching fragrant clover,
The while his "buddies" trample thru the mud.
He will not rest until the war is over.

Battle with a Willow Tree

Several years ago my victory garden became a battleground for a willow tree and me.

When the little green shoot pushed thru the earth that first spring, I thought, "How nice! Here's something I didn't plant. I wonder what it's going to be?" It grew rapidly and was soon a wavy, pigmy sapling. One day along came a wiser horticulturist, who took one look at this squatter in my garden, declared it was a willow tree, and if I didn't get it out of there it would soon take up the whole yard and clog the sewer and water pipes. He knew; he was a plumber.

I listened with respect and unbelief. Some weeks later I saw a line of shoots coming up thru the earth in the carrot bed, followed by another among the onions. I pulled them up, but more appeared. I pulled and pulled, only to find more, but I clung to the willow.

Now it is another spring. The willow's children ran out like tentacles from an octopus, with their green shoots coming up all over the garden. I had visions of root sprouts entering the sewer pipes. I saw roots curling around carrots and beets, choking them to death. Sadly I went for the tree saw. I dragged the victim to the alley, feeling like an executioner. I didn't look at the garden again that day.

Often joy cometh in the morning, and that's when it came to me. I found a little green shoot from the willow coming up in the rock garden. My willow was not dead! Tiny bit of life, if you can find a home among these rocks, remain, with my blessing! Frieda K. Zimmerman

Mrs. T. G. writes: "The army now is releasing men over 40 on their request. How old does a navy man have to be before he can be released under similar circumstances?"

Enlisted men in the naval reserve and fleet reserve, enlisted WAVES, and navy draftees who have reached their 42d birthdates now are eligible for discharge or release to inactive duty upon request. Application must be made by letter and only after the 42d birthdate has been passed. Men stationed in the United States will be released within three months after receipt of their requests, and those stationed overseas or at sea will be released within six months.

F. R. asks: "What is considered 'discharge under honorable conditions' for the purpose of mustering out pay in the army? The navy?"

Men discharged from the army must have an honorable discharge. The blue discharge, which is neither honorable nor dishonorable, is a bar to the pay. All discharges from the navy, coast guard, or marine corps are honorable except undesirable discharges, bad conduct discharges by reason of sentence of a court, and dishonorable discharges.

WHAT STIMULATES HICCUPS?

HICCUPS is one of those peculiar body reactions which seems to have been accepted by the best society. The disorder is well named as it sounds just like that. The unfortunate victim may become the life of the party thru no fault of his own. Perhaps we have the theater to thank for this interpretation.

There is little doubt that the act develops spontaneously and, once started, may be difficult to stop. Unlike the more common "burp," we have no way of camouflaging its presence. In fact, the more intensive the attempt at stifling, the louder the reverberation.

As a rule, its mechanism is simple. The diaphragm — which separates the chest and the abdomen — takes a notion to contract. With this maneuver, the tiny flap at the top of the windpipe closes, giving rise to the characteristic "hic."

What are the causative factors? Attacks may occur after a heavy meal, especially those that are highly seasoned. The consumption of excessively hot or cold edibles or overindulgence in alcohol may be responsible. Reflex irritation from inflammation in the nose, throat, stomach, or intestines may be to blame.

Occasional bouts are of little concern and usually respond to whatever method of relief the individual prefers. These procedures include the swallowing of water or food; holding the breath as long as possible; inducing a sneeze by tickling the nostrils; pressure on the Adam's apple, the upper lip, the eyeballs, or the back of the neck; or drinking a small amount of whisky. The most popular plan is to breathe into a paper bag for a few minutes.

Any disturbance in the region of the diaphragm, such as pleurisy or pressure from below, may bring on the symptom. The stimulus may originate in the brain and is sometimes observed in encephalitis, epilepsy, or brain tumor. Hiccups is a serious complication in one who has recently undergone an abdominal or pelvic operation, particularly in the aged and those suffering from uremia. Should it persist, the victim may become so weak that life is in danger.

In milder cases, sedatives are valuable. When severe, general anesthesia has been used altho the trouble may return in a short time. The injection of benzedrine sulfate or the application of cocaine to the nose have also been recommended. The inhalation of carbon dioxide has probably been most successful. If this should fail, a local anesthetic may be introduced directly into the phrenic nerve, leading to the diaphragm. In others this structure must be cut, producing a temporary paralysis.

The condition is not infrequent in the first three months of life, especially in the breastfed. Overdistention of the stomach with food and air induces these spasms. They are usually temporary and not considered significant. To minimize air swallowing, the feedings should be terminated when the breast or the bottle is empty. By placing the baby upright over the shoulder, gentle tapping over the back will often release the excess gas.

Of interest is the occurrence of hiccups in the unborn child. They are evidenced by regular, short, quick jerks which can be seen and felt over the mother's abdomen. During delivery, the phenomenon has also been observed.

IRREGULAR

Rose writes: I am 16 years old and went on a reducing diet. Since losing weight I have failed to menstruate. Is this serious?

REPLY

At your age, irregularities are not uncommon. Anemia is sometimes responsible. Ask your mother to talk with your family doctor about it.

ENLARGED GLANDS

N. S. writes: I have swollen glands in my neck. After reading your articles on glandular fever I wondered if this is my trouble. I do not have sore throat but my vitality is low.

REPLY

SENSITIVE TONGUE

T. M. writes: My tongue is extremely red and sensitive to cold. What is wrong?

REPLY

The condition may indicate a vitamin deficiency, anemia, or lack of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. A general examination is indicated.

DISTENDED

W. E. writes: What is an accordion stomach?

REPLY

Enlargement that appears and disappears readily. The symptom is probably on a nervous basis as neither gas nor tumor can be demonstrated.

Old Wars and New

The next time this little busybody gets to New York, she is heading straight for the only island fortress left on the Hudson. This place has a moat, drawbridge, portcullis turrets, dungeons full of cartridges, and rooms filled with relics of almost every war of the last 10 centuries except this one. The island bears the name of its owners, the Bannerman family, who claim to be the founders of the military goods business in this country. Their stock ranges from a 12th century European crossbow to the belt buckle of the Baptist Boys' Brigade, forerunner of the Boy Scouts. The former is yours for $60, the latter for 25 cents.

These and many other facts relative to what comes back from war came from an eager evening spent with the 1945 Bannerman catalog, which is almost as thick as Sears-Roebuck's much more interesting, and not at all helpful in the kitchen. If you are a dangerous person, stay away from it. It will only make you frustrated, for Bannermans won't play with any one whom it considers "would endanger the public safety." That goes for Europeans, too. Somewhere in its depths the catalog states that a European revolutionist became very annoyed when "we refused" to sell him some good, reliable arms; he replied heatedly that Bannermans had no right to say who should bear arms. Right or wrong, he had to go elsewhere.

To get your fingers on any of Bannerman's firearms, you have to show proof that you have no criminal record and are not a fugitive from justice, and you can't buy a cane sword unless you are a museum or some one with a magistrate's license attesting to your general worth or your ineptitude at swordsmanship. Otherwise you can take your pick of anything from the dungeon door of old Newgate prison in London [$450] and a Japanese tanto with a blade forged when Tamerlane was the scourge of Asia [$40] to the 1901 navy cook book, a South Sea islander's war club [$8] or a good Civil war overcoat [$2.50].

The outfit owns more suits of armor than Hearst, bits of the great iron chain [made into paper weights; $20 apiece] Washington had placed across the Hudson to stop British warships, and the nine inch gun on Farragut's frigate at the battle of Mobile bay. The latter would be a tidy addition to the post-war living room, for it is only 14 feet long and weighs only 9,000 pounds. Yours for $1,500. If these are out of your line, how about a police club for only 30 cents?

For $15 you can have Commodore Oliver H. Perry's pipe case, for $20 the throne chair of an African king, for $10 a walrus tusk snow knife, for $40 a rifle recovered from the wreck of the Maine, and for $500 the sword worn by Capt. Broke of his majesty's frigate Shannon when he captured the United States frigate Chesapeake in 1813 [to whose men the dying Lawrence cried: "Don't give up the ship!"] The Bannermans bought the sword from an Englishman who later, conscience-stricken, wrote: "I ought not to have sent you the one with the ivory handle [this one]. It was unpatriotic of me to let this go to America." Again he wrote: "I should be glad to have it back. In fact, it was a mistake of mine parting with it." The catalog reports this with: "It will take $500 to induce us to part with this rare old relic. We will give letter from London gentleman to purchaser."

The catalog contains pictures of many objects which are not for sale. These are installed in the Bannerman museum of war, under guard, and it is for a peek at these that some day we are going to the island arsenal on the Hudson. One is a Civil war carbine with a coffee mill in one end. One of these was to have been issued to each company in the Union army, but it didn't work out that way. Another is a Civil war hand grenade, "considered so dangerous that we understand its use was prohibited." The third is the patent claim for James Puckle's revolving gun in 1718. This was the forerunner of the Gatling gun, and one feature of it, the inventor insisted, was its adaptability "for shooting square bullets against Turks and round bullets against Christians."

ARMY DOCTORS AND FEDERALIZED MEDICINE

PILSEN, Czechoslovakia, May 31—I just read—and my anger rages—that doctors are to be drafted for the veterans' administration. The liberties and freedoms that we have been fighting for have turned out to be a huge, costly joke. Our soldiers have died in vain when we see our own country turning to despotism. We live to return to another Russia or Germany.

I am one out of some 50,000 army physicians. I am 36 years of age, a father of two sons, ages 8 and 9, but I volunteered in 1942 and have served for three years away from my family. I took care of war casualties in England, and from D-day until now—long past V-E-day—have served faithfully with the 109th evacuation hospital in combat in Normandy, France, Belgium, Germany, and now in Czechoslovakia. I worked hard day and night until I am now truly so fatigued, worn out, nervous, and irritable that it is a crime to force one to continue. Yet, to top everything off, I have to read that while I am away doing what I can to save freedom and liberty and the pursuit of happiness for myself and my family, a group in congress is trying to pass legislation to keep me from my family—to legislate against my profession—and to force the returning soldier and those at home to accept a "socialized" medicine—a queueing up for sick call—and a federalized system that will stink to high heaven. For this the government will collect $80 out of every $1,000 salary earned!

I can tell what the "poor" man can expect under such a system, as I have seen the army medical corps operate under what was considered excellent conditions. But I am still a commissioned officer and must await my release from the army.

Any medical officer can justly tell you that the army now has swelled its ranks with four times the number of physicians it needs. For every physician caring for patients—nearly eight see no patients at all—or practice no medicine. A poll of army medical officers will prove that. Yet the country must bear this excessive cost to keep the army medical corps overstrength, so that the table of organization for regular army medical corps officers will give them rank and salary, while the civilian specialist slugs along, doing all the work, on a captain's pay.

I am chief of the neuropsychiatric service at our hospital, and I can assure you that one cannot get good service from any employe who is dissatisfied—and there are very very few satisfied physicians in the army. That is a pathetic situation and certainly should call for a closer investigation of the matter by the voting citizens at home. I feel confident of the support of the 6,000,000 soldiers who know what "sick" call and army medicine mean—the same thing that the New Deal would like to sell the public.

I can only hope the judicial department of our government will side with us in any discrepancy legislation aimed at a single group of professional men who always have been the first to rush to the aid of their country and won't permit a forceful slavery in a veterans' administration. There certainly must be something wrong with a job if you have to force a person to take it!

IRVING S. SCHIPPER,
Captain, M. C.

THEY CAN'T GET DISCHARGES

Camp Crowder, Mo., June 10—The men of Company D, 26th battalion, this station, are distressed as we daily read in THE TRIBUNE of the discharges from the service via the point system. You are being duped in a grand manner by sending your photographers and reporters to catch the "drops in the bucket" being released, for that is merely a civilian morale item of no great importance.

This entire company is composed of overseas veterans with from 85 to 140 points. No attempt has been made to ship any of them to separation centers or discharge them from the army. We have been here in this camp from three to nine weeks, with no special duties, just killing time, with assinine excuses given for retention by the service when we make inquiries of proper authorities. A poll among us has shown none to be "essential," as we have all done routine duties of truck driving, cooks, clerks, first aid men, infantry men, etc. There are no air corps personnel with us.

We understand that the camp authorities are giving their own views on the policy as set forth by the war department, regardless of its true intention, and hold aloof from the wishes and desires of the veteran who has borne the burden of three to four years in foreign service. 250 MEN IN D COMPANY

OCCUPATION RENTALS

Chicago, June 8—The following is an article which appeared in an army newspaper, sent to me by my husband from Europe:

"An officer walked into our section today and asked us to measure the floor space. Being just curious, we asked him what for. He told us we had to do this in order to be sure we were paying our landlords [German] the proper amount of rent. Yes, indeed, that's what he told us. I wish some enterprising bloke would get out a pencil and figure out how much rent these same Germans paid the Poles, the French, the Belgians, and the other conquered peoples of Europe. Sure they paid them rent—just ask them."

I hardly think any further comments are necessary. MRS. J. F. H.

REWRITING THE DICTIONARY

Beloit, Wis., June 10—I wish to acknowledge my indebtedness to the two judges who rendered the decision in the Montgomery Ward case for their comprehensive definition of "production." I have witnessed the steady growth of that term, and am really quite surprised that they did not include such outstanding acts as slaughtering pigs and plowing up cotton. A. A. OGDEN

WIFE'S SHARE OF REAL ESTATE

Chicago, June 6—Because he made life unbearable for her, a woman left her husband with the full approval of her grown children. They owned their own home. 1. Can the husband sell the property without her signature? 2. If not, what should she do in order to get her share? H. C.

1. He cannot convey real estate clear of dower without her signature.

2. Presumably he would have to come to her when he wishes to sell. If she wishes to force him to make the payments before that time, then she should employ an attorney for divorce or separate maintenance proceedings.

HOUSE MEMBERS VOTE TO RAISE THEIR PAY $500

Senate Passes Pension Proposal

BY ROBERT HOWARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 14—Members of the house of representatives today voted themselves pay increases of $500 a year. Meanwhile the senate sent to Gov. Green a bill under which old time lawmakers could retire on pensions.

Legislative pay would be $3,000 a year under the salary increase bill introduced by Rep. Rategan [D., Chicago]. They now get $5,000 a biennium, but Rategan complained that his constituents think that means $5,000 a year.

The bill was approved, 99 to 23, and sent to the senate. Attempts to raise the biennial pay to $7,500 and then to $6,500 had failed earlier in the session.

Taxpayers' Only Lobby

"We are the only lobbyists the taxpayers have in Springfield," said Rep. Brydia [R., Prophetstown]. "We can pass this bill and go back to our districts and tell the voters that we are worth the money."

Others recited how the legislature already had voted salary increases for state pay rollers and for a long list of state and local officials.

Rep. Davis [D., Chicago], who is on a clerical pay roll also in the city hall, voted to increase his pay from the state on the plea that he works 365 days a year as a legislator.

Doesn't Want Job Again

The present salary isn't adequate to cover expenses of a legislator who doesn't get expenses for clerk hire, but who has to answer telegrams, make telephone calls, write letters, and drive to meetings in a large district, said Rep. Van der Vries [R., Winnetka], one of the three women members.

"I'm a new member, and from what I've seen since January I hope I never come back to Springfield," said Rep. Hollingsworth [R., Joliet]. "But I'm going to vote aye with the hope that more pay might do something to improve the general assembly."

"That's pretty hard to do," replied Speaker Green [R., Jacksonville].

Green Would Sign It

If the bill passes the senate, Gov. Green has indicated that he will sign it. Some state house sources have predicted a veto, however, for the pension plan. The governor wouldn't comment about it at his press conference.

On a motion to concur in a house amendment, the senate voted 38 to 6 to send the legislators' pension bill to the governor. Some called it a bill for a retirement system—guaranteed to result in the voluntary retirement in the 1946 election of a large number of lawmakers who voted for it.

STATE TO PUSH FIGHT ON TIE-IN LIQUOR SALES

Regardless of wholesale and retail liquor dealers' joint effort to outlaw the tie-in or combination sale practice, the Illinois liquor control commission and the office of price administration will go ahead with their own campaign to police the business, Charles J. Fleck, commission chairman, said yesterday.

"If the dealers are in earnest, that's fine," said Fleck. "But we are arranging to keep a close watch with our own investigators anyway. We want to know if they are on the square."

Fleck will meet today with Francis Zimmerman, OPA attorney, to divide the metropolitan area into five districts for investigation. A state agent will be assigned to each one. These agents will cooperate with the OPA's investigation staff.

WILD WEST RAID BY OPA ROUNDS UP SLAUGHTERER

In a raid made in the best traditions of a wild west thriller, agents of the office of price administration and deputy United States marshals yesterday arrested Albert O'Neill, 30, on a charge of operating an unlicensed and unregistered slaughter house near 106th st. and Lake Calumet.

Albert O'Neill

The federal men swooped down on O'Neill's home about noon flourishing revolvers and handcuffs. Threats filled the air.

O'Neill, who was awakened by the raiders, wore only a pair of underwear shorts when he admitted them. The agents held guns and kept him handcuffed while he dressed.

The raiders were led by Homer Clay, chief enforcement attorney for the Chicago office of the OPA. O'Neill was taken before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. He pleaded not guilty and was placed under a $2,500 bond. He remained in jail because he could not make bond. The hearing was continued until June 18.

Previous investigation by the OPA, Clay said, indicated that O'Neill slaughtered several hogs and one steer each day.

"This man is an example of a small time, illegal slaughterer," Clay commented.

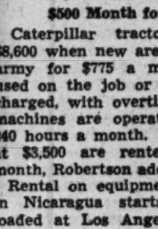
DEMANDS PROBE OF 'GRAFT' ON 3 BIG U.S. PROJECTS

Latin American, Alcan Highways Cited

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 14—Charges of graft and waste in the army's construction of the Latin American highway to the Panama Canal zone, made in the senate today, will be studied by the senate war investigating committee, it was learned tonight.



Sen. Robertson

The graft charges were made by Sen. Robertson [R., Wyo.]. He demanded a sweeping investigation of the Latin American road project and of reports of waste in the construction of the Alcan highway to Alaska and the Canol oil project in northwest Canada, both American army projects.

Sen. Johnson [D., Col.] was the only Democrat to echo Robertson's demand for an investigation. Sen. Mead [D., N. Y.], chairman of the investigating committee, said the matter would be "looked into."

Hits Fabulous Costs

"We are not prepared," said Robertson in a senate speech, "to permit any one to conduct a systematized, methodical species of graft on the people of the United States and particularly we are not prepared to permit an organized system of graft and deception, aided and abetted by a department of government intimately connected with the prosecution of the war."

Robertson said the construction of the Latin American highway particularly merited investigation because the "fabulous prices charged the government and paid by authority of the army engineers are fantastic beyond belief."

$500 Month for Trucks

Caterpillar tractors valued at $8,600 when new are rented by the army for $775 a month, whether used on the job or not, Robertson charged, with overtime paid if the machines are operated more than 240 hours a month. Trucks valued at $3,500 are rented for $500 a month, Robertson added.

Rental on equipment to be used in Nicaragua starts when it is loaded at Los Angeles, Robertson said.

Robertson said he had information that "staggering amounts" of equipment for the Alcan and Canol projects was received but never used. Machines were dumped and left in the snow and no attempt was made to repair equipment temporarily out of order, he charged.

Urged Biddle to Act

Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.], a member of the war investigating committee, said Atty. Gen. Biddle had been advised to look into the Latin American highway situation but the justice department had disclaimed responsibility because the offenses charged were outside the United States.

Ferguson said the letter from the justice department carried the signature of Tom C. Clark, chief of the criminal division, who will succeed Biddle July 1.

Jenny! When are you going to stop sweeping dirt under that rug?

DEMANDS MOUNT FOR FCC TO END FM UNCERTAINTY

The Radio Manufacturers' association called on the federal communications commission yesterday to move frequency modulation broadcasting into the 50 to 68 megacycle range immediately. As a result, industry leaders pointed out, the FCC is confronted with almost unanimous demands by FM interests to abandon its suggestion of moving FM to a higher location. The R. M. A. directors closed a two day session in the Stevens hotel.

R. C. Cosgrove, Cincinnati, O., who was reëlected president of the R. M. A., sent a telegram to Washington with the board's approval asking that pricing regulations for household radio sets and equipment be drawn by the office of price administration to assist the industry in reconversion from war work.

DRIVE BY WGNB SEEKS LARGER FM AUDIENCES

A Share Your FM Receiver campaign has been opened by WGNB, W-G-N's sister station employing frequency modulation. The objective is to increase the station's FM audience by thousands each week by encouraging FM set owners to invite their neighbors and friends in to hear this static-free, high fidelity type of reception. No FM sets have been manufactured since April, 1942.

WGNB staff members will canvass women's clubs, young people's organizations, music clubs, church groups, and others to explain the plan and to help set up listening groups. From 8 to 11 p. m. Tuesdays, starting July 3, WGNB will broadcast three hour Share Your FM programs. These will illustrate how FM picks up the tonal range of symphonic music and differentiates the various instruments. This period will feature an hour long broadcast by the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra directed by Henry Weber.

Another feature of this series, titled the World of Tomorrow, will touch on some of the marvels the post-war world will bring.

700 Who Love America Win Their Reward

BY RITA FITZPATRICK

Small rolls of white paper tied with red, white, and blue ribbons symbolized the land of opportunity for 700 Chicagoans yesterday. The papers were the certificates of achievement awarded by the Chicago public schools' adult education department at its annual graduation exercises in Simpson hall of the Chicago Natural History [Field] museum.

Proud and beaming, the graduates, representing more than 50 nationalities and ranging in age from 17 to 79, assembled early for the exercises and chattered excitedly in foreign-tinged English. Clutched tightly in their hands were banners naming the 150 centers where they had gathered mornings, afternoons, or evenings after a day or night of hard work to learn the customs and speech of America.

Four hundred of them had completed citizenship courses; 100, eighth grade subjects, and 200, a course of English study. All had one thing in common: determination to be completely American.

Wearing a four starred service pin, Mrs. Julia Marchewka, 51, of 4556 S. Francisco av., proudly unrolled the certificate for English study presented to her by Miss Frances K. Wetmore, supervisor of the adult education department. Mother of 11 children, with four of her sons on war duty, she attended classes whenever possible over a three year period.

"I want to be able to write to my sons in English," she explained simply. "They are happy when they can show the letters to the other boys."

Mrs. Mary Stachaczynski, 44, 5437 S. Long av., shyly explained also that her two sons in service liked her to speak English. Both of the boys had received the Purple Heart and one the silver star for gallantry on Okinawa, she related. She forgot to mention, however, that she had attended classes faithfully every morning after working as a janitress all night, that she had bought $1,000 worth of war bonds, given blood to the Red Cross, and was honored on radio programs for a perfect score in her naturalization examination.

"I am grateful to be here," was the only comment of Leopold Hass, 79, 1523 Winnemac av., who came from Vienna five years ago and who will be naturalized Wednesday.

Tavy Goldscher, 60, of 1518 S. Sawyer av., a night watchman and war plant switchboard operator who speaks seven languages, explained that his one wish was to speak English correctly. "All my life I have worked 14 to 16 hours a day and never have had much opportunity to go to school," he said. "Now that my work is not so heavy, I have an opportunity."

From the Independence Park center, where 35 nationalities were represented in the English class, Robert Hill, 3804 N. Drake av., was selected to speak at the graduation exercises. With a catch in his voice but with careful English, he said what was in the minds of all the graduates:

"We are grateful for the opportunity to thank those who have contributed to the enrichment of our lives and taught us the way of better democratic living."

Galloping Hills Horse Show July 8 to Retain Traditions

BY JUDITH CASS

THE fifth annual Galloping Hills horse show, which has been set for July 8 on the Louis F. Swift's farm in Wheaton, will not find its traditions impaired in the least by war time complications. The same monkey and hand organ will be back to charm young visitors, and so will Rochester, the late Jarvis Hunt's butler, who will leave his war job long enough to supervise the serving of meals in the Galloping Hills club. Again the club will offer its specialty, barbecued chicken, supplied from Swift's own home raised flock and cooked out of doors in a little grove of trees.

This year the all day show will emphasize classes for children, to encourage youthful riders, as well as the showing of young horses. The usual hunter classes will be repeated, with the competition for the Sonny Ripley Memorial trophy, a handsome Paul Revere bowl won last year by Miss Sally Miller, as one of the high points of the afternoon.

Assisting Mrs. Swift in arrangements for the show will be her sister-in-law, Mrs. William E. Swift, who will have more leisure time now that the Geneva war plant for which she has worked for the last three years has been closed. After the show's expenses have been paid, proceeds will go to a children's charity.

Some of the young riders who will be entered in the Galloping Hills show will compete in a junior show to be held at 1:30 p. m. Sunday in Stanley Luke's stables in La Grange.

Engagement News

Chicagoans who met Miss Leontine Lyle when she came here last July to be maid of honor in the wedding party of her brother, Lt. [j. g.] William Gordon Lyle Jr. and the former Helen Niblack, will be interested to hear of her engagement to Lt. Norman Harrower Jr. of the marine corps reserve. The announcement is being made today by Miss Lyle's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Lyle of New York and Marion, Mass.

Miss Lyle, a graduate of Miss Hewitt's, made her debut last winter in New York at the Allied Flag ball and the Junior assembly. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrower of Fitchburg, Mass., and grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Greeley of Chicago, was graduated from the Groton school and attended Harvard university.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart Boswell of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Polly Thornton, to Lt. James A. Fosdick of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Fosdick of Muncie, Ind. Lt. Fosdick is instructing in the adjutant general's school at Camp Lee, Va. The wedding will take place this summer.

Miss Boswell attended Sweet Briar college and received her degree from the University of Texas, after which she took a year of postgraduate work at the Katharine Gibbs school in Chicago. Her fiancé attended Hillsdale college and received his master's degree in journalism from Northwestern university.

Not So Wrong

Perhaps the sweet, young thing who came in on the "dummy" the other morning was not so wrong in speaking of a train shed as barn. Before the invention of the electric engine, or steam engine, street cars and some overland trains were pulled by horses and oxen, and the shelter for the trains and animals were called "car barns." Even today, in this mechanized age, any old timer will say "car barns" and not "engine sheds." E. CARTER

Two Soldiers' Pleas for Aid Told by Sally

[Sally Joy Brown department activities are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

We hope the following appeal will meet with immediate response and that the young soldier who wrote it will be given the pleasure of listening to music of his own choosing:

"Dear Miss Brown: I have seen your column in THE TRIBUNE many times, and thought maybe you could help me. I am a bed patient here at the hospital, having been wounded in both legs and my left arm, on Feb. 12, 1944, at Cassino, Italy. I would like very much to have a portable phonograph and I thought perhaps you could ask your readers if a record player is available."

Another request comes from a soldier who finds himself surrounded by nature's grandeur but with no means of recording it for his future enjoyment, and is submitted by his mother, Mrs. J., as follows:

"Dear Miss Brown: My son is stationed somewhere in the Alps. He has written home requesting an inexpensive box camera, and I have tried unsuccessfully to find one for him. Perhaps there is some one among your readers who has such a camera, not being used, who would be willing to part with it. I would appreciate your help in locating one for my boy."

More Figures Than Facts in Guild Plans for Chicago's 1945-'46 Blind Date with Playgoing

The Theater Guild is about to invite Chicago and the rest of its 100,000 subscribers on another blind date with playgoing, and, while a few tentative announcements are made, the element of surprise is sustained by this blanket disavowal of responsibility: "All touring plans, however, it must be pointed out, are subject to changes, dependent on war conditions and other circumstances unpredictable in advance."

Keeping that firmly in mind, here are some of the things that may happen in the Chicago season of 1945-'46. The chances are considered good that we will get Tallulah Bankhead in Philip Barry's "Foolish Notion," tho no mention is made of her Broadway leading men, Henry Hull and Donald Cook. Shakespeare may be represented by that revival of "A Winter's Tale" the guild has had in mind for a couple of seasons. A few subscription cities are to see S. N. Behrman's "Dunnigan's Daughter" and the Lunts' London hit, "Love in Idleness," in advance of New York, but those cities aren't specified and they probably will turn out to be the eastern towns generally used for tryouts. Other plays to make up the five due Chicago will be chosen from a list of nonguild productions including "The Hasty Heart," "Dark of the Moon," "A Bell for Adano," and unidentified others.

Apparently this prospectus means that the stunt production of "The Tempest," with Zorina and Canada Lee, will not tour, altho earlier reports suggested it might. And note that there is no word in the entire statement about a Chicago "Carousel," regarded by many as a natural, considering the success scored by duplicating "Oklahoma!" while it was fresh. Perhaps the guild figures the original company will be ready to tour before the season ends.

Meanwhile, the so-called national company of "Oklahoma!" may open new guild subscription series in San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Kansas City, where despite the song it won't be up to date by a couple of seasons. If those three join the fold there will be 17 subscription cities scattered over the country. Of the present 14, Chicago is tied with New York for top place with 15,000 subscribers, and Boston and Washington come a close second with 12,000.

Notes

Bennett Cerf says that when Gertrude Stein got her author's copies of "Wars I Have Seen" she cabled "book received lovely page lovely book lovely Bennett love to Random House Gertrude Stein." But when they sent her a check for "two thousand thousand dollars dollars" she came right back "cut out this nonsense and make my check out properly." . . . One of the more engaging projects interrupted by war was a play being written by William Saroyan and Harlan Tarbell, the magician, in which every trick of magic became, to some character, a miracle. . . . Answers to questions: Looks like Jeanette MacDonald's summer concert has fallen thru here, tho she sings at Detroit and the Hollywood bowl. . . . The reason "Ballet Russe Highlights" will play Orchestra hall is that it couldn't rent the Civic Opera house.

Thru the Looking Glass

Don't laugh—because it's no laughing matter to the parents of girls from 7 to 14 whose utter contempt for cleanliness is driving said parents a little crazy—but we now have bath preparations for girls "knee high to junior high."

This is pioneering. It may seem to you, if no youngsters "mar" the serenity of your home, that it's a little far fetched too, that it's more demoralizing attention for those who, traditionally, are supposed to be seen and not heard, much less be taught to be glamor minded. But you'd be wrong.

Parents of kids from 7 to 14 will tell you that the battle to make Jane or Jim wash the hands before a meal is in itself no minor engagement three times a day. Battles to make the youngsters take a bath once a day are positively titanic.

We can't see that the introduction of bath trimmings for girls this age will make these little girls old before their time. We think it will help them, immeasurably, to acquire early the wonderful, godly habits of cleanliness. They make bathing fun.

These things, created especially for the children, packaged in blithe young colors, are available in various combinations. The largest set, which composes the whole line, consists of six items.

Probably the most important of these, from the point of view of the parent who is worn out from begging "Won't you please take a bath?" is the fun item, of bubble bath. This, more than anything else, is what will make young Jane plead, loudly and often, "Mother, may I please take a bath?" The kids are mad about the stuff, because it makes millions of bubbles, scents the water, and makes a bath a game.

The soap to match is a gay yellow, shaped like a perky hair bow. Then there's a powder mitt [this also makes bathing fun], all yellow, polka dotted in white, on one side and on the other a blue of fabric soft as down thru which the powder filters when the mitt is fluffed against the skin. Then there is cologne, also for after bath use, in a fragrance that's as sweet, as unsophisticated as forget-me-nots and somehow reminiscent of them.

There is shampoo, too, the very existence of which—to say nothing of its efficiency—should make mother's burden easier. There is also hand lotion, and that's one of the best of all these items because its use will help make Janie's little paws much better to look at.

All these things, we think, are worth a thousand maternal sermons. They awaken vanity in the young ragamuffin who won't keep clean; once that's done, habits of cleanliness are well established.

Bowed Legs And Knock-Knees Often A Needless Defect

Doctors report that many a child with ugly bowed legs or knock-knees might have grown up straight and shapely on a diet adequate in the bone-building minerals and Vitamin D.

Lack of calcium, for instance, in the earliest years may do irreparable damage—but in any case, calcium is so vital a factor that no child brought up on a consistently deficient calcium intake, can have much chance for strong bones and sound teeth.

That's one reason doctors talk so much about milk for growing children.

Milk is our best food source of calcium. Do your children get enough milk...at least a quart every day? Many children just don't like to take that much every day! That's why Cocomalt in milk is so helpful.

Cocomalt* is so rich in calcium, it makes 3 glasses of milk equal to a whole quart in calcium value! (Also this supplies the day's full minimum requirements for iron, phosphorus, Vitamin B, and D.) And Cocomalt's delicious chocolaty flavor makes children love their milk.

Start your children on Cocomalt today. Save this as a reminder.

*2 heaping tsps. to 8-oz. glass of milk.

'Midsummer Nightmare'

(Copyright; 1945; By Mrs. Frances Stephens)

INSTALMENT XLVII.

AN ACCOMPLICE

"O, it's Gerrit, all right," French said. "When we finally knocked him out cold we took his finger prints. We've been waiting for his fingers to heal so we could get his prints."

"But that was rather stupid of him, wasn't it, to forget about finger prints?"

"Well, he didn't exactly forget. He burned his hands purposely to keep us from comparing his prints, also so he would not need to sign his name till he had practiced Sybrand's signature. No doubt he planned some second accident to prolong the time. But I'm in a big hurry. I've got to get hold of Mrs. Jennesma before she's had time to think out a good story."

"But there's one thing that can't wait. Dirk."

"O, yes, Dirk. We found him on your kitchen floor. Colder than a cod."

"Dead?"

"No. Bad concussion but no fracture. Sent him in to the hospital. What happened?"

She explained, including her private panic at being framed. French nodded, disgustedly.

"Yes. He did it all right. Used the same piece of pipe he knocked out Allen with. We found Allen in the woods. But he wasn't hurt as bad as Dirk. He saw Jennesma hit him. That'll help spoil Gerrit's defense, plenty. And don't worry about Dirk. He'll live."

Some one tapped on the door. "You're wanted, lieutenant."

The senator shoved into the room. "I've a lot of questions, French."

"Save 'em. Busy now. I'll see you this evening. Where'll you be?"

"I'm taking Miss Warburton into town. Got her an apartment in the Oakwood Manor. Top floor. I'll be there this evening."

"Okay. I'll be seeing you."

Miss Warburton stood at the window on the top and seventh floor of the big apartment house. It was pleasant to be free of fear and safe again.

The senator lolled in a comfortable chair, watching her.

"What are you smiling at like a hyena?" she asked.

"You wouldn't be surprised. Olivia, does this place suit you?"

"Yes. Very nice."

"But you haven't unpacked."

"I know. I am not sure how long I'll be here. I haven't even started to think what I'll do. No—please don't. Lt. French will be here any moment."

"In fact," said North, "is here now." As the door phone rang. "I'll take it."

In a few minutes he came back with Lt. French and a very young trooper who carried a small typewriter.

"All I want just now is statements from you two about this afternoon while it's fresh in your minds," French said briskly. "Later, there'll be other chores. The trial for one. Put your typewriter on that table, Arnold."

"Trial, humph? I was hoping I'd finished that devil," North said.

"No. Just winged," French said casually. "Okay. Let's get going, Miss Warburton."

The machine rattled away expertly for some time. Then North's turn came.

Miss Warburton suspected the young man had had orders to edit the senator's sulphurous words.

"There you are. Just sign at the bottom." French opened a fountain pen.

"Just a minute, Olivia!" North unfolded his reading glasses, put them on and read every word. The two younger men exchanged looks.

"Very well, you may sign that now, my dear." North handed her her statement and picked up his own. He grunted and snorted at the deletions.

"Thank you both," French gathered up the papers. The young secretary-trooper put them into his brief case. "That's all, for now."

"That," said the senator, "is what you think, young man. Have a seat. I'm about to start a private congressional probe."

French laughed and sat down.

North said, "Is your case locked up tight, French?"

"Tighter than the federal reserve, senator. Mrs. Jennesma folded right up at the first question and spilled everything. Said Gerrit had her petrified. Afraid to betray him to the police."

"Is she going to get away with that?"

"Time will tell. I needn't tell you I don't believe it. She's guilty, of course. She had to be in on it when she supposedly dressed that fake wound of his."

"Fake! But I saw it, myself. A horrible red gash," Miss Warburton protested.

"You saw a long red gash, yes. But you saw it on the porch where the light was very dim. It was cleverly done with makeup clay. Perfectly satisfactory for the quick looks which were all he allowed any one to have."

"But the blood dripped. All over the place. And it was his blood. You said so, yourself."

"Don't rub it in," French smiled ruefully. "I was taken in completely, too. But it was his own blood. He'd donated a pint of blood just the month before, to the Red Cross solely to learn the procedure."

"Horrid!"

"Yes. I should have spotted the elaborate inventor's mind at work in this affair, long ago. No excuse! But he used a sponge held in his handkerchief, soaked with gore. Mrs. Jennesma said she burned it for him."

"And then went to bed and had a nice rest laughing his head off at the fools he was making of us," North growled.

Miss Warburton said, "He needn't have worried about my suspecting anything. I just thought it was Mrs. Jennesma's clumsy work."

"Her work, yes. But hardly clumsy. O, she was in it all right. She could easily have told the police that the wound was a fake. We'd have protected her. . . ."

"Yes," North interrupted sharply, "but what could you have done, French? It wasn't a crime to fake a wound. You hadn't connected Gerrit with his sister's and Tillie's deaths, had you?"

"So," North concluded, "she was rather in a spot. O, don't think I'm defending the woman. I hope you do get her. But if she'd told on Gerrit and you had not arrested him, he'd have killed her next, if he could have done it without being caught."

To balance the ever low red point budget, Chicago housewives are haunting fish markets these days. Right now there's a good supply of carp, mackerel, whitefish, and haddock fillets, and a fair supply of other fish. According to market reports, most women still are avoiding lesser known fish, and carp; yet, by use of proper methods of cooking and new recipes, such fish can be made a popular delicacy.

Quick baking can be used for small whole fish, fillets, or slices [but not for large whole fish]. It's superior to slow baking, since it rapidly cooks the fish protein without drying the flesh. Dip the fish in milk seasoned with salt, then in fine bread crumbs. Lay fish on greased baking pan and spread with melted fat. Bake 10 minutes in a very hot oven, 500 to 600 degrees, or until golden brown. Don't add water to pan or baste the fish.

"Boiling" is a good method also, but often taken too literally. Actually the fish is simmered, not boiled. Tie the fish in a cheesecloth bag, cook in simmering water seasoned with 1 tablespoon salt and ½ tablespoon lemon juice per quart of water, 10 minutes per pound for thin fish, 10 to 20 minutes per pound for thick fish. Fillets will cook in about six minutes. Be careful not to overcook.

There's been much confusion about frozen fish, whether or not to thaw before cooking. It can be fixed without thawing if a little extra cooking time is allowed. It's best to thaw fish by placing in the refrigerator, away from the freezing unit, so it can thaw slowly. If time is short, thaw fish at room temperature. Never soak frozen fish in water to de-freeze, since the flavorful juices will soak out into the water.

Nut Filled Fish Roll-Ups

1½ lbs. fish fillets
½ cup ground nuts
¼ cup dry bread crumbs
3 tablespoons milk

Wipe fillets and season with salt and pepper. Combine nuts, crumbs, cheese, and milk, and spread mixture on fillets. Roll up and secure with toothpicks. Brush with melted fat and place in baking dish. Bake in hot oven, 450 degrees, for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Garnish with parsley for serving.

This recipe for baked carp may help put over that plentiful fish. If bacon isn't available, brush the fish with melted fat before baking.

Baked Carp

3 pounds carp, dressed for baking
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
4 slices bacon
1½ cups stock

Wipe dressed fish with damp cloth and cut four 2 inch gashes across one side. Dust with flour, salt and pepper, and lay in greased, shallow baking pan, gashed side up. Pour stock around fish and lay bacon across top. Bake at 375 degrees for an hour. Baste fish with stock twice during baking. To make stock, simmer ½ cup chopped celery tops, 1 tablespoon parsley, 1 small onion, chopped, 1 tablespoon green pepper, 2 tablespoons bacon fat, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and 3 cups water for 40 minutes, then strain.

Hot Wet Cloth Is Used to Soften Brown Sugar

To soften hardened brown sugar, place the sugar in a large bowl and cover with a hot wet cloth which has been wrung carefully. It's a good idea to place a plate on top of this, to keep the cloth from drying out too quickly. Repeat this until the sugar absorbs enough steam to break into pieces.

Fruit Salad Dressing

Asparagus Au Gratin Casserole

For meatless meals, try this tasty and filling casserole of asparagus au gratin. Missing meat protein is replaced by that of hard cooked egg and cheese. To complete the meal, serve a tossed vegetable salad, hot cornmeal muffins, cherry pie, and milk or coffee. To prepare the casserole:

Melt 3 tablespoons fat; stir in 3 tablespoons flour. Gradually add 1½ cups milk, stirring to make a smooth sauce. Season with ¾ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Stir in 1 cup grated American cheese. Add 3 cups cooked cut asparagus to sauce and pour into greased casserole. Garnish with cooked asparagus and hard cooked egg slices. Bake in moderate oven [350 degrees] until hot, about 10 minutes. Serves six.

The correct bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	3 clubs	Pass	3 clubs
Pass	3 no trump	Pass	Pass
Pass

The prime attribute of a good bridge player is the ability to visualize partner's possible holdings. A great many players are able to form a mental picture of partner's high card values from strength shown during the bidding, but strangely enough, few are able to visualize the possible weakness of a partner that has not voluntarily come into the auction. This frailty becomes especially noticeable when a player acts upon the impulse normally produced by possession of a very powerful hand.

The hand recorded today is one I saw played some time ago in a 12 table duplicate and only one pair obtained the ultimate out of their cards. The bidding is indicated in the above diagram and is worthy of praise. At most tables when South responded to the double with two clubs, North jumped to four of the suit and South, of course, was fully justified in going on to five. Two diamonds and a heart had to be lost and the contract was defeated a trick. At other tables, North acting under the spell of the 100 honors leaped all the way to five clubs and was doubled. Such a bid indicates a complete lack of imagination.

North must never lose sight of the possibility that South might have nothing. He was forced to bid and his response merely indicates some length in the suit shown. That an 11 trick contract was not within reach against the opening bid, unless South held definite values, should have been apparent to North.

The proper bid after South's response is merely three clubs. This may appear to be a drastic underbid, but in point of fact is actually not so. There is an implied suggestion that if South can stop the heart suit three no trump may be attainable. It states, "Partner, even if you have nothing, I assure you we can take nine tricks with clubs as trump. If you have any values at all I'd like you to try for game."

South holding a double stopper in hearts should bid three no trump regardless of the singleton spade. North's double followed by his subsequent strong bidding indicates very plainly that he has some values in the spade suit. The taking of 10 tricks at no trump was merely routine. The same number of tricks were available with clubs as trump.

Remember the doubler should underbid. The responder should overbid.

But some time later he may do "The Pirates" (which the Lunts did on Broadway) with Lana Turner. . . . Faye Emerson Roosevelt, commuting between Hyde Park and New York for some guest air shots, is due back here the end of June for another picture. . . . Hoagy Carmichael is so good in "Johnny Angel" RKO's looking for a story to star him. Hoagy tells me he's giving up song writing for acting. Shucks! You never give up your first love entirely. . . . Peggy Ryan is so sick from her overseas shots she may not be able to go with Eddie Bracken. . . . Ella Raines, who's been trying to go overseas, has been warned not to by her doctor.

Love in Full Bloom

Judy Garland and Vincent Minelli, who were going to be married in New York, changed their plans and will be married at Judy's mother's home here, instead. They'll leave immediately afterward for New York. They get a three months' vacation from their studio. They've taken an apartment overlooking the East river. It has three terraces. Already friends have loaned them a car with a chauffeur. She'll be there for her sister Dorothy's debut at the Martinique, July 4, which is also sister's birthday. Judy will give her a party. Wedding gown is gray silk jersey with jeweled belt. Said Judy, "Isn't it wonderful? We'll be able to go to the theater when we feel like it. I'll meet all his friends. First play, we'll see is 'Glass Menagerie,' and we'll meet Laurette Taylor. She's one of Vincent's great crushes." I asked her what Papa Louis Mayer was giving her for a wedding present, and she said, "I have no idea." But I could tell him if he wants to know—'cause Judy can't afford to buy it. . . . Judy's earned this vacation. She's made "Meet Me in St. Louis," "The Ziegfeld Follies," "The Clock," and "Harvey Girls"—a total of 10 million dollars worth of pictures in little more than a year.

They're Men of Action

Our independent producers aren't foolin'. They grabbed Donald Nelson, one of our big business men, off the top rung and signed him up before he could say no, while major producers are still talking about signing Eric Johnston. . . . Dennis O'Keefe is so impressed with a girl caddy on the golf links that he talked Eddie Small into giving her a screen test for "Getting Gertie's Garter." She's Thelma Preston of Santa Barbara. . . . Two of Sinatra's bobby-soxers tried to get jobs running the elevators at New York's Astor so they could touch Harry James. . . . Lester Cowan tried to get Gen. Marshall to speak over the long distance telephone to preview crowd here for "G. I. Joe." . . . Chester Morris' 16 year old son, Brooks, joined the navy, then called his dad and said, "Dad, I've joined the navy. Will you please come down here and sign the papers for me?" . . . Well, blow me down! C. Aubrey Smith heads the cricket matches here July 1 and 4. Among the players will be Errol Flynn, Basil Rathbone, Boris Morros, Ronnie Colman, Nigel Bruce, Alan Mowbray, and Arthur Treacher. Some mighty tasty lassies will be on hand from the WAC, WAVES, SPARS, and marines, also the Scottish pipers will show their colors—and I don't mean petticoats. It's all for the Commando Benevolent 'und.

Inquiring Camera Girl

THE QUESTION

Do you think it's possible to be in love with more than one person at a time?

WHERE ASKED

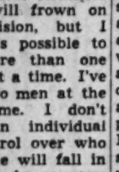
THE ANSWERS

Guido Belmonte, seaman first class, 1208 Lexington st.—There are many different kinds of love. I've met a lot of girls and they're all different. Perhaps I've liked a lot of girls, but I don't believe it's possible to actually love more than one. I'm married. No matter whom I meet I always want to come back to my wife.



Alice Olsen, artist, 5040 Kenmore av.—Perhaps many will frown on my decision, but I think it's possible to love more than one person at a time. I've loved two men at the same time. I don't think an individual has control over who he or she will fall in love with. Otherwise, why so many undesirable marriages?

Mrs. Arthur Ganja, bond saleslady, 1515 Cullom av.—I believe that you may be infatuated with one man because he's smooth—another because you like the way he dresses—another for his manners. But for love that is enduring, real love, there has to be only one. I believe it's possible to love twice but not at the same time.

Mrs. John Ferolio, housewife, 1254 N. Wells st.—I've been married 13 years. No one ever has or ever could take my husband's place. While I'm in love with him I know that I could never love any one else. It would be impossible because love must be complete and it couldn't be complete if any one else were involved.

Walter Guth, machinist, 5219 S. Long av.—Persons affect other persons in different ways. When you meet a lot of people you're bound to meet many who attract you. Every time you fall in love it's just a little bit different than the last time. I definitely think it's possible to love two persons at the same time for two different reasons.

These Cottons Offer Style at Modest Price

BY REA SEEGER

If you demand cotton clothes with a high degree of fashion, yet with surprisingly modest price marks, see the Joseph Halpert originals in the current summer fashion collections. This well known American designer has consistently presented the most wearable, yet distinctive, clothes imaginable. They are made expressly for the activities and wardrobes of the average woman. His summer cottons are not only decorative and flattering but simple enough to make their care a matter of typical summer washing and pressing.

Last summer he launched his sensational black background cotton prints. They were the dresses that looked like and were designed like the most subtle of flowered black background silk prints. This summer these prints have the same urban elegance even tho they are still of cool cotton. They are cut, draped, shirred, and detailed with consummate artistry, yet they are simple enough for office or country club wear, and with proper accessories go definitely dress parade for parties after five o'clock. Border prints, effective all-over small designs, stunning black and white prints, with more white showing than black are but some of the models now ready for the warm weather days ahead.

Brand new and especially effective are his "wonder weave" cottons that combine black with white. Black skirts, straight as a needle, are teamed with a pop corn white cotton jacket, the jacket with a snappy flared peplum, no collar, and either short or shoulder band sleeves. Or there's a clever lumber jacket with long sleeves that ends smartly right at the waistline and tops a black-as-ink slightly flared skirt. Other black and white models of this cotton material used exclusively by this designer are in the summer showings.

Grandparents Have to Earn Love of Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

The young lieutenant in uniform, looking tired and aloof, jumped off the cross-country bus and looked around. I, too, was expecting to be met, but after I had located my friend I glanced back at the young soldier, to see whether it might be his girl he was meeting. What I saw was the tall lad, his face now soft and shining, walking along with his arm around the shoulders of a cozy, dumpy little woman [his grandmother I was sure], both chattering like magpies.

Pretty nice, I thought to myself. That's the way young persons and grandparents should be together.

It's one of the rich experiences in life for children to enjoy their grandparents, and of course it's an equally rich experience for grandparents to enjoy their children

Youth and age have something to give each other and to gain from each other, and they can do both if the relationship is right. But a number of things enter into its being so.

To begin with, the attitude of the parents is a factor, in considerateness and in feeling too. To take just one phase, I remember repeated instances of flagrant disrespect shown to a grandmother by a grandson who really loved her. And why? Because the boy's father, the grandmother's son-in-law, treated her with antagonism and referred to her in the boy's hearing with contempt.

I think whenever possible, grandma should have the enjoyment of the children, without too much of their care and discipline. Unless circumstances make it imperative, [such as in this war], grandparents shouldn't have to bring up a second family.

On the other side, well, I believe grandparents have to earn the love and confidence of their grandchildren. Suppose, for example, the little round grandmother on the street, the minute she saw her grandson, had reproached him for not answering all her letters or lectured him about getting married away from home. If that had been her customary attitude toward him, would his face have glowed at the meeting? I doubt it,

FASHIONS
By Angela

The present day swim suits are a far cry from the heavy alpaca bloomer models of a few decades ago. Ours are designed with a minimum of material, utmost appeal, and the fun of streaking thru the water with the speed of a fish. A collection of new two piece bathing suits includes jersey, taffeta, seersucker, pique, and scores of interesting new weaves.

Definitely for the slim figure is the season's sensational diaper suit, at the left. The black and gold floral print jersey trunks are cut to resemble an infant's three cornered pants. The halter bra top is tied with a bow at the center front. It's available in sizes 12 to 16.

The "little girl's" suit, the red and white checked taffeta in the center, will rate a show place this season. A full checked skirt is banded with white at the hemline, and conceals white cotton jersey pants which are joined to the skirt at the elasticized waistband. The halter neck bra ties in back and repeats the color combination of the skirt.

Anshe Emet Graduation

Mirth Poured on a Little Too Thick in Movie

"MURDER, HE SAYS"

By Mae Tinée

It isn't so much murder as mayhem, assault and battery, punching, beating, kicking, slapping, prodding, or any other word you like to describe physical violence which predominates in Fred MacMurray's latest film. It's sheer buffoonery, and it's a good thing Fred is a big, husky giant—I'll bet he went home to Mrs. M. just plain exhausted after a day of playing Pete Marshall.

An inoffensive employe of one of those agencies which is always asking people questions and calling the answers a survey, Pete wanders into a hillbilly town in search of the backwoods opinions and, incidentally, a co-worker named Smedley who preceded him into that territory and disappeared. He stumbles onto the notorious Fleagle family, as fine an assortment of morons and bad eggs as any asylum ever harbored. Maw [very well done by Marjorie Main] is a raucous old harridan armed with a long black whip with which she controls her brawny feeble minded twins, Mert and Bert. Their sister, Elany, admittedly is "teched" and that's a mild word for the weird characterization little Jean Heather offers. Porter Hall is Maw's third husband, a learned sort of nut known as Mr. Johnson.

They're all awaitin' on Grandmaw—a tough old soul forcefully played by Mabel Paige—to die, hoping that as she breathes her last she will reveal where two other felonious Fleagles hid the money they stole from a bank. They come to the conclusion that Pete learned the valuable secret, and by whip, gun, or knife, they'll get it out of him—and that's all you need to know of the plot.

The first half of the film about this shrill and roughneck bunch is a smooth sort of crack-brained comedy, and Mr. MacMurray does an excellent job thruout—but the whole film is much too long and the last part of it just plain silly and repetitious. Enough is enough of interminable chases—fun is fun, but it can't go on forever.

I never did find out what happened to Smedley, I reckon the hawgs must of et him—but he's certinly not missed in the insane merry-go-round which brings the picture to a close. Unless you're a rugged soul with an insatiable appetite for clowning, you'll probably chuckle for a while but succumb to yawning before it's all over.

Lightweight Comedy

"G I HONEYMOON"
Produced by Monogram, directed by Phil Karlstein, featuring Gale Storm, Peter Cookson, Arline Judge, Frank Jenks, Jerome Cowan, Jonathan Hale, Andrew Tombes, Virginia Brissac, Ruth Lee, Earle Hodgins, Ralph Lewis, Claire Whitney, Lois Austin, Jimmy Conlin, Milton Kibbee, and Jack Overman. Presented at the Oriental.

Wives of service men may get a mild kick out of this comedy, which is just about what you might expect, altho not badly done.

Gale Storm plays a dimpled darling who is used to getting what she wants by the liberal application of honey talk to susceptible males. The film opens with her oft interrupted marriage to an army lieutenant, but, due to regulations, the housing situation, and a number of other complications, the bride and groom are constantly separated. A man whom she smilingly double-crossed out of a drawing room on the train has ample opportunity to repay her in kind, which he does by renting her his former gambling den as an apartment. The place has been declared out of bounds for military personnel, which makes everything just dandy.

"GI Honeymoon" is entirely lightweight comedy, but timely and fast moving.

Loyola's Acting Head Will Discuss Jesuit Teaching in Chicago

The Rev. James T. Hussey, acting president of Loyola university, will speak before the Chicago Serra club at a noon luncheon gathering today in the University club, reviewing "Seventy-five Years of Jesuit Education in Chicago." Father Hussey, 40 years old, is one of the youngest men to head a Chicago university. Formerly dean of men at Loyola, he was appointed acting president in February when the Rev. Joseph M. Egan took a leave of absence because of ill health. Father Hussey has two brothers who also are in the Jesuit order, one a missionary in India and the other on the faculty of Loyola academy here. The Serra club is an organization of Catholic business men.

CUBS DROP TWO; SOX DEFEAT INDIANS, 4-3

PIRATES TAKE OPENER, 5 TO 2, SECOND, 6 TO 5

Pittsburgh Climbs to First Place

BY EDWARD BURNS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 14—The Pittsburgh Pirates vaulted into the National league lead this afternoon, but you scarcely could say they did it the hard way. They did it by the comparatively simple process of twice beating the Cubs, who have been allergic to pennant races since 1938—5 to 2 in the first game of a double header before 12,880, and 6 to 5 in the afterpiece, in which the Cub hopes were kept alive because of nine passes by Rip Sewell.

Those ferocious boys you saw in Wrigley field Sunday made only six hits in the first game and seven in the second, including a single by Heinz Becker and a double by Andy Pafko, which meant nothing because Becker was caught standing off first, perhaps wondering what he'll say when he visits his draft board in Dallas, a mission on which he will set out tomorrow night.

Six Straight for Winners

The business today gave the Pirates a sweep of the three game series, five straight in over all play with the Cubs, and six in their recent competition in the league. The Cubs never were ahead or so much as even, in the series, after the scoring began in each game. Had the Cubs swept the series they would have been a half game behind the Dodgers, who would now be the league leaders of the Pirates.

The winning pitchers were Max Butcher, who went all the way in the first game, and Sewell, who had to be helped out by Xavier Rescigno in the second game. The losers were Bob Chipman and Paul Derringer.

Tomorrow the Cubs will play a twilight-night double header in Cincinnati. Claude Passeau and Hi Vandenberg will patch. Claude will be after his third victory over the Reds and it will be Vandenberg's first start of the season.

Coscarart Hits a Homer

From the time Erickson replaced Chipman with none out in the first inning in the first game until after Paul had struck out Elliott at the start of the sixth, only two Pirates reached base—Coscarart, who was given an intentional pass in the first inning and Gionfriddo, who beat out a bunt at the start of the third inning. Elliott, first up for the Pirates in the sixth, was called out on strikes but Dahlgren was hit by a pitched ball. Coscarart knocked the ball over the left field fence, a yard inside the foul pole, scoring behind Dahlgren. It was Pete's second homer of the season.

Elliott raced to the end of the right foul line to nab Gillespie's line drive at the start of the seventh then Merullo singled to left and stopped at second when Lowrey, batting for Erickson, singled to center. Hack rolled a douole play ball to Barnhart, who fumbled and the bases were loaded, Johnson filed to Barrett, Merullo scoring, and Becker whiffed.

Sewell Starts Trouble

Sewell opened the third inning onslaught in the second game with a double to center and scored on Handley's double to left center. Barrett beat out a bunt to Becker, Handley stopping at third. Gionfriddo caromed the ball off Derringer to Johnson who threw to Becker to retire Gionfriddo, Handley scoring. The Cubs contended Barrett had run out of the base path in avoiding Johnson's tag effort and in the debate Mickey Livingston kicked dirt on Umpire Len Ballanfant, an act which caused him to be ejected. After the wrangle, Elliott singled to left, scoring Barrett.

In the fifth the Cubs made two runs and had the bases loaded when the inning ended. Merullo walked and took second on a wild pitch. Len held second while Sewell was throwing out Derringer, but Hack walked. Johnson got that second Cub hit, a single to right, scoring Merullo. The runners advanced while Saltzgaver was throwing out Becker, then Cavarretta drew an intentional pass, loading the bases. Pafko got the fourth pass of the inning, forcing Hack across the plate. Nicholson then popped to Saltzgaver.

The Pirates resumed firing in the sixth. Elliott singled and, after Salkeld had bounced to Johnson, Dahlgren tripled to left center, scoring Elliott. Saltzgaver was given an intentional pass whereupon Dahlgren scored while Derringer was throwing out Barnhart. Sewell banged his second double, scoring Saltzgaver.

Hack got the seventh Sewell pass at the start of the seventh and Johnson knocked his second and the Cubs' third hit, a single to left. Becker walked, loading the bases. Cavarretta flied to Gionfriddo, Hack scoring. Pafko flied to Elliott but Nicholson lined a single to right for the fourth Chicago hit, scoring Johnson. Gillespie batted for Rice, and singled to right, scoring Becker.

On the Road to Home

While homeward bound we never mind
If skies are blue or gray;
Those troubles that we left behind
Somehow just fade away.
If rough the going, we ignore
The fact. We know the miles
Ahead will bring us to the door
Of loved ones and their smiles.

I wish that we might also be Unmindful of the trials
Encountered on life's great highway,
Remembering God's smiles
Will greet us at the journey's end—
Wherever we may roam,
Lord, make us conscious of the fact
We're on the road to home!

Jimmy Hines Sets Pace in Benefit Golf

Philadelphia, Pa., June 14 (AP)—A four under par 66 by Jimmy Hines, songs by Bing Crosby, and picnic lunches by thousands of spectators on the swank layout of the Llanerch Country club today marked the first round in the second Philadelphia $17,500 Open golf tournament.

Hines, now of Chicago and three times Metropolitan champion, was two strokes ahead of Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., and Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, Ga., after the first 18 holes of the 72 hole tourney being played for the benefit of the Professional Golfers' association rehabilitation fund.

Nelson's putter kept him from a phenomenal score. Eight times his ball hung on the lip of the cup and required an additional tap. Henry Picard of Harrisburg, Pa., and Ed Furgol, the Detroit amateur, also shaved par, each registering 69.

Sam Snead, playing with his right wrist bandaged because of a sprain suffered in a handball game with a caddie, had a par 70, as did Toney Penna of Dayton, Ky Laffoon of Chicago, Willie Goggin of White Plains, N. Y., Bruce Coltart of Absecon, N. J., and Felix Serafin of Pittston, Pa.

SGT. GOSTELE, FRISINA LEAD IN AMATEUR GOLF

Tie for State Medal Honors at 150

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

It took two overseas veterans and a trio of oldsters to provide the preliminary fireworks in the 15th Illinois amateur tournament conducted by the Chicago District Golf association yesterday [and last evening] at the St. Charles Country club. The final pyrotechnics were supplied by the officials at approximately 9:10 p. m. when they utilized divers sources of illumination to conduct a play-off for the last place in the championship bracket of 32 players who will go to work in two 18 hole match play rounds today.

Heading the field of 139, biggest and best ever to compete in this event, were Marine Sgt. John Gostele, a former caddie at Elgin Country club, but now a veteran of 28 months' overseas service, and Jimmy Frisina, the Taylorville movie mogul who won the championship in 1942. The two led the 36 hole qualifying round, clouded thruout the day with occasional sprinklings, and punctuated by that lamplighters' carnival in last evening's darkness, with scores of 150, six over St. Charles' par.

Dawson, Atten Have 152

While the rest of the field was finding heavy going, George Dawson of Glen Oak, twice winner of the championship, was giving it and the youngsters in the company their come-uppance with a 74—78—152. Matching Dawson's aggregate was young Jack Atten, Chick Evans' protege from Edgewater. Jack had a 75—77—152 to pace the fine Northwestern university delegation which the reliable Ted Payseur, golf coach and athletic director of the Wildcats, brought out early yesterday morning.

Don Armstrong, the big Aurora blond, recorded a 153 which included the best round of the day, an afternoon 73. Another standout was Sgt. Walter Burkemo, the popular, curly haired youngster who once won the Western Junior and was runner-up for the C. D. G. A. crown before he entered the army, in which he twice was wounded while overseas. Wearing a special back brace, Walter, who now is stationed at Fletcher hospital in Cambridge, O., put together two nice 78s for a qualifying score of 156.

Foreman Takes It Easy

Harold Foreman Jr., of Lake Shore, who won the 1944 championship at Peoria, was not required to qualify, but played a morning 77 and then traveled around the afternoon session at his leisure.

The cards of Sgt. Gostele and Frisina follow:

RE-NAME DUTTON PRESIDENT OF HOCKEY LEAGUE

MONTREAL, Que., June 14 (AP)—Mervyn [Red] Dutton tonight was renamed president of the National Hockey league for a five year term.

Announcement of the reappointment came after a meeting of the league's board of governors which lasted thruout the day and into the evening.

Other subjects under discussion at the closed meeting were the possibility of granting a franchise to Philadelphia, major-minor league agreements, next season's schedule, and various rule changes.

Hoop Jr., Pavot Have Rival in Preakness in Helis' Adonis

Baltimore, Md., June 14 (AP)—Almost every one around here has been talking about a couple of 3 year olds named Hoop Jr. and Pavot making a two horse race out of the 55th Preakness stakes, but goings on today prompted a cautious reminder that a dark horse may spoil things and make off with the glory and gold at Pimlico Saturday.

First there was the jockey scramble for the chance to ride Hoop Jr. After Eddie Arcaro, who rode F. W. Hooper's star to a Kentucky Derby victory, had to bow out because of contract obligation, Albert Snider finally drew the coveted assignment.

Adonis Moves In

On top of this there is an unusual amount of confusion and secrecy about the probable field, complicated by the fact most of the owners and trainers are absent because the Preakness card is a special one day event and since there now is no racing at Pimlico the people who know about such things are scattered at other tracks.

Finally, William Helis' Adonis, a son of Reigh Count, moved in quietly and unannounced last night and calmly began preparing for the big $50,000 added event without so much as letting the front office know what was going on out in the barns.

As it now looks—barring some additional changes—the tentative field stands at 10 starters, with a good possibility that E. R. Bradley's Burning Dream will be scratched because of some bad leg lacerations received in the Derby. Also, Trainer J. W. Smith said Bail Bond, which accompanied Burning Dream here, is not ready to run the mile and three-sixteenths Preakness distance.

Hoop Jr. Still Is Favorite

A revised odds listing made Hoop Jr. still the favorite at 8 to 5 today, with Walter M. Jefford's Pavot next at 5 to 2, and Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Polynesian third at 8 to 1. This latter occasioned no great surprise, since Polynesian dealt Pavot the only defeat in his career June 6 in the Withers mile at Belmont.

The remainder of the field as it now lines up, with probable odds, includes Mrs. W. G. Lewis' Darby Dieppe, 10 to 1; the Pentagon stable's The Doge, 12 to 1; Henry Lunger's Alexis, 15 to 1; Adonis, and C. S. Howard's Sea Swallow, 20 to 1, and the Bobanet stable's Bobanet, 25 to 1.

GREENBERG OUT OF ARMY; TIGERS AWAIT RETURN

New York, June 14 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers' pennant hopes zoomed today as Capt. Henry [Hank] Greenberg received an honorable discharge from the army and announced his future plans include playing baseball for the Tigers.

The slugging first baseman-outfielder who commanded a reported $55,000 salary when he went into service in 1941, was mustered out at Fort Dix, N. J., under the army's demobilization program after almost four years' service. He left immediately for his New York home.

Last July 9 when Detroit was in seventh place, Dick Wakefield was released from the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school and sparked the club into the pennant fight, Detroit losing out on the last day to the St. Louis Browns.

Tigers in Chicago Today

Altho Wakefield was recalled to service during the winter, the Tigers picked up Al Benton, a former sailor, and Les Mueller, an army dischargee, to help out Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout, the pitching mainstays. They now rest in first place by a half game margin. Benton won his first five starts, including three shutouts and had lost only one when his leg was broken by a line drive May 24.

There was no definite word tonight on how soon Greenberg would rejoin the Tigers, who open a series tomorrow in Chicago, but General Manager Jack Zeller has given assurance there will be no trouble over a contract. The slugger had not communicated directly with the club, but is entitled to his old salary for at least 60 days.

Was Commanding Officer

Greenberg arrived at Fort Dix yesterday after serving overseas for two years in the China-Burma-India theater. He was commanding officer of the headquarters squadron of the bombardment wing in China before his return to the United States.

Inducted May 7, 1941, in the first weeks of the season, Greenberg was discharged under the over 28 provision later the same year, but re-enlisted in December. In August, 1942, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the air corps after his graduation from officer candidates school in Miami Beach, Fla.

The Detroit star, a native New Yorker, was 34 Jan. 1 and played with the Tigers from 1933 until his induction. In 1938 he hit 58 home runs, a department in which he led the league in 1938 and 1940, and was tied for first in 1935. He was voted the most valuable player in the the league in 1935 and 1940.

GIANTS TRADE JOE MEDWICK TO BOSTON BRAVES

New York, June 14 (AP)—Eddie Brannick, secretary of the New York Giants, tonight reported the trading of Outfielder Joe Medwick and Ewald Pyle, left handed pitcher, to the Boston Braves for Catcher Clyde Kluttz. No cash was involved.

In Boston, Bob Coleman, manager of the Braves, said he plans to use Medwick in left field and shift Tommy Holmes, the league's leading batter, to right field. Medwick and Pyle will report Saturday.

Birmingham, Ala., June 14 (AP)—The Birmingham Barons today announced that Catcher Arthur Michalski had been obtained by the club on option from the Chicago White Sox. Michalski, a right hander hitter, is expected to report here tomorrow.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

Between the pitching and the hitting of their own Orval Grove, the White Sox continued yesterday to derive pleasure from the presence of Lou Boudreau's Cleveland Indians, James Dykes' boys, notwithstanding a three-run handicap set up against them in the first inning, swept the three game series for a season record of eight victories in nine arguments with the same foe, the decisive margin of the 4 to 3 score being a run driven in by Grove's bat.

Grove, who now is tied with Thornton Lee with seven victories and four losses, jumped away to a bad start because of three hits and a pair of errors, one by himself. He was still shaky in the second inning when the Indians added two more hits but he then settled down to almost airtight ball, his associates meanwhile picking on Jim Bagby Jr. for lone runs in the third and fourth and the tying and winning runs in the sixth.

Tony Blasts a Double

The knockout punch in the sixth was started by Tony Cuccinello, who led off with a double to right center. Like the two other Sox who scored, Cuccinello enjoyed a bit of outside help. He skipped to third when Bagby threw wild trying to pick him off second. Le Roy Schalk stepped in with a single to center, driving home the tying run. Cass Michaels followed with a pop-up and Mike Tresh was thrown out, leaving the 3 to 3 deadlock in the hands of Grove. He broke it with a two-bagger to left center, Schalk scoring. Grove's double proved to be the last Sox hit of the afternoon.

Singles by Dutch Meyer and Mickey Rocco started the three run disturbance encountered by Grove in the first inning. He complicated matters for himself by fumbling Paul O'Dea's bunt, filling the bases before anybody was retired. Meyer, who immediately quit work because of a lame side, scored while Jeff Heath was forcing O'Dea and Rocco counted on Frank Hayes' infield out. Heath worked his way from second to third on a scratch hit by Manager Boudreau and scored the third run while Cuccinello was doing a juggling act with Don Ross' roller.

Hayes Helps Our Side

Without aid from Hayes the Sox wouldn't have had the pleasure in the third of making the first impression on the Indians' three run lead. With one out Wally Moses walked and galloped to third on Oris Hockett's single to center. Bagby blocked off a torrid drive by Kerby Farrell and recovered in time to trap Moses between third and home. In the subsequent jockeying Bagby tossed to Hayes, who didn't have time to get a grip on the ball before Moses crashed into him for the first run.

Two hits knocked off another third of the Indians' lead in the fourth. Michaels singled to center with one out and enjoyed a bargain ride to second on a passed ball by Hayes. A double down the left field line by Tresh scored him, but the next two fellows did nothing about scoring Mike.

Orval Escapes a Jam

After fixing himself with a lead, Grove didn't have a particularly easy time holding it. Al Cihocki, who replaced the ailing Meyer, singled to open the seventh but was foiled by a double play. Then the eighth brought real distress in the shape of a double by Heath and a single by Hayes, putting Indians on third and first with none out. Boudreau was dispatched on a fly to short right, Ross on a popup that Schalk handled and Myril Hoag on a fly to Hockett in center.

DODGERS KNOCK GIANTS OUT OF 1ST PLACE, 5-4

Win Game with 2 Runs in Last of Ninth

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 14 (AP)—The New York Giants lost their National league lead today when the Brooklyn Dodgers rallied for two runs in the last of the ninth to win, 5 to 4, for their sixth straight victory.

It was the sixth successive loss for the Giants and the fifth loss in a row for Bill Voiselle. Only once before, on April 28, when Chicago took over for 24 hours, had New York been out of first place. Pittsburgh's double triumph today over Chicago put them on top in the race.

NLRB Goes Ahead on Vote by Drivers Today

The federal bureau of investigation, it was learned yesterday, has been asked to investigate the trucking wage controversy to determine whether any illegal incitement has been made toward a second strike of union truck drivers in Chicago.

Observers said many signs indicate that the independent Chicago Truck Drivers' union, which went out on a week-long strike last month, will go on strike again tomorrow unless last minute action prevents.

Truck Lines Under ODT Rule

The FBI was invited into the case because the office of defense transportation seized control of strike-bound trucking lines under an order from President Truman after the independent union's walkout tied up war materials, hospital supplies, and foods.

The Smith-Connally act outlaws a strike by employes of any firms under federal control and makes any one instigating or financing such a strike liable to a year's imprisonment or $5,000 fine or both.

The May strike and the current union trouble go back to the war labor board's refusal to grant demands by the independent union and by local 705 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters [AFL] for a $5 weekly increase and a 48 hour week. The WLB granted instead a $4.08 boost which was made retroactive to Jan. 1—but on the basis of a 51 hour week.

Both unions petitioned last April for a strike vote, which will be held today at 111 W. Jackson blvd. under supervision of the national labor relations board. The NLRB has authorized the election for those employes whose employers have not received formal, written notice of the ODT control. Workers whose employers have received notice are not eligible to vote.

AFL Opposed to Strike

Edward Fenner, executive director, and Steve Slavor, president of the independent union, said that they were virtually powerless to interfere if their men wanted to strike.

Henry Burger, International organizer for the IBT, said his union will not sanction any strike. The IBT union opposed the May strike, altho many of its members joined the independents in sympathy, or were forced out of work.

BORRELLI HEARD ON APPEAL FROM GAS CARD RULING

Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli, whose gas ration coupons were revoked by local board 7 last month, yesterday compared his trip to Hot Springs, Ark. on his A coupons and supplementary C coupons, to a man carrying a gun to protect his life. "I had to take the trip," Judge Borrelli told Frederick F. Fletcher, special hearing officer for the office of price administration. "The Supreme court has held a man can carry a gun to protect his life. I had these coupons. Wasn't I entitled to use them?"

Joseph B. Kovarik, district rationing attorney, said the OPA could not issue special gas coupons for a trip to a warmer climate. Borrelli replied that his ration board granted him such special coupons in January, 1944.

Fletcher said he would make his decision on Borrelli's appeal in two or three days. The local board revoked Borrelli's supplementary coupons for the duration of rationing and his A coupons until Feb. 6, 1945.

SHERIFF ASKS POLICE PENSION FOR TWO WIDOWS

Suggestion that the police annuity and benefit fund provide a monthly pension for the families of two deputy sheriffs killed in an automobile accident June 6 was made yesterday by Sheriff Mulcahy.

Writing to the fund board, Mulcahy suggested a pension of $150 a month for 27 years be provided for the widow of William Pottow, 38, and $139 a month for the widow of Leonard Horditz, 42.

Both suffered fatal injuries when an automobile driven by Miss Frances Mukitis, Grayslake, Lake county, struck their squad car. The deputies were chasing a speeder.

COURT ENJOINS UNION AT WARD'S AGAINST LIBEL

Judge Joseph A. Graber of Superior court yesterday issued a temporary injunction restraining local 20, United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employes' union, from printing untruths against Montgomery Ward & Co. in its weekly publication, The Spotlight.

Francis Heisler, attorney for the union, immediately assailed the decision as an infringement of the constitutional right of freedom of speech. Judge Graber explained that his order was designed to enjoin the conspiracy to print untruths and did not prevent the magazine from printing the truth.

Court Power Challenged

The suit for injunction was filed by Ward in November, 1943, and charged the union with conspiring to prejudice both employes and customers against the company.

In court Atty. Heisler argued that a court may not enjoin libel by injunction. He argued that no court in the land had yet tried to do that. He contended that no court has the right to issue such an injunction against a newspaper and, he added, the Spotlight is a newspaper.

Judge Graber agreed that courts may not enjoin libel. That power, he said, would destroy the freedom of the press. He asserted, however, that courts are empowered to enjoin conspiracies, and that was the problem he was concerned with. He then issued the injunction, but continued the case to 2 p. m. Monday, when Atty. Heisler will petition for a writ of supersedeas to stay the order.

Refuses to Dismiss Suit

At the same time, Judge Graber refused to dismiss Ward's million dollar damage suit against the union.

Outside of court, the union lawyer asserted that a court might not issue an injunction against a newspaper if it did contain lies.

"No court can determine what's true or untrue in advance," Heisler said. "A libel suit for damages is the only recourse in this type of situation."

BILLS REPORTED IN DROWNING OF TWO DAUGHTERS

The Cook county grand jury yesterday was reported to have voted two true bills charging Mrs. Helen Souhrada, 29, of 2429 S. Troy st., a widow, with the murder of her daughters, Nancy, 3, and Constance, 7 months. They were drowned Sunday night in the bathtub in their home and will be buried today.

The mother first asserted her children drowned accidentally, but later confessed she held their heads under water. Assistant State's Atty. Sam Freedman said he will act next week for a mental examination by Dr. William H. Haines, head of the Criminal court behavior clinic.

Four witnesses appeared before the grand jury. A sister, Mrs. Emily Brehn, testified that Mrs. Souhrada has been depressed since her husband, John, 40, died last Nov. 13. Freedman was said to have approved Mrs. Souhrada's release to attend the children's funeral.

BOARD IN CICERO FIRES 5, RAISES TEACHERS' PAY

School board district 99, Cicero, last night ordered the discharge of three truant officers, a board clerk, and a secretary, demoted three principals to teachers, and transferred four others in a meeting at which 250 members of civic and school organizations protested the action.

The board then announced it was transferring the $24,500 saved by the action into salary raises for 158 teachers. Each teacher was raised $150 a year, effective June 30. The board also disclosed that it was taking applications for superintendent of the Cicero schools.

Julian Kosinski, president pro tem of the board, told the protesting townsmen, "By this action we are preparing a better education for our children," and explained that unless savings had been effected thru the methods taken it would have been impossible for the board to increase teachers' salaries.

MATTHEW SLOAN, RAIL EXECUTIVE, IS DEAD IN NEW YORK AT 63

New York, June 14 (AP)—Matthew S. Sloan, 63, president and chairman of the board of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad, and one of the nation's leading financial figures, died in New York hospital today of a heart attack. He entered the hospital May 31.

Matthew Sloan

At one time, he headed five companies which together comprised the largest electric light and power system in the world. These were Brooklyn Edison company, the New York Edison company, the United Electric Light and Power company, the New York and Queens Electric Light and Power company, and the Yonkers Electric Light and Power company.

SCHOOL BOARD DEADLOCKED IN SLUR ON F. D. R.

The hearing of insubordination charges against Miss Nellie I. Mills, 53, veteran high school teacher in East Chicago, Ind., accused of making disparaging remarks about the late President Roosevelt, reached a stalemate last night when George Grimmer, Democratic school board member, refused to vote on the matter.

Grimmer said he would not consider the case until he had read the transcript of the previous meeting on May 17, altho he had been present at that meeting. His Democratic colleague, John J. Dreesen, whose reappointment as board president was voted down last Monday by the East Chicago city council, was not present.

The third member of the three man board, Michael Havran, a Republican, asked that the charges be dismissed, but Grimmer refused to act. The status of the case is now uncertain, said Allen P. Twyman, attorney for Miss Mills.

Miss Mills, a biology teacher, was accused of having said during the Roosevelt funeral: "For the first time in 12 years I can pledge allegiance to America."

KELLY DEFINES 'ORGANIZATION' AND 'MACHINE'

Kansas City, Kas., June 14 [Special]—Chicago Democrats definitely do have a "machine" on the word of none other than its head, Mayor Kelly, who discussed political machines tonight in an address at a delayed Jefferson day dinner here.

Mayor Kelly said he wouldn't deny that "for many years I have worked along more or less close coupled political organization lines." He explained that the difference between a machine and an organization is that the first is what you have when you win, the latter what you have when you lose, and added: "We have a 'machine,' as does any going concern."

He asserted that the "country could not get along without politicians" and termed the late President Roosevelt "the greatest politician of his time." Speaking of the death of Mr. Roosevelt, Kelly noted that, "despite the necessity of changing skippers, America's ship of state sailed calmly along."

SENATORS TOLD OF CLASHES ON SURPLUS BOARD

Gillette, Outvoted, Decides to Resign

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—Members of the surplus property board today aired their differences before the senate military committee's subcommittee on war contracts. They testified at a hearing called to throw light on the board's policies and plans in disposing of war surpluses.

Former Sen. Gillette [D., Ia.] told the subcommittee he was "representing the minority" of the board. "When a policy is decided upon, it necessarily becomes mine because I am chairman, therefore I am resigning," Gillette said.

Successor at Hearing

Gillette's resignation will take effect July 15. President Truman has nominated W. Stuart Symington, St. Louis, Mo., businessman, to succeed Gillette. Symington, whose nomination has not been acted upon by the senate, attended today's hearing.

Gillette said the disposal of a billion dollars worth of government-owned machine tools was a major item of disagreement between him and the other members of the board.

They are former Gov. Robert A. Hurley of Connecticut and Edward Heller, former San Francisco banker and recently a lieutenant colonel in the army.

Hurley then explained to the committee that he and Heller had drafted a regulation, now in effect, waiving options on about 250,000 machine tools now held by war contractors in whose plants the government had placed the machines.

How Options Were Handled

The questioning developed this as the option situation:

Most of the war contractors using government owned machine tools were given an option to buy the tools within 90 days after completion of their contracts. The options call for purchase of all or none.

Altho the prime contractor holds the option, the tools are widely distributed among subcontractors.

The Hurley-Heller regulation offers the prime contractors the opportunity to purchase now those tools they want, under a lower price formula than the option, provided they surrender their option on the remainder.

Hurley contended this would enable the subcontractors to acquire the tools not purchased by the prime contractors and would keep the tools in place and speed reconversion. Under the original option plan, he said, the government would have to remove and store at large expense many of the tools.

Not in Accord with Law

Gillette contended that the board's action was not in accordance with the surplus property act, but Heller told the committee the waiving of the options prevented the tools from getting into the hands of monopolies. This, he asserted, was in line with the intent of congress.

Gillette professed also to "serious disturbance in my mind" over proposals for five-year leases of government-owned war plants. He said that if a "monopolistic group" leased a plant it could handle it in such a manner that its value as a factor in the industry would be destroyed.

Heller argued that the lease systems would allow time for "a long look" before disposal of a plant. As a broad principle, he said, the board hopes to encourage local committees to advise on disposal of plants in each community.

The surplus board authorized the army-navy liquidation commission, headed by Thomas B. McCabe of Philadelphia, to handle the billions of dollars worth of surpluses owned by all United States agencies overseas, including aircraft.

10 Million Dollars of Plane Engine Orders Canceled

Detroit, Mich., June 14 (AP)—The air technical service command today announced cancellation of approximately 10 million dollars of contracts for Pratt & Whitney engines held by the Continental Aviation and Engineering corporation, Muskegon, Mich. The termination affects principally an engine on which production had not started and will affect man power requirements little, officials said.

Ask 2 Million Dollar Fees in Midland Case

Additional fees have been asked in the 11 year old Midland United company and Midland Utilities company reorganization case which if approved will bring the total, including fees already paid, to more than 2 million dollars. A hearing on the requests by nearly all parties concerned in the case will be held in federal District court in Wilmington, Del., July 9.

The reorganization of the two companies has been approved and confirmed by the court and distribution of securities and cash has begun. An appeal by a group of prior lien stockholders seeking to set aside the court's confirmation order is pending in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia.

$591,867 Already Paid

Fees already received by the various persons involved in the proceedings total $591,867. Additional compensation of $1,439,682 is sought, which would make a total of $2,031,549.

Included among the persons asking compensation in the case are trustees, trustees' attorneys, protective and debenture holders committees and their attorneys and auditors, the special master in the case, and depositaries for protective and prior lien committees.

Largest Requests Listed

Largest among the paid and requested fees follow:

Two federal judges sat in the reorganization proceedings which began in June, 1934, in Wilmington. Judge John P. Nields handled the early proceedings and Judge John Biggs Jr. took over after Judge Nields' retirement. Nields died in 1943. In addition hearings were held by the securities and exchange commission and by a special master in chancery, Daniel O. Hastings.

RYE PRICES RISE ON POSSIBLE USE BY DISTILLERIES

Prices of all rye futures yesterday rose to new seasonal peaks for the second consecutive day on the Chicago Board of Trade. Advances were 1¼ to 2⅞ cents a bushel. Buying was based on the belief that the expected war production board ban on the use of corn for beverage distilling during next month's liquor holiday would be announced later. The WPB action would increase demand for rye.

Wheat closed ¼ lower to ⅝ higher, corn unchanged to ⅝ higher, oats ⅓ to ¾ higher, and barley ½ to 2 higher.

After the market closed the price administration said that because present ceiling prices for corn "fully reflect parity" to the producer, no price increase is being considered.

ICKES RETURNS 260 MINES TO THEIR OWNERS

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—Solid Fuels Administrator Ickes today returned to their private owners 260 bituminous coal mines which had been taken over by the government when they were strike-bound by wage disputes. They are in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Tennessee, Virginia, Kentucky, West Virginia, Illinois, Indiana, and Alabama.

All except two—those of the Jewell Ridge Coal corporation at Tazewell, Va.—were taken over in April and May of this year. The Jewell Ridge properties were taken over Nov. 1, 1943, and continued in government possession after other soft coal mines were returned to their owners a year ago following an earlier dispute. The corporation had not entered into the national bituminous wage agreement pending the outcome of litigation over portal-to-portal pay, recently upheld by the Supreme court.

Only 13 bituminous mines remain in government possession. Most of them are not in operation.

CATTLE PRICES WEAK TO LOWER IN DULL TRADE

Prices of almost all classes of cattle were weak to lower yesterday as many buyers restricted their purchases to the kinds of stock that have been pulled down from the maximum price ranges. Bulls and beef cows were hit hardest, selling fully 25 cents lower.

Weak to 25 cent lower prices bought the majority of steers. The best sold at $17.60 and the bulk at $15.50 to $17.40.

Hog buyers, on hand early, offered OPA ceiling prices for nearly everything that farmers brought in. Most sellers permitted only the sorting required by price rules, which took out all sows, stags, and boars from the $14.75 top droves.

Strong to 25 cent higher prices were paid for new crop lambs, with $16.25 the top. Old crop shorn lambs sold $14.35 to $14.65. Aged ewes sold for breeding at $8.25.

Order 35 Pct. Cut in Rail Rate on Meat Sent West

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—The interstate commerce commission today ordered a reduction of about 35 per cent in freight rates on fresh meats and packing house products shipped in carloads from the midwest to the Pacific coast. A reduction had been asked by midwest packers who said Pacific coast packers were able to buy midwest live stock, slaughter it and sell it on the coast at rates unreasonably below those which midwest packers had to charge for their dressed meats.

NLRB Broke, Cuts Regional Office Activity

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—The national labor relations board, its funds depleted by an unforeseen increase in the number of strike votes, drastically curtailed its regional operations and looked to congress today for help.

The new allotment of funds now before the senate appropriations committee will not be available until July 1, and the board is broke, a spokesman said in an interview.

Printing Fund Not Available

The agency has about $80,000 in its printing and binding fund, but this cannot be used for anything else unless legislation is enacted to free it for general expenses.

Chairman Cannon [D., Mo.] of the house appropriations committee said the committee would take up the NLRB's situation Saturday. Provision for the transfer may be written into the second deficiency bill coming before the house next week. Passage thru the house and senate is not expected before Saturday, June 23, at the earliest.

Cut Out Phone Calls, Travel

For the next 10 days, therefore, the board has ordered its regional offices to cut out long distance telephone calls, telegrams, and travel, and to depend on the mails for communicating with Washington or other regions.

The load of strike votes became suddenly heavier last March when John L. Lewis asked that his 400,000 bituminous coal miners be polled. This election, held March 28, cost $165,000, and the anthracite miners' election a month later cost about $40,000.

End Hearings on G.M.&O., Alton Merger

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 14—An interstate commerce commission hearing on the petition of the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio railroad to purchase and operate the bankrupt Alton railroad was concluded today, completing another major step toward unification of the two lines as a 3,000 mile thru system linking gulf ports with Chicago.

The ICC took the petition under advisement. A decision is expected soon. No opposition to the proposed consolidation appeared and the ICC waived the usual examiner's report and filing of briefs.

E. D. Scruggs, engineering and financial representative of the G. M. & O., testified that the unified system would have a net working capital of $14,692,470, or almost half the long term indebtedness of $30,882,994. He said that on April 30 the estimated value of the Alton was $77,183,296. Against this valuation would be issued $38,600,000 in securities and the financial structure of the unified system would be sound, he said.

Patrick B. McGinnis of New York, representing the Alton bondholders' protective committee, testified that in the interests of the bondholders, unification with G. M. & O. is the best possible means of reorganization.

CIO-UAW LOCAL CHIEFS ASK FOR STRIKE BALLOT

Detroit, Mich., June 14 (AP)—Local leaders of the CIO United Automobile Workers petitioned the national labor relations board today for an industry-wide strike vote. More than 600 officers of UAW local unions representing more than 400,000 workers voted 5 to 1 in favor of the petition.

Unionists said the purpose of the strike vote was to force recognition of union demands. They include a 30 hour work week without loss of take home pay and upward revision of the Little Steel formula.

International union officers called the meeting after a request for a conference by local union presidents. Amid a boisterous demonstration, delegates overruled Richard T. Leonard, regional director, who held the motion calling for a strike vote was out of order. President R. J. Thomas pleaded against striking at this time.

CURB PAY TILL GOODS SUPPLY RISES, IS PLEA

Controls over wages should be maintained until civilian goods flow freely, but all other government regulation of labor contracts should be dropped as quickly as possible, Dr. Leo Wolman, Columbia professor of economics, said last night.

At the American Management association's personnel conference in the Palmer House, Wolman said the war labor board has been "virtually writing labor contracts" in the last few years, and that developments in contracts have been made in two or three years that in normal times would require 20.

He explained that the faster the country reconverts, the faster wage and price ceilings can be removed, but the slower the reconversion,

Summer Heat, Old Age Doom 135,000 Chicago Auto Tires

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

Old age and hot weather during the next 90 days are expected to destroy 134,900 tires on Chicago automobiles, the Rubber Manufacturers' association said yesterday. Its estimate was based on a nation-wide survey which showed that for the whole country a minimum of 20 million tires will go off the road during 1945.

The association said 364,320 tires will be required in Illinois to replace tires lost to use between now and early September.

Current Checkup Urged

Altho the tire outlook is improving, the need to look after present tires is urgent, said A. L. Viles, president of the association. Hot weather is especially destructive and if July and August produce some 90 to 100 degree temperatures the number of tire failures will be tremendous.

"The fact that the civilian tire situation is better than at any time since Pearl Harbor in no way relieves the need for continuation of 35 mile an hour speed limits and tire care thru the summer," Viles said.

"Beyond the hot weather period lies great hope that the needs of all essential civilian drivers will have been met and that the government can begin to whittle down the long deferred tire demands of 10 million A card holders."

Warns Car Upkeep Needed

Meantime, the automobile industry is warning of a letdown by a substantial part of the public in car maintenance. The reason for this is the false impression many persons have obtained that new cars will be available soon.

Actually, the war production board has authorized the building this year of only 215,000 automobiles, contingent upon the manufacturers getting the necessary materials and man power. It will be more than a year before many persons not engaged in essential or professional work will be able to buy new cars.

STOCKS SWEEP UPWARD, MANY TO 8 YEAR HIGH

New York, June 14 (AP)—Spurred by further investment demand for rails, utilities, and assorted specialties, numerous stock market favorites today set new peaks for eight years in one of the liveliest sessions of the last two months.

Steels, motors, and many other industrials were hesitant and selling developed in some of the recently buoyant aircrafts. Gains of fractions to 3 or more points, however, were well in the majority at the close. Transfers totaled 1,850,000 shares, compared with 1,590,000 yesterday, and were the largest since May 7.

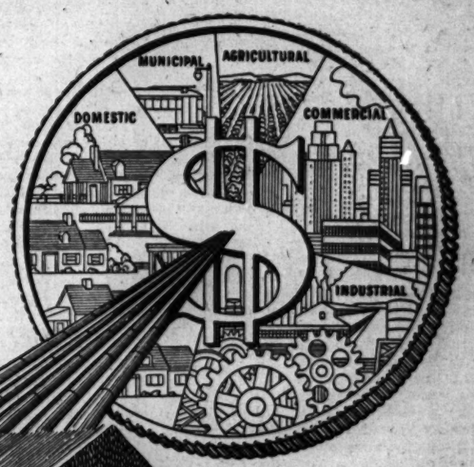
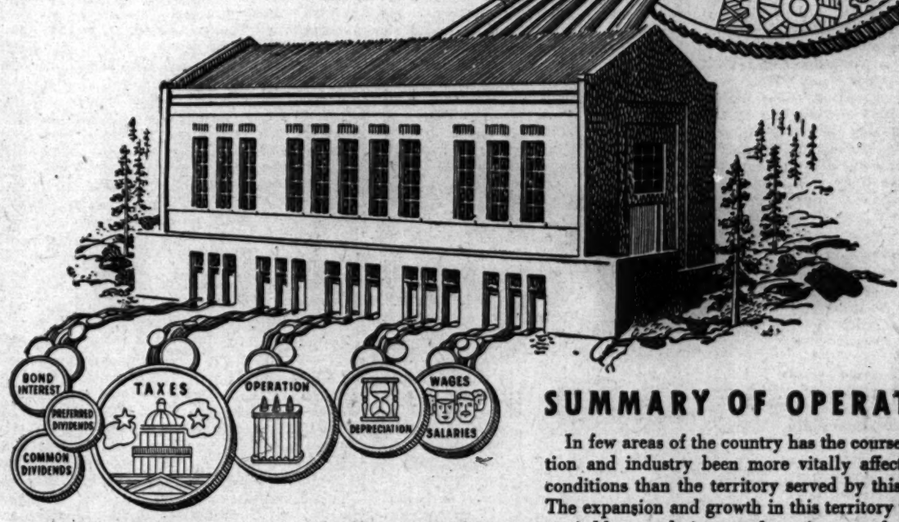
PACIFIC GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY

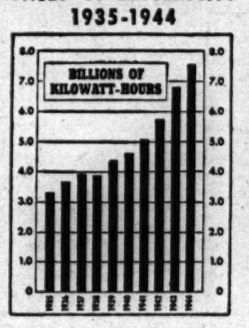
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

REVIEW OF 1944 ANNUAL REPORT



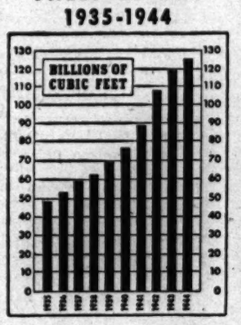


SALES OF ELECTRICITY 1935-1944



In 1944 the Company delivered to its customers 7,565,000,000 kilowatt-hours of electric energy. This represents an increase of 685,000,000 kilowatt-hours over the previous year, or 10%. Industrial sales totaled 3½ billion kilowatt-hours, almost one-half total sales for the year. Electric power is an important factor in California agriculture. Our agricultural power customers consumed 842 million kilowatt-hours of electricity in 1944. The magnitude of this amount becomes more apparent when it is realized that this consumption was 4/5 of the entire amount consumed by the Company's 831,000 domestic customers.

SALES OF GAS 1935-1944



Sales of gas aggregated more than 125 billion cubic feet, an increase of 5% over 1943. The over-all increase in sales of 5% however does not reflect the true rate of growth experienced during the year. During 1944 the Company continued to curtail when necessary deliveries of gas to customers served under "surplus" or interruptible supply contracts which contained provisions for temporary discontinuance when the available supply was needed for domestic, commercial and firm industrial customers. Our basic or firm gas load showed an increase of 17% over the previous year.

Territory Served

The Company's service area extends into 46 counties of the Northern and Central parts of California. The Company distributes electric energy in 139 incorporated towns, 237 unincorporated places and an extensive rural area. Gas is distributed in 102 incorporated towns, 85 unincorporated places and in some rural areas. The total population of the territory served is now estimated to exceed 4,000,000.

SUMMARY OF OPERATIONS

In few areas of the country has the course of population and industry been more vitally affected by war conditions than the territory served by this Company. The expansion and growth in this territory was accompanied by greatly increased requirements for light, heat and power. Throughout 1944, however, the Company continued to meet all demands for electric service permissible under governmental regulations. All requirements of our regular or firm gas customers were also supplied without reservation.

A feature of the year's operations was the completion of Pit Plant No. 5, with a generating capacity of 214,000 horsepower. This is the largest capacity of any hydro plant so far constructed in California. The Company now operates 65 electric generating plants—52 hydro and 13 steam—with a total installed capacity exceeding 2,300,000 horsepower. Gas service is supplied through an extensive transmission and distribution system, including almost 9,500 miles of mains.

At the close of 1944 electric service was being furnished to 1,039,427 customers, gas service to 765,497 customers, and water or steam service to 13,326 customers, a total of 1,818,250 active meters in service.

In the five years since our country embarked upon its program of rearmament, the Company has spent approximately $150,000,000 in additions and improvements and replacements to its plants and properties, and has extended service to 275,000 additional customers.

In the five year period sales of electricity to the public have increased 71% and sales of gas 79%, while the average unit selling price of both electricity and gas declined—electricity 19% and gas 20%.

Post War

The Company recognizes that efficient and successful operation requires forward building. We have that ever in mind, and expect to aid in the continued development of Northern and Central California by encouraging new industries to locate in the territory served, by cooperating with existing enterprises, and by aiding merchants and manufacturers in the solution of reconversion problems. Comprehensive studies are already under way to determine the character and extent of future markets for our services, the physical changes in our properties which will be required, and the opportunities for further improving our service to the public.

Asks Early End to Other Labor Controls

He emphasized the necessity of eliminating "rule making" by government bureaus after the war.

"We had better try to get less 'machinery' and less arbitrary rules," he said. "We must get rid of irresponsibility. Many agencies are run by people who do not have capabilities to run them. They should be manned by experienced, mature people. Rules do not permit risk taking. Full employment is reached thru people taking chances. If we deny the right to do that the volume of employment will be kept down."

More Closed Shops Forecast

Earlier, Almon E. Roth, chairman of the San Francisco employers council's board of governors, predicted that insistent demands by unions for a closed shop would result in a "rather rapid" increase in closed and union shop agreements when war time controls are relaxed.

"One principal reason for these prospective demands for closed shop agreements will be the belief that such agreements will afford better protection against raiding by rival unions than other forms of union security," he said.

"Because closed shops are the ultimate in union security, unions will continue to press for such agreements."

Trend to Broader Base

Roth asserted the trend toward the extension of the collective bargaining unit to a national basis and the abolition of area and community wage differentials has many implications.

"Many large corporations are wondering whether they should standardize wages and working conditions thruout their systems or insist on local negotiations which are geared to community wages and working conditions," he explained.

"The extension of high wages paid by companies in high wage areas to their plants in low wage areas unquestionably will have an unstabilizing effect upon the wage structure of the low wage communities and will be strongly resented by local employers.

Ends Labor Autonomy

"The institution of corporation or national industry-wide collective bargaining systems to a great extent will mean the end of local autonomy in labor relations. Both local conditions and individual rights will be disregarded in large measure."

He asserted war time inroads have been made on management's functions thru the unionization of foremen, the extension of grievance procedures to cover discharge cases, and the establishing of automatic wage progression provisions that interfere with the right of management to judge the merit and rate of promotions. Roth urged that industry take a "firm stand against any further encroachment by labor in the field of management."

REVERSE OF STOCK SPLIT

At a time when many corporations are splitting their stocks into lower priced units United Cigar-Whelan Stores corporation has done the reverse by issuing new common shares of 30 cents par in exchange for the old shares of 10 cents par, one for three. What were the reasons for this change? Is it favorable to stockholders?—W. R.

Altho high priced stocks are often split to bring down the price per share with a view to creating a wider market, a low priced stock is sometimes exchanged for a smaller number of shares to bring the price up to what is considered a more favorable trading level. United Cigar-Whelan Stores' one for three exchange did not alter the proportionate equity of the common stock holders in earnings and assets.

Reasons for the change were discussed by the management in a report to stockholders. Referring to the low price of the old shares—about 3¼—it said that many persons regarded them as a "cheap" stock. "'Cheap' means more than low price to some people," the report explained, "and thus an erroneous impression of financial condition and earning power is created."

The statement added that on the purchase and sale of 300 shares of old stock at 3 the commissions and federal and New York transfer taxes amounted to $57.05, whereas on 100 shares of the new stock these charges would total $31.05, with a cash saving to the stockholder of $26.

As adjusted to the new common, last year's earnings were equal to 60 cents a share, after one year's dividend requirement on the $5 preferred stock on which there is an arrearage. Of 3 million authorized common shares about 1,903,308 shares were required for the exchange.

DIFFER ON TIME MAGAZINE ROLE IN PRINT STRIKE

Washington, D. C., June 14 (AP)—Time and Life magazines were described before the war labor board today as "innocent bystanders" in the strike to unionize R. R. Donnelley & Sons, large Chicago open shop printing company.

Caught in the dispute, with Time and Life, are Sears Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery Ward & Co. catalogs, Pathfinder magazine, General Motors publications, and Bell Telephone directories, including the Pittsburgh directory due from the presses shortly. Struck work clauses in union contracts at Cuneo Press, Chicago Rotoprint, Chicago Colortype, Mann's and Cuneo Eastern Press were invoked to halt production of those publications.

Nicholas M. Dipietro, executive secretary of the Chicago Printing Trades Council organizing committee, disagreed with Maurice T. Moore, chairman of Time, Inc., who said the publication was an "innocent bystander," and accused the magazine of aiding Donnelley in its fight against unions in the Chicago graphic arts. Moore denied this.

Chairman Garrison said the board would take the case under advisement, after he made a plea to the unions to go thru the orderly processes for settling disputes.

spired bidding. Wall street optimism also was exemplified by the sale of two stock exchange seats at $69,000 and $70,000, highest price since last October.

The Associated Press 60 stock average rose 0.3 to 66.4, where it was only 0.2 under its top since 1937. Of 949 issues traded 546 advanced and 203 closed lower.

New York, June 14 (AP)—Secondary rails took the play in a generally higher bond market today, many posting gains of 1 to 2 points and in some cases more. For the third day in a row the Associated Press average of 20 carrier bonds made a new high since 1937 at 101.3. Other groups were steady.

More than 25 individual issues turned over in amounts from $100,000 to $700,000 and about 40 separate issues gained a point or more.

Leaders included bonds of the Seaboard Air Line, Milwaukee, Central of Georgia, St. Louis-San Francisco, Missouri Pacific, New Haven, Rio Grande Western, Florida East Coast, International Great Northern, Lehigh Valley, M-K-T, Wabash, and Western Pacific.
